Provost Marshal General Believes Army of 5,000,000 by Next June Is Assured.

Committee of Council of National Defense Calls on Women to Take Men's Places.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—On receipt of official estimates from several States which indicated that the registration under the new selective service legislation would reach nearly 14,000,000, Provost Marshal General Enoch P. Crowder sent this cable message to General Pershing, in command of the American forces in France:

"The nation responded yesterday with an enrollment which promises to exceed all estimates, thus assuring an uninterrupted flow of man power to the army under your command."

General Crowder was highly pleased today over the early reports he received, all of which proved that the registration had passed off without untoward incidents of any kind, and that the men had come forward willingly and eagerly.

Up to tonight incomplete reports had been received from Arkansas, the District of Columbia, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, and Wisconsin, and General Crowder announced that they indicated a registration in those States of about 8.5 per cent. in excess of the estimates. If that record is maintained throughout the nation it appears that the 14,000,000 mark will have been passed.

Local Boards Work Rapidly.

So rapidly have the local boards done their work that it is now believed that the mailing of questionnaires to the youths of 19 and 20 years and the men between 32 and 36 years inclusive, can be started early next week and possibly on Monday. That was the program which General Crowder hoped to carry out unless there was some serious hitch in the registration, and apparently no such hitch has occurred.

The success of the registration has made General Crowder confident that the necessary man power for the cantonments can be obtained without trouble, even after the deferred classification is granted to those who are held to be essential to the war industries and the commercial life of the nation.

The District of Columbia led in making its return. The district exceeded its estimate by 9,051, or about 20 per cent., and while this may be due in part to the fact that many Government employes registered here, there are indications that similar conditions are found in a majority of the States.

New York Board Fourth to Report.

Local Board, No. 3 of Washington, was the first to report and it was followed by two Philadelphia boards. The fourth to report was Local Board 157 of New York City, of which Dr. N. Gordon is chairman. Dr. Gordon also sent a messenger by train to Washington with his report, which showed a registration of 3,319. A force of twenty volunteer stenographers worked steadily throughout the day to enable this board to complete its report within five minutes after the registration booths in that district closed. The report included not only the serial number assigned to each registrant, but the name, age, color and nationality of each registrant.

The question of industrial exemptions came to the front today with the publication of a message which the Railroad Administration has sent to all Regional Directors in regard to the classes for whom preferment will be asked.

General Crowder's attitude, it is understood, is that the local and district boards shall have a free hand in deciding the right to deferred classification, and it is entirely possible that preferment will be refused to large groups where it can be shown that any considerable numbers can be replaced by others.

The same attitude is held toward the other industries, including the mines and munition factories. It is felt by the Provost Marshal General's office that that situation can be handled by the local and district boards on an equitable basis which will make it easy to meet the program for an army of 5,000,000 by June 30 next without disrupting any of

Emperor Whimpered in Essen Speech, Says Paris

PARIS, Sept. 13. (Havas Agency.)—Commenting on the speech of Emperor William to the workmen at the Krupp Works at Essen, the newspapers say the Emperor endeavored to brace up the shaken spirits of the German people and fight the defeatist elements.

The Petit Parisien says: "The Emperor gave up his grandiloquent tone to adopt a whimpering tone."

Figaro says: "There was not a word in the speech which was not an inhuman sneer or a lie for slaves, and this in an atmosphere of bitterness and discouragement."

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 13.—"The Kaiser looked grave and his hair has become very gray," says an Essen dispatch to the Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin, describing the appearance of Emperor William at the Krupp munition works, "but in his eyes shone the defiant gleam of a Prussian King With elastic tread he passed through the hall of the Friedrichshalle.

"He began to speak with subdued voice, then spoke more vigorously, and finally with a vim that carried his hearers away. He spoke without manuscript and with rhetoric which many Reichstagers might have envied."

PRESIDENT TO PUT STRIKERS IN ARMY

Threatens to Void Bridgeport Men's Exemptions and Bar Them in Other Jobs.

STRIKERS LIKELY TO RETURN

Smith & Wesson Pistol Plant Is Commandeered by the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—President Wilson today disclosed the drastic policy of industrial war labor control that has been determined upon as a result of the refusal of striking machinists at Bridgeport to accept an arbitral decision of the War Labor Board. This policy, which will be applicable to employers and employes alike, wherever similar situations arise throughout the country, was succinctly set forth in a letter which the President today sent to District Lodge, No. 55, of the International Association of Machinists, and other striking workmen of Bridgeport.

In a nutshell the decision of the President is:

First—The Federal Government will take over and operate the plants of employers who decline to abide by decisions of the War Labor Board.

Second — Striking employes who ignore or temporize with these decisions must return to work or be barred from employment in any war industry in the community in which the strike accurs for a period of one year, and face rejection of any claim for exemption from the draft law based on usefulness in war production.

The plant of the Smith & Wesson Company of Springfield, which was manufacturing pistols for the Government, has already been ordered commandeered by the War Department.

The striking employes have their choice of returning to work or of being dealt with as stated by the President in his letter to them, in which he characterizes their strike against the labor award as "a breach of faith," calculated to reflect on the sincerity of national organized labor, in proclaiming its acceptance of the principles and machinery of the National War Labor Board.

Text of President's Letter.

The President's letter to the strikers follows:

The White House,
Washington,
13 Sept., 1918.

Gentlemen: I am in receipt of your resolutions of Sept. 6, announcing that you have begun a strike against your employers in Bridgeport, Conn. You are members of the Bridgeport branches of the International Union of Machinists. As such and with the approval of the national officers of your union you signed an agreement to submit the questions as to the terms of your employment to the National War Labor Board and to abide the award which in accordance with the rules of procedure approved by me might be right.

The members of the board were not able to reach a unanimous conclusion on all the issues presented and as provided in its constitution, the questions upon which they did not agree were carried before an arbitrator, the

GERMANY WANTS WAR'S END

Peace Coming Sooner Than Supposed, Chancellor Tells Labor Men.

ARMY CHIEFS DESIRE IT

With the Government, He Says, They Are Against Annexations and For an Understanding.

PAYER URGES DISARMAMENT

Germany Would Apply It to Armies and Navies—Abandons Indemnities.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Notwithstanding the declination of Germany's peace offer, Count von Hertling, the Imperial German Chancellor, is convinced that peace is nearer than is generally supposed, according to an address made by the Chancellor before the trades unionist leaders in Germany, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen.

The Chancellor declared that both the German Government and army leaders were against all conquests and desired an understanding and peace.

As soon as he was convinced of the impossibility of an agreement with the upper house on the suffrage question, the Chancellor said he would dissolve the lower house.

Wants No Indemnity, Payer Says.

AMSTERDAM, Thursday, Sept. 12.—Reiterating that Germany "as the innocent and attacked party" in the war, had a right to demand indemnification, Friedrich von Payer, the German Imperial Vice Chancellor, in his speech at Stuttgart today said that "we prefer on calm reflection, and even with our own favorable military situation, to abandon this idea."

Turning to the question of the occupied territories, the Vice Chancellor said that as a preliminary condition of peace for Germany and her allies those nations must have all their pre-war possessions, including the German colonies, restored. Then Germany, he declared, could evacuate the occupied regions and could give back Belgium without encumbrance and without reserve, provided no other State was more favorably placed in regard to Belgium than was Germany.

He asserted that Germany would not submit to the Entente Powers for approval or alteration the peace treaties which Germany had signed with the Ukraine, Russia, and Rumania.

Observing that the postponement of peace prospects and the likelihood of a fifth war Winter weighed equally on all belligerents and not on Germany alone, he continued:

"Our State debts are everywhere reaching fantastic heights and everywhere we struggle against the encroachments on our personal liberty. All of the belligerents of Europe must admit, if they are not blind, that the longer the European peoples lacerate each other the more certainly will the historical and paramount position of weakened and impoverished Europe be lost in favor of cleverer and more calculating peoples."

Herr von Payer reminded his hearers that after four years the war still was being waged almost entriely on enemy territory. He admitted that the U-boat war had not worked so quickly and surely as had been hoped. It was useless to dispute whose was the fault. The enemy were still unable to compensate their losses by new construction, and the robbery of neutral ships almost without parallel by the Entente could not be repeated.

"The more troops the United States sends the greater will be the need of shipping for reinforcements of munitions and provisions," Herr von Payer said. "The filling up of the enemy army by Americans therefore bears in itself its limitations."

He argued that the loss of shipping would become fatal to Great Britain after the war because she would lose her shipping superiority to the United States, and "the hope of compensating themselves from the German fleet, which still has to be conquered, will surely be adequate comfort only for the very imaginative Britishers."

Contending that technique and inventive genius, which already had helped the Germans over heavy obstacles, would still help them, Herr von Payer said:

"If we lack cotton and oils our enemies lack coal. Food is scarce here and there, but already things have probably turned in our favor. In the East the world is again open to us for a food supply, while our enemies' supplies of foodstuffs and raw materials give prec-

Wings of German Airplanes Now Being Made of Wood

THE HAGUE, Sept. 13.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns on excellent authority that the last German airplane to land in Holland was one of the Brandenburg type, which had wings covered with three thin layers of wood instead of textile material. The extra weight was saved by doing away with wire stays. The machine flew well.

The question of textiles and, in fact, of all materials has been one fraught with tremendous difficulties to Germany for some time and is one that monopolizes the attention of the experts, in spite of efforts to prove the contrary.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY, Sept. 13. — Fighting continued throughout yesterday and into the night for the possession of Havrincourt Village, Trescault, Moeuvres, and the neighboring ground, taken by the gallant and skillful fighting of Lancashire troops and Yorkshire troops of the 62d Division, and some troops of the Rifle Brigade and 60th Rifles and New Zealanders.

It developed into a much bigger success than I knew yesterday, as I discovered today when I went up into that area and found that the number of prisoners had reached a total of 11 officers and 1,018 men—those I have seen are a sturdy lot—and that the day's action had resulted in a fine, complete success, the taking across of another section of the Hindenburg line at Havrincourt and south o. that back into the old lines which the British held before the attack in the Cambrai salient last year.

The hardest task lay in front of the riflemen, who had Trescault and its neighborhood as their goal. They, together with troops of English county regiments, have been working alongside New Zealanders since the beginning of the offensive in August. They had already been nine weeks in line before that, starting somewhere by Bucquoy, smashing their way across a deep cutting outside Achiet le Grand, where they captured 400 machine guns; fighting a hard battle at Bihucourt, and pushing on to Bienvillers, and following up the enemy, of whom they had taken over 2,000, to the edge of Havrincourt Wood.

He evidently intended to defend this seriously. On the edge of it he had dug new rifle pits in double rows and he held these with strong bodies of marksmen with machine guns. But English battalions in a quick dash at the end of their day's advance swept through the northwest corner of the wood, the only part not defended in much strength, while the New Zealanders pushed forward below the wood. That outflanked the Germans in their rifle pits and they retreated during the night. A little while before the English troops had been fighting hard for possession of a spoil heap on one side of the Canal du Nord, which is ninety feet deep thereabout, and had driven the enemy off its mound and across the canal. so making way for further progress toward Havrincourt village.

Roundabout Woevres two bodies of English troops, including several Lancashire battalions, were having hard fighting against desperate resistance, but they succeeded in capturing the village yesterday, and later in the day broke up a strong

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 13.—The Americans have smashed the St. Mihiel salient, which yesterday morning swept southward from the vicinity of Fresnes, around St. Mihiel, and eastward north of Flirey to a point just beyond Pont-à-Mousson. This morning, twenty-four hours after the First American Army hit it, the salient looks like a half filled bag.

We have knocked it in a little from one side, some from the end, and severely punched it from the south side. The Germans give evidence of withdrawing with all expedition. Some 8,000 of them came out at the wrong end of the salient into our hands, and this number of prisoners may be increased when all are counted.

A surprising thing about this great American military success in France is that the enemy did not fight. The Germans had expected an attack by the Americans in this sector and had read speculations in their newspapers about it, but when the Americans struck the line only one first-class division was in front of them, and it had been roughly dealt with by our artillery fire, which was among the fiercest exhibitions of shelling seen in this region.

Our men met real resistance only in spots, and then it was not of a determined nature. It was in no sense comparable to the rear guard actions fought by the Germans in getting out of the Marne salient.

Germans Surrendered Readily.

That the Germans surrendered readily is shown by the fact that up to 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon one American division had captured 3,000 prisoners. These men said they did not care to fight any more.

A surprisingly strange thing is the large number of officers that have been captured. In taking one town the Americans rounded up 1,800 men and 80 officers.

What puzzles one is why the German Command did not put good divisions into the salient. One knows that certain divisions are at Hindenburg's disposal. Perhaps he has other uses for them, but the ease of yesterday's American advance was a great surprise to our men, who were ready to give the foe any kind of entertainment he called for.

We accomplished all of our objectives without great exertion. The salient has been well trimmed down.

Our attack was made as follows: One drive on the south side of the salient and a second drive south of Fresnes eastward on the west side of the salient, with the French following up on the tip of the salient. The attack south of Fresnes met the only serious resistance that the Germans put up in the form of counter-attacks, the evident purpose of which was to protect the withdrawal from the salient. But in the meanwhile the Americans on the south side of the salient, where the strongest attack was made, went ahead in great fashion, meeting only slight machine-gun resistance. After taking breath, the Americans on the southern side of the salient started again early in the afternoon.

Over a small plain our forces met

Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, Sept. 13.

Section A—In the St. Mihiel sector we have achieved further successes. The junction of our troops advancing from the south of the sector with those advancing from the west has given us possession of the whole salient to points twelve miles northeast of St. Mihiel, and has resulted in the capture of many prisoners.

Forced back by our steady advance, the enemy is retiring and is destroying large quantities of material as he goes. The number of prisoners counted has risen to 13,300. Our lines now includes Herbeuville-Thillot-Hattonville-St. Benoit Xammes-Jaulny-Thiaucourt, and Vieville. PERSHING.

Baker and Pershing Pay Visit to St. Mihiel.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN LORRAINE, Sept. 13, (Associated Press.)—Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War, accompanied by Generals Pershing and Pétain, visited St. Mihiel a few hours after its capture.

Residents of the town, which had been so long under the domination of the Germans, gave Secretary Baker and his companions a touching reception, relating the abuses to which they had been subjected.

Before the Germans retreated they had forced almost every male between the ages of 16 and 45 to accompany them for service in the German Army, they told the Secretary.

Secretary Baker and Generals Pershing and Pétain walked through the streets of the city, talking to the residents, who told them stories of the long German occupation. Although the Germans were most open in their outrages immediately prior to their retreat, they began their depredations long ago. Houses were entered and robbed, and when they marched out of St. Mihiel they carried away great stores of loot, taken from almost every house.

TO FACILITATE MANOEUVRES

Much Depends on Fate of German Divisions That Fought at Head of Salient.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The scope and methods of the first stage of General Pershing's offensive are now becoming clear. The main attack has been made on the southern face of the St. Mihiel salient, between the Moselle and heights of the Meuse, and has been designed to cut off the defenders of those heights, or at least force them to retreat precipitately.

A subsidiary American attack has been made from the western face of the salient directly against the heights, doubtless in order to occupy the attention of the Germans on the ridge while the main attack came down upon their rear. This subsidiary attack has been made in difficult wooded country, and its progress, as must have been anticipated. has been much slower than that of the main effort.

These two attacks have been connected by a French attack on the point of the salient at St. Mihiel and the famous Fort du Camp du Romains, one of the original permanent defenses of the heights of the Meuse, captured by the Germans in September, 1914, and held by them until yesterday.

The American attack on the western face has been extended by the French attack further to the north, the whole operation being directed by General Pershing.

News of the progress made by our allies continues to be most satisfactory and that of the main attack has been as rapid as we had any right to hope. By continuing to advance from the southern front north and northwest of Thiaucourt, Vigneulles and St. Benoit have been gained. Thus the ridge has been turned and the salient has already all but disappeared. The German defenders of St. Mihiel have had to fall back in a hurry, and the French have occupied it without opposition.

Germans May Be Cut Off.

It remains to be seen whether these German troops will succeed in making good their escape, for their line of retreat is nearly cut.

It is remarkable that the little town of St. Mihiel, lying in a cleft of a ridge, should have been protected by an accident of ground from destruction during four years of the war and that the French inhabitants should have lived

WASHINGTON LOOKS FOR BIGGER EVENTS

Smashing of St. Mihiel Salient May Develop Into a Move to Encircle Metz.

VICTORY OF UTMOST VALUE

Officers Amused at German Statement That Evacuation Had Been Successful.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Elimination of the St. Mihiel salient by General Pershing's army, many army officials here believe, is only the entering wedge of operations of far greater scope.

Until definite word comes as to the line across the mouth of the salient which the Americans now hold, officers here will be unable to form opinions as to the most probable course of future operations. There is a strong belief, however, that the quick reduction of the St. Mihiel salient will be made the cornerstone of a great encircling movement aimed at isolating the German fortress of Metz, the centre buttress of the whole German front from the North Sea to the Swiss border.

The strategic importance of General Pershing's smashing victory can hardly be overestimated, in the opinion of many observers. It is out of all proportion to the extent of the territory regained or the force employed, it is said, for the removal of this menace in the rear of the French citadel of Verdun has released the French armies from that point to Rheims for active offensive operations. It also has liberated the railway line from Verdun to Commercy, Toul and Nancy, which will be of the utmost value to General Pershing and to the French armies on his left in supporting future operations along this front.

Early reports fixed the number of prisoners taken by the Americans at 12,000, and these probably represent the wreckage of at least three enemy divisions. No estimate of the war booty captured has been received.

Since the new line across the mouth of the old pocket is far shorter than the old front, French and American troops heretofore held fast to the defense of the salient are now available for other duty.

As the lines were reported tonight, there was nothing to indicate that the American advance had stopped.

The German official statement was that a new line had been prepared, but the nature of the country where the American troops stood late today indicated that the German defense position must be farther back toward Metz, where better natural obstacles are available. It is expected here that American patrols will push forward to feel out this line before a new advance is undertaken.

The German statement that the salient had been evacuated without serious interference caused much amusement among officers in view of the number of prisoners captured. It has been estimated that seven divisions of the Most of the Towns Retaken in Drive Also Suffered Little Injury.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN LORRAINE, Sept. 13, (Associated Press.)—The St. Mihiel salient has been wiped out, and the enemy forces are now virtually with their backs to the famous "Wotan-Hindenburg line" with the Americans and the French front paralleling theirs closely from Verdun to the Moselle.

The line now extends past Norroy, Jaulny, Xammes, St. Bénoit, Hattonville, Hannonville, and Herbeuville.

LONDON, Sept. 13, (Associated Press.)—Twelve thousand prisoners have been taken by the Americans in their offensive at St. Mihiel, and large numbers of captives are still coming in. Sixty guns have been counted so far. The entire salient has now been captured.

All the villages in the salient have been occupied by the Americans, and the front in this sector was reduced from some forty miles to a little less than twenty.

The latest news from the battlefront shows that the line now runs directly from Pagny, at the German boundary, on the Moselle River, to Hattonville, and then along the foot of the heights of the Meuse.

Most of the villages captured by the Americans were left in good condition by the Germans. The town of St. Mihiel was practically undamaged. The Germans left the railroad from Verdun to Commercy, Toul, and Nancy intact, and this road will prove a great help to the Entente Allies.

Another valuable railway line from Thiaucourt to St. Mihiel, by which the Germans fed their troops in the salient, was also left unharmed.

The operation of the Americans must be regarded as a big local success. All their objectives were reached.

The assertion made by the Germans in one of their official communications that they foresaw the evacuation of the St. Mihiel salient and had prepared for it since 1914 is hardly borne out in view of the number of prisoners and guns taken. At the same time the fact that very few stores were left behind indicates that the Germans had expected to quit the ground.

Prisoners from Seven Divisions.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 13, (Associated Press.)—The prisoners taken by the Americans in the St. Mihiel drive have come from seven German divisions, among them men from the Landwehr and Landsturm. The Austro-Hungarian prisoners came from the 192d, 10th, 77th, 255th, and 307th Regiments.

The prisoners asserted that the casualties resulting fro . the American fire were very heavy. Among the captives were numerous officers, who freely criticised the high command for what they termed bad judgment.

All the evidence at hand tends to confirm the belief that the Germans were altogether unprepared to resist such a force as General Pershing sent against them. One division on a certain sector sent out a call for reinforcements. The only response to this appeal was a reply to hold the sector at all costs.

Vigneuelles, a little town that sits in the northern end of the valley that was the northern entrance to the St. Mihiel salient, was entered by the Americans last night. The first to get there were members of a small patrol. This was supported by a large force that moved down the ridge along the northern edge of the forest, and in a few hours the trap was effectually closed and a new line established.

Exceptional assistance has been given by the aviation forces, both American and French. Planes of pursuit groups successfully attacked convoys and troops in formation. Flying low, they used their machine guns with deadly effect on the lines of infantry, in some instances causing them to break.

One aviator saw two men attempting to extricate some artillery horses. He swooped down and attacked them with his machine gun, killing one and driving the other to seek refuge in a dugout. The flier circled about the dugout, preventing the man's escape until the infantry came up and captured him.

Tanks were used, but not to any great extent, the chief reason being that it was unnecessary to call upon them. The Germans in most cases retreated without waiting for the wiping out machines to force them.

The rains that began shortly after the heavy barrage that opened the battle have continued at intervals since. The narrow dirt roads that lead from the main highway are now deep in mud, and it is through these and over fields in which wagons sink low that the guns move, in a majority of cases drawn by automobile tractors. It was through such fields that the infantrymen slipped and waded in pursuit of the retreating enemy.

Germans Withdrew Their Guns.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS IN LORRAINE, Sept. 13, (Reuter.)—The St. Mihiel salient, created by the Germans at great cost to secure an adequate frontage of ground of much value to them, which no efforts of the French had been able to wrest from them, has been eliminated by the combined American and French forces.

The attack was made in the time-honored manner of assault on both sides of the salient, with less pressure around its apex. More complete success could hardly have been attained, and the double objectives were reached well in advance of the expected hour. The enemy had probably determined, in view of the pressure applied, to accept a straightening of his line here, as he had done further west, but if that really was his intention he lost a surprising number of men. Apart from any that may have been taken at the apex and on the western side of the salient, those that fell to the southern attack greatly exceeded expectations.

The groups of from 100 to 300 prisoners streaming back through the advancing guns were the most mixed lot imaginable. There were some fine big gunners, more than six feet tall, and there were children of 14, frightened out of their wits.

From 1 o'clock in the morning the sky blazed with the light of the great artillery battle, something which had not been seen for months on this part of the line. When the troops went over what daylight there should have been was obscured by the driving mist and rain. Later the day improved somewhat, bringing fine intervals interspersed with heavy rainstorms, but the rain-sodden ground made the progress of transport and heavy guns exceedingly difficult.

The southern attack extended past Montsec, a great natural fortress, 1,200 feet high practically to the Moselle at Pont-à-Mousson. This is open, rolling grassland country. It would be difficult to find more advantageous fighting ground. The Americans found it to present few difficulties.

The Germans undoubtedly were busy getting their guns away, and the support offered to their sacrificed infantry was weak in the extreme. Of counterbattery work there seemed to be none at all.

Though the day was unpropitious, the allied airplanes did splendid work, swooping on the retiring infantry and driving them clear of the road, besides pushing every German plane out of the sky and bringing down several balloons in flames, including one most prized by the Germans on the high ground at Marieulles.

OUR FIRE DESTROYED FOE'S COMMUNICATIONS

Terrific Bombardment Made It Impossible to Bring Up Reserves for Them.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN LORRAINE, Sept. 13, (Associated Press.)—Brilliantly supported by the French, General Pershing has accomplished the "limited objectives" of the operations undertaken in the St. Mihiel region. The two forces, pushing respectively southeast and northwest, took position after position from the enemy, advancing with a rapidity, precision, and dash that disheartened him after his reverses of recent months. Few late actions have yielded so much ground of so important a nature.

The preliminary artillery work in the dark hours of Thursday morning was demoralizing in the thoroughness of its destructiveness. It is now known that the enemy was prepared for a possible blow in this region, but four hours of almost unsurpassed shelling with gas and from guns of all calibres left him powerless to bring up his reserves or maintain communications. His roads were torn up, his supplies and material destroyed, his ammunition dumps sent skyward, and villages behind his lines fired. A large number of prisoners, quantities of supplies, and many guns fell into the hands of the Allies.

Eventual stabilization here will free important lines of rail communication as well as highways, and leave in the possession of the French and Americans high ground which will be of great military advantage when the wet season begins.

In the military sense, the action has been normal in all its aspects, except in the rapidity of execution. This does not mean that there has been no hard fighting. There has been fighting both brilliant and fierce, because one vitally important point was held by a famous and well-tried German division. Nevertheless, the division was unable to withstand the steady advance of the Americans thrown against it and in addition lost many prisoners.

The only enemy weakness was in his artillery, the reply of his big guns being deficient and spasmodic throughout, evidencing that he had previously removed the greater part to safer positions. But his machine guns were vicious enough to compensate for this.

Many Austrians Captured.

Among the prisoners taken by the Americans are 350 Austro-Hungarians. This is the first conclusive evidence that Austrians in force are being used on this part of the line.

Thirty-five hundred prisoners were captured in one district near Montsec by an American division. Among them was Major Count von Schmesig. He and his staff had their baggage packed and were waiting to be captured.

In a majority of cases the prisoners put up comparatively little resistance before surrendering. In many instances the detachments which had escaped the barrage in their trenches and dugouts made a perfunctory resistance with their machine guns and then threw up their hands.

A detachment of about 200 Germans at the foot of a little hill was ordered to charge the Americans who were advancing down the slope. The Americans were ordered by their Captain to retreat. They did so, but only over the brow of the hill. Here, lying flat, they awaited the rush of the Germans and received their assailants with the bayonet. It was soon over. All the Germans were either killed or captured.

The Germans last night and early today were attempting to remove their artillery through the town of Vigneulles, under the stress of the American attack on the St. Mihiel salient. They were meeting the greatest difficulty, however, being hampered by airplane as well as by artillery fire.

The enemy has already lost a number of cannon and trench mortars, besides a huge number of machine guns.

Prisoners continue to arrive in the back areas from the front. One corps headquarters was choked with Germans this morning, including a Major of the 419th Regiment, who had been captured with his entire staff. His cheeks were still wet with tears shed over his capture.

Eleven enemy ammunition dumps are known to have been blown up by the artillery of one corps alone.

American aviators have been taking the most active possible part in the present fighting and, notwithstanding the bad weather, have been flying over German territory without opposition.

There seemingly can be no more talk of German mastery in the air. It is asserted that German balloons have been shot down near [name deleted]. One daring flier swooped low to attack a retreating battery and shot one of the officers dead from his horse. Another officer was driven into a dugout, where he was captured.

AMERICANS SANG AS THEY BEGAN DRIVE

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN LORRAINE, Sept. 12, (Associated Press.)—Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War, with several other notables witnessed the beginning of the American offensive from the vantage point of a French fort behind the middle of the line.

It was precisely 1 o'clock of a rainy, moonless night when a single dash of flame shot across the sky. It was followed by other flashes, which gradually merged into a sheet of white light on the horizon. Gradually there began to roll from this flame-lit area a mighty thunder, amid which could be distinguished now and then the crack and boom of German return shells bursting.

The front over which the attack was made was so extended that brilliant bands of vivid light soon stretched from far eastward to westward, lighting up the clouds. Soon there began to arise star shells, signal rockets, and flares thrown up by the enemy to betray the Americans should they leave their trenches suddenly to begin an infantry attack.

To this general color scheme there was soon added a reddish glow as ammunition dumps exploded and buildings set on fire behind the enemy lines began to blaze.

The character of the artillery fire changed slightly, lessened a little in intensity, and German star shells burst with more frequency as 5 o'clock approached, as if the enemy suspected that was the hour set for the infantry attack. More and more ammunition dumps exploded just before 5 o'clock; the artillery bombardment suddenly resumed its original intensity, and as the sky was beginning to be tinged with dawn it again took on a white look along the horizon.

Precisely at 5 o'clock the thunder of the guns, accompanying the glare of light, stopped, and in the sudden silence the Americans went over the top. All along the lines could be heard the chattering of German machine guns, and then suddenly the thunder began again, when a barrage was laid down to protect the soldiers as they approached the German trenches.

Into the battle had been brought all the elements of modern warfare. While the artillery was playing its rôle the airmen and the tank crews worked over their machines preparatory to taking their part in the biggest "show" the Americans have given. There was no question of aerial supremacy, or should be none. French planes and French airmen supplemented the American forces, and daylight saw them already in action.

It had rained in the night, and the early hours of the morning did not afford the best opportunity for the aviators, but despite the mist the squadrons appeared with the dawn, ready for observation of the defense and for offensive combat.

There was a high wind during the day, but the balloons were able to remain up for observation. One American balloon broke away and drifted eastward. One of the German balloons was aloft near St. Mihiel, but it remained up only about five minutes.

The smoke screen the American gunners placed about Montsec appears to have been successful in preventing enemy observations from that commanding point.

While heavy attacks were being made on the north and south lines of the St. Mihiel sector a force around the point of the angle was starting a seriets of raids, rushing far into the sides of the German body.

The strength of the Germans was not known, but it is certain that there were at least seven divisions in the salient. It had been learned that the enemy had collected a quantity of stores in the sector and would doubtless attempt to remove them.

The front under attack was about forty-five miles along. The French were in the line at allotted points, but the distribution of the force was such that wherever the Germans turned they faced American troops.

Just how much the Germans were surprised by the offensive in a sector, so long inactive is uncertain. It seems not improbable, however, that they had noticed the indications given for many days, that some new plan was being adopted. The mobilization of the force was accomplished, however, almost wholly in night marches, the men slipping from other sectors into positions in front of the enemy here, often without the population of the districts through which they passed being aware of the movement.

The guns that opened the artillery preparations hammered not only the German nearby positions but almost every crossroads, village, and town within range. The roads over which the enemy might bring up reinforcements or retreat were torn up with high explosives.

The artillery attack was carefully planned, every battery commander having painstakingly registered long in advance the objectives of his guns. The full effect of the terrific bombardment could not be observed, but there was little doubt that it had an immense effect in interfering with the defensive work of the German force in the salient.

After the American artillery had reached a drumfire intensity the soldiers went over the top behind a barrage, singing loudly:

"Where Do We Go from Here, Boys?"

The American attack was developed by a succession of surprise attacks at many points, in which the enemy's lines were penetrated.

Those elements which reached the second German line of defense met with little resistance. The Americans blew up a number of blockhouses, machine gun pits, and munition depots.

The German artillery fire was violent at first, but fell off rapidly.

EASY CAPTURES BY OUR MEN

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

machine-gun fire from one town. Instead of rushing it frontally, as our men did in the Marne salient, the Americans profited by experience, and, leaving a small force in front, sent men to either side and surrounded the town. It was here that the 1,800 men and eighty officers were taken.

At another town the Germans had left machine gun nests almost all around the place. Here the tanks, which during the day had been unable to work much on account of the mud, went into action and made several advances easy. These tanks are small, with a wide tread, and travel well in soft ground.

We had some heavier tanks, but because of their narrow tread most of them got stuck in the mud.

Air Operations Effective.

Under heavy fire our bombers did some good work, despite the bad weather, in harassing the German supply trains, and this morning our infantry and artillery are at it again.

Early yesterday afternoon I stood on ground which had been held by the Germans at 5 o'clock in the morning. Our guns were then being moved up further. Last night as darkness settled our light artillery occupied positions in some cases seven kilometers north of where the German position had been in the morning.

During the late afternoon and last night large numbers of fires were seen burning back of the German lines. Inasmuch as the flames started at a time when our fire was much less than at other times, it is believed that the Germans were burning their stores, despairing of getting them out of the salient.

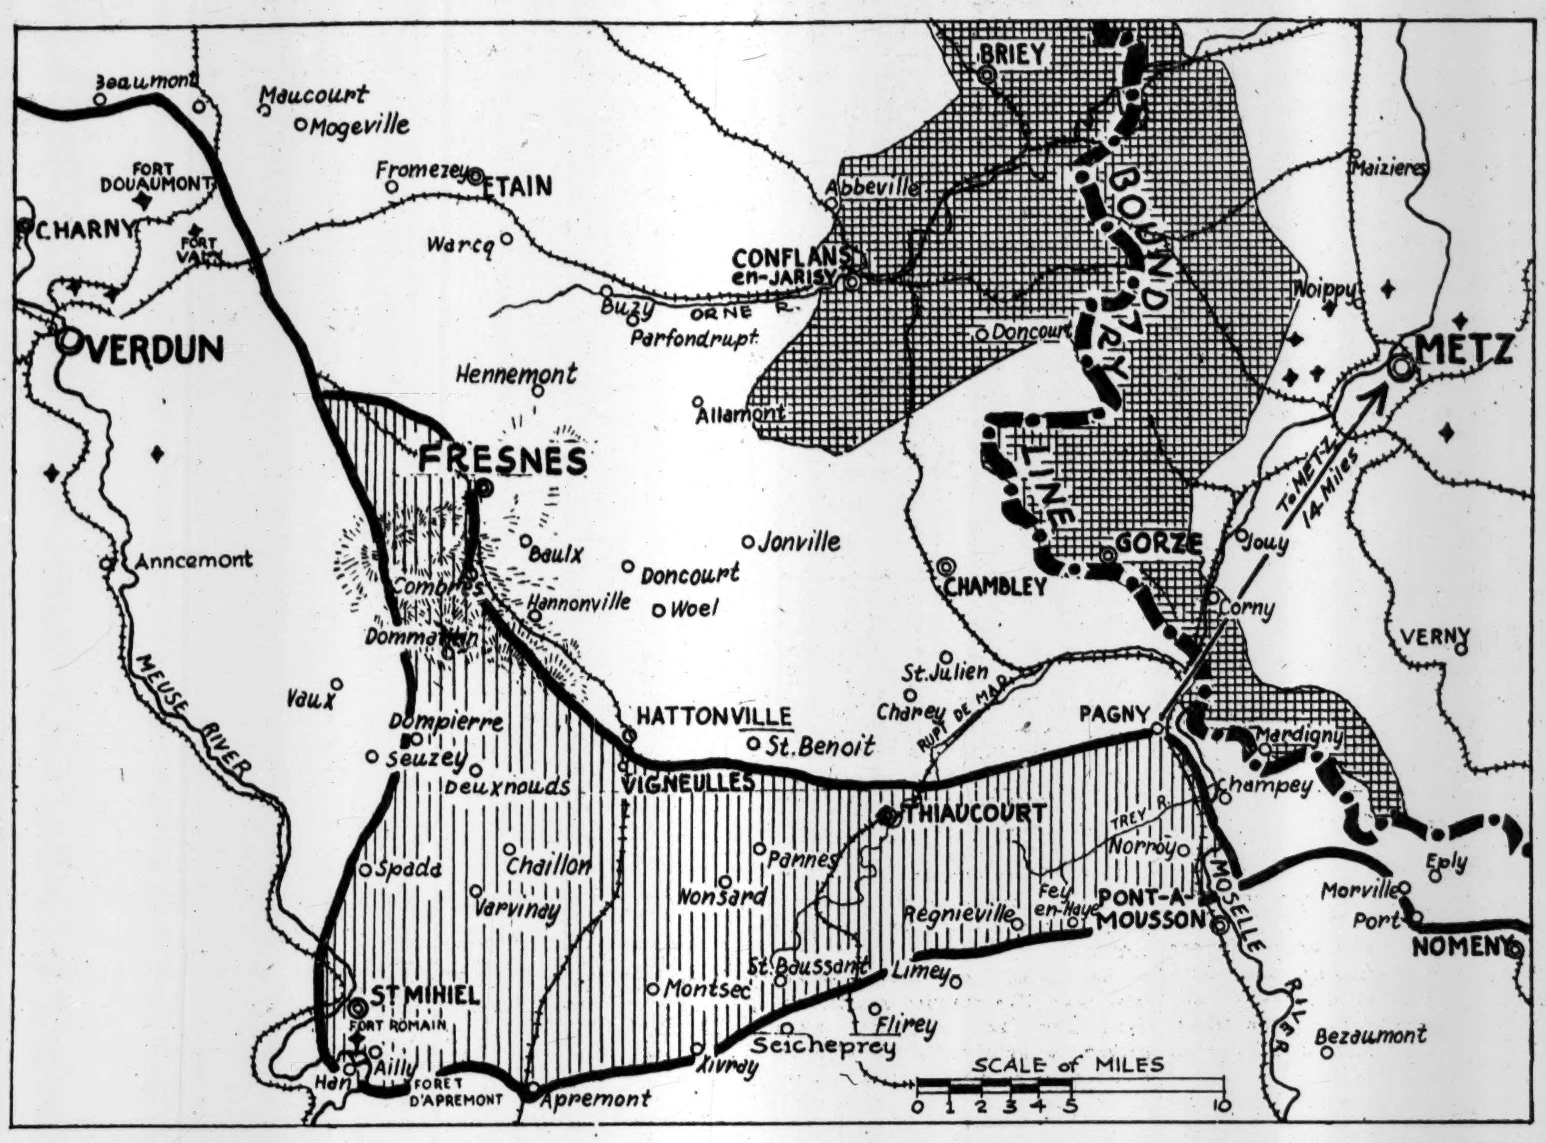
In the air service we have complete control. Only one German observation balloon was up along the salient yesterday and that was brought down. The Americans had fifteen to twenty in the air all during the day as needed. Last night the Germans did not attempt the expected air raids. In fact, the Germans seem to have lost their nerve in this part of the line.

Is the German Army playing some sort of a game, or is it just beginning to crack?

The reduction of the St. Mihiel salient is not a great big thing in itself. It is nothing like so important as the clearing out of the Marne salient with its menace to Paris. But the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient is important to Americans and to all the allies because it is the first work performed as a real American show.

General Pershing, as commander of the First American Army, planned the attempt and put it into execution. It is the first operation our army has attempted without tutelage and we are making good on it.

Map Showing the Wiping Out of St. Mihiel Salient



The vertically shaded area indicates the approximate territory taken by the Americans, except that in the centre of the new front, according to General Pershing's communiqué, received in Washington late last night. Our troops have now occupied St. Benoit, Hattonville, and Hannonville. Some advices throw doubt on the occupation of Pagny, on the right flank, but cavalry patrols were known to be pushing forward in that direction on the first day of the drive.

The cross-hatching at the upper right hand corner of the map marks the area of the rich coal and iron deposits of the Briey basin, now in German hands, but threatened by the American advance.

ONE TANK CAPTURES A GERMAN BATTERY

Twenty-two Machine Guns and 75 Prisoners Also Taken by Sergeant Graham's Machine.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN LORRAINE, Sept. 13, (Associated Press.)—The fine work done by the tanks in the beginning of the American offensive is illustrated by the execution of one machine, in command of Sergeant Graham.

This tank ran far ahead of the infantry and captured a battery of German 77s, seventeen heavy machine guns, five light machine guns, and seventy-five prisoners.

When the tank went into action the Sergeant crawled to the top of the turret and directed the operations from there.

Another tank unaided took thirty prisoners.

The losses to the tanks have been very small. Only two of the machines have been destroyed entirely, and in the corps the Americans have suffered only four casualties. Not a man has been killed in connection with the operation of the tanks.

THINK PRISONER TOTAL WILL BE LARGE

Washington Also Inclined to Think Pershing Has Underestimated His Advance.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—General Pershing's communiqué, made public by the War Department just before midnight tonight, in which he told of the flattening out of the St. Mihiel salient and the capture of 13,300 men, gave much gratification in official circles.

That the number of prisoners is considerably more than the total reported is the belief of army officers, who point out that the rapidity with which the American forces, co-operating with the French, pinched out the salient was so great that it was undoubtedly impossible for large numbers of German forces to escape from the thickly wooded region of the Woevre, extending northward from St. Mihiel.

The line of battle suggested by Pershing's bulletin, when plotted on the map tonight, shows that the American forces have not only flattened out the salient, but gone beyond its northern base toward the heights along the Moselle and in the general direction of Metz.

On the left flank our forces have taken Herbeuville, Thillot, Hattonville, and St. Benoit. On the right flank the American forces have gone beyond Thiaucourt and have captured Xammes, Jaulny, and Vieville. Jaulny, the most advanced of these points, is nearly two miles north of Thiaucourt. How much further the right flank of the American Army has advanced in a northeastern direction beyond Jaulny and Vieville is not disclosed by General Pershing, but there is a strong belief here, especially in view of the unofficial report from London which said that the American line runs from Pagny "directly" to Hattonville, that General Pershing's forces are operating ahead of the line he has named.

The General merely reported places "included" in the American line, and this phrasing of his communiqué is susceptible of a construction that his forces are actually beyond the point named as being within the line.

Great interest was displayed here early tonight in the unofficial report from London about the American line running from Pagny "directly" to Hattonville. This was so far in advance of the line of Fresnes, Combres, Vigneulles, and Thiaucourt, as marked by the French night official communiqué, that there was a disposition to regard the London dispatch as representing a difference in time, when compared with the French statement, or as a premature statement of the situation. But when General Pershing's communiqué showed that the places behind the American front were nearly all north of the line furnished by the French communiqué, this led to the attachment of more importance to the unofficial dispatch from London.

Hattonville, the town mentioned in the London dispatch, is confirmed by General Pershing as being within our lines. Xammes, Jaulny, and Vieville, also enumerated by General Pershing, are all in the general direction of Pagny, and the latter point, Vieville, is less than six miles from Pagny.

It would not have been difficult, unless German resistance was strong in that direction, for American cavalry to have covered this distance over the main highway which runs from Thiaucourt through Preny, to the heights overlooking Pagny.

If American troops are actually at Pagny they have carried the war to the German border, for the boundary line between German Lorraine and France touches the Moselle River at the point marked on the map by the middle of the river opposite Pagny.

Official Reports of the Day's Operations

British

LONDON, Sept. 13.

Night Report—In the Vermand and Jeancourt sector, northwest of St. Quentin, our troops have gained ground in contact with the enemy's advanced detachments and have taken prisoners.

Southwest of La Bassée our progress has continued in spite of the opposition from hostile machine guns. Our troops have gained possession of Fosse 8 de Béthune and of the slag heap adjoining it. This slag heap, known as "the Dump," forms an important local feature, giving wide observation over the surrounding country.

To the north of it our troops hold the German trench lines immediately west of Auchy-lez-La Bassée and are pressing forward into the village.

We captured a few prisoners during the night in the neighborhood of Zillebeke Lake.

Day Report—Yesterday English troops gained possession of Holnon Wood, driving the enemy from the localities in which he offered resistance.

Further north our line has been advanced to the east of the village of Jeancourt, which is in our hands.

In the course of the evening strong hostile forces, assisted by a squadron of low-flying airplanes, attacked our new positions at Havrincourt and were repulsed with great loss.

Opposite Moeuvres hostile infantry assembling for a counterattack were observed and subjected to a heavy and accurate fire by our artillery. The attack which developed subsequently was completely unsuccessful, the few Germans who reached our positions being killed or taken prisoners.

Progress was made by our troops during the night to the west of Auchy-lez-La Bassée.

PARIS, Sept. 13.

Night Report (summarized, no text received).—Combres, Fresnes, Vigneuelles, and Thiaucourt now mark the battling ground on the Lorraine front. The German resistance is stubborn, but prisoners continue streaming to the rear.

Further progress has been made between Savy and the St. Quentin-Ham Road, and also to the north of Manteuil-la-Fosse, in the Rheims sector.

Two German counterattacks were repulsed in the neighborhood of Laffaux and Moisy.

Day Report—West of St. Quentin French troops have occupied the village of Savy.

In Champagne strong German raids were repulsed.

In the region of Verdun we made a number of raids and returned with prisoners.

BERLIN, Sept. 13, (via London.)

Night Report—The day was quieter on the fighting fronts.

Between the Meuse and the Moselle [where the Americans are carrying out their offensive] the enemy thus far has not renewed his attack.

Day Report—In the neighborhood of the coast and northeast of Bixschoote we carried out successfully minor enterprises. Between Ypres and Armentières enemy reconnoitring advances failed. British partial attacks south and west of Fleurbaix and a strong British advance northwest of Hulluch were repulsed.

Between the roads leading from Arras and Péronne to Cambrai the enemy early yesterday continued his attacks under the strongest artillery preparation. They failed with heavy losses to the enemy. Our well-directed artillery fire took a prominent part in our successful defense. Wherever the English penetrated our lines our infantry drove them out again in counterattacks.

Havrincourt is in the hands of the enemy.

Fresh attacks of the enemy in the evening between Moeuvres and Gouzeaucourt were repulsed.

Between the Ailette and the Aisne the artillery fighting increased at intervals. In minor infantry engagements in Champagne our thrusting troops brought back prisoners from the enemy lines near Le Mesnil.

Yesterday French and Americans attacked the salient at St. Mihiel, near Combres Height and south thereof, as well as between the heights of Lorraine and the Moselle.

In anticipation of such an attack the evacuation of this salient, liable to encirclement on both sides, which had been under consideration for years, was begun a few days ago. We did not, therefore, fight the battle to a finish, but carried out the movements contemplated, which the enemy was unable to prevent.

The French, who advanced on the heights to the east of the Meuse, were repulsed. Combres Height, which was lost temporarily, was recaptured by Landwehr troops. South of it, in strong resistance, Austro-Hungarians, together with the troops fighting between the Meuse and the Moselle, assured the retreat of the divisions standing at St. Mihiel.

Between the Côte Lorraine and the Moselle an enemy attack on Thiaucourt gained ground. Reserves intercepted the thrust of the enemy. Southwest of Thiaucourt and west of the Moselle the enemy was repulsed.

In the night the evacuation of the salient was completed without interference. We are now standing on new lines which had been prepared.

An advance by us at Hartmanns-Weilerkopf brought in prisoners.

BRITISH CONGRATULATE PERSHING AND HIS MEN

Newspapers Say the United States May Well Be Proud of the Army's Achievement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 14.—British congratulations to America's First Army are conveyed in warmest tones by the press this morning. Under the heading, "America Victrix," The Daily News says that the vanguard of the American army has brilliantly signalized its entry into the war as an independent force and adds:

"What has happened is that the enemy had prepared to retire at his leisure and was given no time to carry out his project. What was to have been an orderly withdrawal was converted by the Americans into a precipitate flight in which 15,000 prisoners, to say nothing of the dead and wounded, were left behind. The Americans at Pragny are separated by little more than the breadth of the Moselle from German territory. It is probable, indeed, that they are already across the river and on the sacred soil of the Fatherland at a distance of not more than twelve miles from Metz. Mention of the great frontier fortress must raise no premature expectations, for it is by no means probable that an immediate assault on the city is intended."

"General Pershing and his brave troops," says The Daily Chronicle, "deserve congratulations on their very skillful and efficient piece of work. Its accomplishment justifies the high hopes formed of the American troops. They had already given proof of their fine fighting qualities in hard-fought battles when they were incorporated with the French and British armies. Now in Lorraine they have supplied a striking illustration of their capacity to carry through successfully an independent operation on a considerable scale. The United States may well be proud of the manner in which its young army has comported itself in its first offensive on its own initiative."

BEGAN EVACUATION DAYS AGO, SAYS BERLIN

Official Statement Says the German Withdrawal Was "Completed Without Interference."

BERLIN, (via London,) Sept. 13.—"We are now standing on our new lines which have been prepared," says the official statement reporting military operations on the western front issued today by the German General Staff.

"During the night," the statement adds, "the evacuation of the (St. Mihiel) salient, which was liable to encirclement, and which had been under consideration for some years, was completed without interference.

"In anticipation of the attack of the French and Americans on the St. Mihiel salient we began evacuating this salient a few days ago."

ALLIED AVIATORS BOMB METZ AND COURCELLES

Assail Germans in Rear While Pershing's Men Push Through at St. Mihiel Salient.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—While the American First Army was pressing forward through the St. Mihiel salient allied aviators were intensively bombing the German railroads around Metz and Courcelles, according to a communication issued by the Air Ministry tonight. The aviators also attacked the Metz station and transports with good results. The text of the Air Ministry's statement follows:

"On the night of Sept. 12-13, in conjunction with the attack of the American First Army, the railways at Metz-Sablon and Courcelles (in the eastern outskirts of Metz) were heavily bombed by us with good results.

"The Metz station, searchlights, and transports were attacked with machine gun fire.

"On the 13th inst., in favorable weather, operations were continued against the Metz-Sablon and other railway junctions and enemy transports on the battlefront. Nearly eight and a half tons of bombs were dropped, and good results were observed.

"One hostile machine was destroyed. Two of our machines are missing."

SALUTED BY CLEMENCEAU.

Premier's Newspaper Hails Entrance of Our Forces Into Conflict.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—A tribute to the new American Field Army on the occasion of its first offensive from Premier Clemenceau's newspaper, L'Homme Libre, is quoted today in an official French dispatch.

Recalling the part played by the American soldiers fighting with the French and the English in the Somme Valley, and that later on American divisions covered themselves with glory in front of Château-Thierry and on the banks of the Marne the paper says:

"Now the Americans join in the conflict no longer as contributors to the French and English forces, but as an autonomous force acting on their own resources, manoeuvring according to tactics of their own, and are likely to keep surprises in store for the enemy. The American Army is there. Let us joyfully salute her splendid soldiers overflowing with youth and courage. The German leaders must be feeling some anxiety, as they know how resolute the Americans are. President Wilson has pointed out that the ending of the war calls for no admission of compromise.

"Samuel Gompers, leader of the labor party, said in his turn: 'This is no longer a war, but a crusade. A crusade undertaken with unalterable enthusiasm and steady faith in final triumph.'

"Yesterday was a good day for the Allies."

Americans Charged German Machine Guns Without Orders.

PARIS, Sept. 13, (Reuter.)—About 100 of the first American wounded arriving in the rear from the St. Mihiel sector give the impression that the battle was a great victory and full of promise for the future. The American troops exhibited splendid dash, some of the regiments moving to the assault with flags flying and singing the Marseillaise.

One of the principal points of support in the enemy's defense was taken at the point of the bayonet. Despite fierce resistance, the Germans were completely overthrown and suffered exceptionally heavy losses.

The American units co-operated splendidly with the French. One American officer, who was wounded during the hottest part of the battle, relates that a small French detachment found itself in difficulties in a wood full of machine guns.

Without waiting for orders the Americans advanced spontaneously to turn the position and, reaching the rear of the wood, precipitated themselves on the enemy and slaughtered the gunners on their weapons.

According to La Liberté, at the capture of a certain town the first officer to enter at the head of his troops was Captain Michel Clemenceau, son of the French Prime Minister. This town was stubbornly defended by two German divisions, great numbers of whom remained as prisoners, in addition to the many killed.

PARIS, Sept. 13, (Associated Press.)—Officers of the American Headquarters Staff expected a desperate resistance where the armies are now battling in the St. Mihiel sector. The presence of Field Marshal Hindenburg at the Metz fortress four days ago conveyed the impression that the Germans anticipated an American attack and were resolved to defend their positions to the last extremity.

AMERICAN OFFICERS KNOW TOUL SECTOR

Terrain Studied by West Pointers for Twenty Years as Part of Their Education.

Representative Charles Pope Caldwell of the Second New York District, who is a member of the Committee on Military Affairs, declared yesterday at Forest Hills, where he lives, that the reason the American forces in France were selected to take over the Toul sector was because every West Point graduate in the last twenty years had become thoroughly familiar with its geography and topography through study of maps and technical descriptions. The American War College, he said, has been studying the terrain there for two decades, not because they ever expected that American armies would operate there, but because the lie of the land afforded an interesting study. Representative Caldwell came to New York from Washington to attend the Red Cross fair and carnival at Forest Hills.

"The very nature of the land itself caused the American War College to undertake this study," declared Representative Caldwell. "There is not a mile of the country where the American Army is now located that they have not known for years. They have studied it intimately. Every officer of the army has learned how to so dispose his force as to pass through right where the Americans are now operating. Because of this knowledge, the American army officers have a tremendous advantage over the Huns.

"The American Army has made such splendid headway and they are so familiar with the lie of the land that it would not surprise me if they were in Metz by Saturday of next week."

Representative Caldwell said he did not believe the war would end next year, and declared that it would take four to six years to get to Berlin. The Congressman intimated that he was planning to enter the National Army. He registered for the draft on Thursday and said he would not ask another to do something he would not do himself.

PERSHING AFTER ORE REGION.

Germans Get 80 Per Cent. of Steel for Armaments from Briey.

Whatever may be the strategic objectives of the First American Army in blotting out the St. Mihiel salient, a glance at the map will show that a tactical, economic objective lies directly in its path. This is the famous Bassin de Briey, whose mines since the war began have furnished the armaments of Germany with 80 per cent. of their steel, and without which, according to the best German authorities, Ludendorff could not carry on the war for three months. It was to confirm the German occupation of this region that the offensive against Verdun was launched in February, 1916. The French Senator Henry Berenger has called the Bassin de Briey "the key to the war."

This mining region, with the greatest output in the world, to which the little village of Briey, with a population of 2,000, fourteen miles northwest of Metz, gives its name, covers an area of 225 square miles, lying on both sides of the frontier from and beyond the Belgian-Luxemburg-Franco-German junction to within five miles of Pont-à-Mousson. Its extreme length is thirty-five miles; its extreme width, from Dudelange in Luxemburg to Baroncourt in France, is twenty-one.

The frontier line which Germany imposed on France by the Treaty of Frankfort of May 10, 1871, practically divided the mine fields. Nevertheless, from that date down to the opening of the war, when the entire region was overrun by the Germans, the French half produced 90 per cent. of the iron mined in France.

Before the present war Germany was producing annually 28,000,000 tons of iron ore of which 21,000,000 came from the region annexed in 1871. France was producing 22,000,000 tons, of which 15,000,000 came from that part of the Bassin de Briey left her by the Frankfort treaty.

Since the war began France has been obliged to obtain most of her iron from England and the United States, while Germany has not only, for four successive years, added to her annual output of 28,000,000 tons the 15,000,000 tons obtained from France, but, by working the Luxemburg mines, has obtained 6,000,000 more, which gives her a total of 49,000,000 tons of iron ore per annum, all but 7,000,000 tons of which comes from the Bassin de Briey.

In 1916 the United Kingdom purchased 13,494,658 tons and imported 6,933,767. In the same year the United States mined 39,434,797.

Paris and London Newspapers Comment with Enthusiasm on American Victory.

EXPECTING BIGGER BLOW

Experts Regard New Thrust as Serious Setback to German Reorganization Plans.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—News of America's first independent offensive on the western front has thrilled France. The newspapers print the battlefront dispatches in the largest type and accompany them with maps and explanations regarding the ground fought over. No one doubts that the effort was crowned with full success.

Editorial writers pay a tribute to the moderation of General Pershing's official communication which abstained from mentioning the villages regained or surrounded in the imposing advance.

There had been rumors for weeks past of a coming American offensive, various sectors being given by those "well informed," but as nothing came the people thought of something else, and today's news lost nothing of its effect on this account.

All the military commentators dwell at great length on the importance of the first large scale operation by the Americans. Colonel de Thomasson, one of the best-known French military writers, says:

"It may be said at once that General Pershing's shock army has given fresh proof of the very high value of the American troops. To have crossed in one bound the —— (deleted) is an exploit the more brilliant in that in this Woevre region there can be no question of manoeuvring. Our allies are penetrating into very powerful organizations.

"During the year 1917 the interior of the St. Mihiel pocket was, so to say, honeycombed with fortified works. While the Wotan, Siegfried, and Albersh lines were organized from Lens to the Chemin-des-Dames, the Germans had constructed positions in an almost straight line from Bezonvaux (northeast of Verdun and seven miles west of Etain) to Noveant-sur-Moselle, running through Labeuville and Puzieux.

"We even believed in the Spring of 1917 that the enemy was about to abandon the St. Mihiel salient at the same time as the Lassigny one. They did not, because they desired, first, to continue to encircle Verdun from the East; second, to cut at St. Mihiel the Commercy-Verdun railroad, obliging us to avoid the Commercy station and make a detour by Condrecourt to communicate with Nancy; third, to keep the Briey mining basin far from the firing line. Those probably were the same reasons which stopped General Ludendorff recently from straightening the front between the Meuse Heights and the Moselle, an operation which would have given him much needed effectives.

"But the German Staff was not content with the Bezonvaux-Noveant line, knowing how difficult evacuation of the St. Mihiel salient would be in case of an attack on our part. He multiplied his lines of resistance parallel to the Woevre front, that is to say, to the front Apremont-Bois le Pretre. There is hardly any open ground between this front and the Bezonvaux-Noveant line. The main artery of the whole pocket is the railroad constructed by the Germans from Chambley to Vineulles, with the most important branch to the west of Dampvitoux Wood.

"About the first of September a detachment of the German army, commanded by General Fuchs, and belonging to the von Gallwitz group, held the line from the Etain-Verdun road to the Bois le Pretre. It is possible that Fuchs has been reinforced in the last few days, von Hindenburg's recent visit to Lorraine seeming to show that the Germans were beginning to get uneasy about that side.

"However that may be, here is Ludendorff once more stopped from getting to work on the reconstitution of his army, now an indispensable operation—the more so as the British, French, and Belgian communiqués prove that we are not giving him any rest between the North Sea and the Aisne."

The entire press joins in praise of the American initiative and enterprise in undertaking the task. Gaulois says:

"The loss of the essential pivot of St. Mihiel, the reduction of which is the task set themselves by the magnificently commanded and trained American troops, would be a real disaster for the Germans, and the consequences would be decisive on later operations."

L'Homme Libre, Premier Clemenceau's paper, says:

"It is no longer feudal Germany's mailed fist shaking the allied front. It is the well-armed hand of the young republic demolishing the Prussian fortress and making a breach where the starry flag will find the road to victory."

News Stirs London.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The assault on the St. Mihiel salient dominates the news columns of the newspapers today, which feature it with the biggest headlines. The opening blow in Marshal Foch's great offensive scheme claims attention in any case, but this one has a special attraction, as the first stroke of the independent American army under direct American command and as such is hailed as one of the milestones of the war. That the blow thus far has succeeded so well and brought such a large haul of prisoners affords an opportunity for congratulations by the press.

"The day adds a glowing page of glory to American history," says The Graphic, "and it will be a proud recollection for America that her sons had a lion's share in wiping off the battle map a salient which persisted there for almost four years."

The Daily News calls attention to the "strikingly restrained" tone of General Pershing's communiqué, and says:

"This new formidable thrust adds to the enemy's perplexities and gives first proof of the commanding superiority and resources of the Allies, which foreshadows the future course of the war."

The Daily Mail describes the incident as "one of the great moments of the war."

"The enemy," says The Times, "has very good reason for disentangling himself without delay. He is in a sack and the strings are being drawn on both sides. Unless he can repel one or the other of the American forces he must resort with all speed to 'the elastic defensive' he has been practicing on the Marne and the Somme or run the risk of having the strings drawn and the neck of the sack closed. The stroke is well conceived and the Americans may be trusted to deliver it with their usual vigor and determination."

The British public had been anxiously looking for another American move, but hardly expected it so soon. According to British correspondents at the front, the news was heard there with the greatest enthusiasm.

ALSATIANS FELICITATE PERSHING ON BIRTHDAY

Hope to Celebrate Success with Him Soon—Commander of Our Forces Is 58.

General Pershing was 58 years old yesterday. Many cable messages of congratulation were sent to him, one of them from the Association Générale des Alsaciens-Lorrains d'Amérique, expressing hope for a speedy triumph of American arms and the delivery of their homeland and the land of General Pershing's ancestors. The text of the cablegram is as follows:

General John J. Pershing, Commander of the American Expeditionary Forces.

While under your honorable command the glorious descendants of the heroes of 1776 and of Gettysburg astound the world with their deeds, inspired only by love of liberty and democracy, The Alsatian-Lorrainers of America, deeply moved that a noble descendant of an Alsatian family should have been chosen to destroy odious chains with our Foch, Petain, Haig, and Diaz, send you on occasion of your birthday heartfelt wishes for great military success in 1918, and hope to celebrate shortly with you in the village of family Pfloershing the victory of civilization and the deliverance of oppressed peoples.

Association Générale des Alsaciens-Lorrains d'Amérique.

John Joseph Pershing was born on Sept. 13, 1860, in a little shanty two miles west of Laclede, Linn County, Mo. His father was a poor storekeeper. The boy worked on a farm and later became a district school teacher. At 20 he was graduated from the Normal School and planned to continue as a teacher or to become a lawyer. In the meantime, however, announcement was made that a competitive examination would be held for an appointment to West Point, and Pershing passed with the highest marks.

BRITISH AGAIN CUT HINDENBURG LINE and determined counterattack, inflicting severe losses on the enemy.

Attack by 62d Division.

Yesterday morning the 62d Division of Yorkshire troops, on the left of the Rifles, who had New Zealanders on the right, assembled for an attack from Havrincourt to Gouzeaucourt. The Rifle Brigade and King's Royal Rifles changed their front and drew up before the battle on the east edge of Havrincourt Wood, spending anxious hours there lest the enemy should soak them with gas. But when dawn came on, a day of four weather, they still breathed freely, and when our guns opened fire went ahead.

There was no preliminary bombardment beyond the usual slugging of guns, brought up, as I saw them today, by miracles of labor through miles of old battlefields now deep in mud. At the beginning of the battle they opened rapid fire and provided a creeping barrage behind which our men marched to meet their enemy.

It was no surprise to the Germans. On the south of our new front of attack by Gouzeacourte they had brought up their Jaeger division and opposite the Yorkshire men and Rifles they had their 113th and 52d Divisions, both of which have suffered heavily in recent fighting and have not received any drafts to make up their wastage, a most remarkable state of affairs observed elsewhere.

During these battles of the month, which have important significance as revealing almost unexpected weakness in the German resources of man power, the troops here had been ordered to hold on to the Havrincourt, Trescault, and Gouzeaucourt line of defense at any price in blood, and, on the whole, they did their best to fulfill this command.

Yesterday they fought hard, especially hard in the line which defended the crest of the ridge, though the men in the foremost lines below the crest were broken easily. They were very strong on the ridge behind Trescault village and in a strong point called Bilhem Farm, at the end of the spur, and it was there that the riflemen had the greatest trouble with machine gunners and German infantry.

There was a trench, one of our old trenches newly organized, bending backward from Trescault on the outer boundary of our objective for about 400 yards, which was recognized by a battalion commander at the end of the day's fighting, and he found it held by a strong force of the enemy. His men then attacked it, and after a sharp encounter with the Germans, who resisted fiercely, captured it with 140 prisoners and eighteen machine guns.

The strong point of Bilhem Farm, from which I once saw our tanks going into action, was taken very neatly by an encircling movement of two small bodies of riflemen, who worked north and south of it and joined hands on the other side.

Havrincourt Heights Taken.

Meanwhile Yorkshires of the 62d Division had stormed the Heights of Havrincourt, gaining the château and its grounds and a clear view over the enemy positions below and away to Bourlon Wood, and on the south New Zealanders were pushing forward to Gouzeaucourt Wood, which they took in the evening.

Gradually through the day the numbers of prisoners increased as their dugouts and hiding places were searched, until at night from all parts of this front over 1,600 had dribbled back.

For a time it seemed likely that the enemy was preparing to deliver a formidable counterattack. His troops were seen massing in valleys and sunken roads, and low-flying airplanes came out in reconnoissance to support the infantry.

A bombing and machine-gunning attack was delivered at 7 o'clock last night against the Yorkshires and Rifles, but the British gunfire smashed it, and small parties of men were dealt with by rifle fire. It is possible they will try again, but while I was on that front today there was no German activity beyond potshots from long range.

I passed a little group of prisoners newly caught this morning, mostly of the 113th Division, and many of those taken yesterday were resting on their way back in ruins of their own making in this world of ruin. They were muddy but not ill clad. I noticed especially their good field boots and their thick gray tunics.

They stared about them in an animal way, like trapped beasts, but were alert and respectful when spoken to by the British officers, and seemed content to sit and stare at the passing of the men and guns.

It is a queer sensation to go through this country again, beyond Bapaume, down old roads which were familiar to us last year, through these fields and villages where amidst old ruin and wreckage the British built thousands of huts and many officers' clubs and cinema sheds, and pitched camps of tents and established workshops, and camouflaged gun positions.

For a time, which now seems like a nightmare, all that sweep of country was overrun again by the enemy and was twenty miles or more behind his lines. And now once again the evil spell has been lifted from it. The gray wolves have gone and only their lairs remain and the things that belonged to their brief tenancy—things tragic and things abominable.

Everywhere now among the old British graves are the graves of German soldiers. They stick up out of mud and swamps in these ravaged fields with wooden crosses, different in shope from the British, and surmounted with the steel helmets camouflaged by streaks of color, belonging to the men below who walked in them down these roads.

Dead bodies, not yet buried, and dead horses lie amid the muckheaps of these battlefields, and everywhere there are old boots, old bottles, strips of field gray uniforms, haversacks, stickbombs, German letters, the litter of the masses of men who went away in a hurry.

They are great sign writers, these Germans, and everywhere for miles and miles at every turn in the road and at every broken wall, leading to a village smashed to dust and ashes, there are notices on big boards warning the German soldiers not to loiter there because of the English aircraft, pointing the way to dugouts and fire trenches.

They are the notices of the life that passed a few days ago or a few weeks ago and from them one is able to picture in one's mind how it all looked here when thousands of field gray men swarmed in all these places.

The spirit of the gray wolf still lurks about these ruins because wherever men have been they leave a little of themselves like a ghostly exaltation.

In a wood not far from Havrincourt today there were more than a few relics of the late German occupation.

Finely camouflaged under trees, the Fourteenth Reserve Corps had made their headquarters here when the place was beyond the British gun range, and, as becomes the grandeur of a German corps staff and the comfort of such officers, the German soldiers had labored to make a pleasant dwelling place for them.

They had built a large number of wooden bungalows, beautifully fitted up with cupboards and panels, like Summer houses in a garden suburb. Each small house was provided with a dugout, approached from an indoor entrance, to which the German staff officers might descend with dignity at the first distant drone of an English airplane.

edence to the front's calls for America's armies and their provisioning."

The speaker said that the Germans had only to see that the war continued to be waged in a foreign country, that the Germans were fighting for their lives and their homes, and that the enemy's only hope was that the Germans would collapse inwardly sooner than they. He asserted that the enemy attempts to sow discord were unavailing and that the Germans were strong enough to reach a decision "in our differences of opinion regarding economic [illegible] and political rights, even down to the food question."

Herr von Payer urged the necessity of the Germans holding together in the hour of danger, and said that disappointed hopes must be prevented, justified hopes fulfilled, and actually existing wrongs redressed.

Suffrage a German Question.

Regarding the Prussian Suffrage bill, which he considered of prime importance, he said that "it is no longer Prussian, but eminently a German question," and on its decision depended the confidence which the population placed in the Prussian and the Imperial Government. Further postponement, he said, was not permissible, adding, "Moreover, it is my belief that the decision of the Prussian Government may be regarded as already taken, and if equal suffrage does not issue from the committee of the upper house the Government will proceed to dissolution."

Herr von Payer considered that the present terrible struggle would not end with a peace of the customary character. A mere glance at the state of complete exhaustion of the world excluded such a possibility.

"In former peace negotiations," he said, "the middle and lower classes when it came to the council table fell quietly into the background. This is now over and the governments will conclude the coming peace treaties in close harmony with the entire people.

"The main thing for them in peace is not the acquisition of land, treasure, and glory; they aim, nowadays at least, at the conclusion of a lasting peace, and therefore there will be no peace of conquest."

Herr von Payer considered that this might mean disappointment and renunciation to Germany's enemies which would be almost equivalent to a confession of defeat, as "they have made the destruction and political shattering of us and our allies their aim."

Russia, he thought, might have remained in capable existence if she had granted tolerable conditions to the enslaved races by a federal constitution.

"She collapsed," the Vice Chancellor said, "because she could not maintain internal cohesion. Our victories and those of our allies now have given the subjects of that colossal empire an opportunity to liberate themselves."

The Vice Chancellor said it was unthinkable that Germany would contribute to the restoration of the "despotic Russian Empire, which, by its mere existence, always menaced the world.

"We cannot hand over Poland to Russia," he added, "nor can we assist in having Finland again placed under the Russian yoke. We cannot leave to their fate the border States which lie on the German frontier and the Baltic to be subjected against their will to Russian imperialism or thrown into the perils of civil war and anarchy.

"In fact, these States, having come to an understanding with us, as those most nearly interested, can only be an advantage to the world, and we can never permit any one to meddle with us in this matter from the standpoint of the present European balance of power, or rather British predominance."

Herr von Payer asserted that Germany had peace in the East and would not submit to the Entente for its approval or alteration the peace treaties with the Ukraine, Russia and Rumania.

"For the rest, the territorial possessions which existed before the war can everywhere be restored," the speaker added. "A preliminary condition for us and our allies is that all the territory should again be restored which we possessed on Aug. 1, 1914. Germany must, therefore, in the first place, receive back her colonies, in which connection the idea of an exchange on the grounds of expediency need not be excluded.

"We Germans, as soon as peace is concluded, can evacuate the occupied regions. We can, when once things have been got to that stage, restore Belgium. If we and our allies are once again in possession of what belonged to us and if we first are sure that in Belgium no other State will be more favorably placed than we, then Belgium, I think I may say, can be given back without encumbrance and without reserve."

The Vice Chancellor said a requisite understanding between Germany and Belgium was easier because their economic interests frequently were parallel and that Belgium was directly dependent upon Germany as a hinterland. He had no reason to doubt that the Flemish question could be solved in accordance with the dictates of justice and wise statesmanship.

Belgium "No Innocent Victim."

"It is hypocrisy to represent Belgium as the innocent victim of our policy," Herr von Payer said, "and to clothe her, as it were, in the white garment of innocence. The Belgian Government—and that is what matters, not the Belgian people—took an active part in Great Britain's policy of encircling Germany."

The Vice Chancellor said there still was the question of war indemnities from one or the other party, and had Germany "been allowed to pursue her work in peace there would have been no war or injury."

"There can be no question, therefore, of our paying," von Payer said, "but only whether we should receive compensation for the injuries inflicted on us. We are deeply convinced that as the innocent and attacked party we have a right to indemnification. To go on prosecuting the war, however, to that point would cost us such heavy sacrifices, irreparable by money, that we prefer, on calm reflection, and even with our favorable military situation, to abandon this idea, quite apart from the question of jeopardizing a future peace which would be inevitable if compensation were forcibly urged.

"Unrealizable conditions of peace, of course, could not be laid down for our participation in the peace negotiations. We laugh at the idea that we should first penitently ask for mercy before we are admitted. We laugh at the fools who babble of revenge. I have wished only to show that peace by understanding will bring nothing humiliating for us nor a period of misery and wretchedness.

"Strong and courageous in the consciousness of our invincibility, equal among the nations of the earth, we will lead a life of labor, but also with contentment and with an assured future. In common with others we will protect the world's peace from future dangers.

"It would be an illusion to calculate on will to peace in those circles among our enemies which are responsible for the opening and the continuing of hostilities. For years they have been living on the inflaming of war passions. They cannot admit to their countrymen that their aims are unattainable and that their sacrifices have been made in vain.

"Others among those peoples will think differently. Moreover, they will prevail sooner or later. Until then, however, there remains nothing for us to do but to defend our lives.

"We place on the shoulders of our enemies the responsibility for the blood which will yet fall, but whoever will not hear must fall. On our outer and inner front the will to destruction of our enemies will be shattered.

"Germany's strength, capacity, courage, and self-sacrifice, to which for four years we owe everything, must teach them that it has become hopeless for them to continue to wage this baneful war.

"Despite everything, the peace treaty will have purely positive contents. The nations of the earth cry out for further preservation from the further misery of wars, for leagues of nations, for international courts of arbitration, and agreements regarding equal disarmament, which cries the enemy Governments have made their own, and the fulfillment of which would not be wrecked by the German Government's opposition. We are, on the contrary, ready to collaborate to the best of our ability."

Payer said these ideas were not new to Germany, and continued:

"We desire to have a disarmament agreement on the condition of complete reciprocity applied not merely to land armies, but even to naval forces. In pursuance of the same idea and even going beyond it, we will raise in the negotiations a demand for the freedom of the seas and sea routes, for the open door in all oversea possessions, and for the protection of private property at sea. And if negotiations take place regarding the protection of small nations and of national minorities in individual States, we shall willingly advocate international arrangements which will act for deliverance in countries under Great Britain's domination."

SMUTS ANSWERS PEACE TALK.

Says Foe Won't Get Better Terms Than Were Offered Last Year.

NEWCASTLE, England, Sept. 12.—The German people ought to know that if they had dreamed of getting better peace terms from the Entente than those formulated last January, they were mistaken, said General Jan Christian Smuts, member of the Privy Council, in an address today, when the freedom of the city was presented to him.

The American army next year would be bigger than the British and French armies combined, General Smuts declared, and would be employed in a great offensive effort then.

HAIG MAKES GAIN NEAR ST. QUENTIN

Seizes More Positions in the Vermand Region, Northwest of the City.

LONDON, Sept. 13. — Continued British pressure against the German line resulted today in the occupation of additional territory northwest of St. Quentin, in the region of Vermand and Jeancourt.

Yesterday, according to unofficial reports from the Cambrai front, the British penetrated enemy positions as much as 2,000 yards at some points.

Last night the Germans made a counterattack against the village of Havrincourt, employing airplanes in co-operation with infantry, but were repulsed with heavy loss. Another attempt in the neighborhood of Moeuvres, on the Canal du Nord, west of Cambrai, was a complete failure.

In the La Bassée sector the British have made further progress, having captured an elevation which gives them a wide view over the low-lying surrounding country.

The French have also advanced nearer to St. Quentin from the west, having occupied the village of Savy, about five miles to the southwest.

Haig's New Gains Toward Cambrai.

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Sept. 13, (Associated Press.)—British forces in their advance yesterday in the Havrincourt sector, southwest of Cambrai, penetrated the German positions in some places to a depth of 2,000 yards. There are still some pockets of the enemy to clear out at various points about Havrincourt, but the operation there, as a whole, was completely successful.

A counterattack against Moeuvres, which was begun at 6 o'clock in the evening, was disastrous for the Germans. Enemy troops had been brought up for the charge, and were about to advance, when they were detected by British artillerymen, who cut loose with a terrific barrage, inflicting very heavy casualties. The attack was completely repulsed. Some few of the hardier Germans fought their way into the village, but they were negligible in number and easily dealt with.

On the southern battlefront the British yesterday occupied Holnon and St. Quentin Woods, with slight opposition. The Australians also advanced their line in the vicinity of Jeancourt, north of Vermand, and have their trenches now east of Jeancourt.

Fighting continued yesterday in the La Bassée sector, where the British occupied the hamlet of Les Briques, which lies just southwest of La Bassée.

The German attack on Havrincourt was delivered with the support of aircraft just before dusk. The gray-coated infantry came charging along the high ground from the east, while their battle planes circled overhead for the purpose of directing the movement and doing what damage they could with their machine guns.

The British gunners and riflemen, however, were prepared for the assault and swept the advancing troops with such a heavy fire that the latter were forced to retire.

In the case of both the attack at Havrincourt and that at Moeuvres the enemy counterblows thus failed to shake the British from their hold on these villages, which are of great military importance because they lie on high ground that dominates much of the surrounding territory. This morning the victorious troops were firmly installed on a line swung out well about Havrincourt into the German zone, thereby giving the British a grip on the forward defenses of the Hindenburg line here.

Canadians Beat Germans Back.

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN THE FIELD, Sept. 12, (Canadian Press.)—The enemy did not hold for long the bridgehead he established night before last on the west side of the Canal du Nord at Sauchy-Cauchy, northwest of Cambrai. Quebec troops raided the post last night, and not only drove the enemy across the canal, but carried the war into his own territory, returning with prisoners.

Under the worst possible weather conditions the Canadian troops holding the extremely difficult salient formed by the Bensée River and the Canal du Nord are digging themselves in. Not content with cross shell fire from the north and east, the enemy has gas-shelled the villages in this sector, including Ecourt - St. Quentin, Rumaucourt, and Saudemont.

Had it not been overshadowed by the brilliant offensive of the last month, the gallant defensive work in this triangle, in which Quebec, Eastern and Western Ontario, Manitoba, and Albert infantry are engaged, as well as former mounted units, would rank as a major instead of a minor operation.

AUSTRIAN CZECHS ARE GROWING BOLDER

Prelates Call for Independence—German Correspondent Impugns Charles's Good Faith.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 13.—The Austrian situation continues to alarm Germany. The Deutsche Zeitung prints a long message from Vienna on the situation, saying:

"The development of political events in Austria strides with seven-leagued boots toward a decisive point.

"Ever more boldly does Czech treason raise its head and the more distinctly the signs of catastrophe appear the less inclined does the Government seem to be to oppose them. A few days ago the Czech religious heads of all the Bohemian dioceses issued a manifesto demanding an independent Czech State, and in that document there is not the slightest mention of the Austrian dynasty or Government.

"The Czechs are not frightened to declare that an independent Czech state is now only a matter of weeks or months."

The correspondent thinks the Austrian Government is playing into the hands of the Entente in allowing itself to be driven along by the Czechs, which is just what the Entente desires. The Austrian Government's approval of a scheme for a federal Austria would, he says, be regarded by the Germans in Austria as the most shameful capitulation in history.

NEW YORKERS WIN CROSSES.

Sergt. McKenna and Private Yorx of 165th Decorated by Pershing.

Two of the eighteen American soldiers in France to whom General Pershing has recently awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery are Sergeant Herbert F. McKenna and Private Victor Van Yorx, both of the 165th Infantry, formerly the 69th New York Infantry.

Sergeant McKenna saw service on the Mexican border before he went to France. He formerly lived at the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin, 375 Lafayette Street. His friends there think that he received the cross for leading his platoon in a raid in which there was severe fighting. Sergeant McKenna is one of the fourteen boys from the mission in the 165th Infantry.

Private Van Yorx is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Van Yorx of 279 Summit Avenue, Mount Vernon, N. Y. In April, 1917, Van Yorx, who was then only 18, joined the 7th Regiment, with his older brother Theodore, Jr. A short time later they were transferred to the 69th, and they were sent to France in October. Both boys were gassed in March.

Victor was recently wounded twice while fighting at the Ourcq River. In a letter to his mother describing a charge, in which Company K of the 165th Regiment participated, he said:

"We went ahead in spurts. We continued this right down to the river, and then started to do with our bayonets what some of our bullets had missed. The Lieutenant had told us that the river was only two feet deep, so I jumped right in. It was right up to my chin. I scrambled up on the other side in time to see a squarehead making half way up the hill behind the river with a machine gun on his back. He was figuring on putting it in a shell hole and then mowing us down as we came out of the fringe of woods. That's what he figured, but my gun was loaded, and I let him have a shot right in the head. Machine gun and Fritz just laid down for a rest. After I saw my man drop I felt as if I could lick the world.

"In that little fringe of woods we captured twelve machine guns. The rest of them had moved up the hill. We had to go through the same thing again. I was running right toward a gun when a big 'fathead' climbed out with his hands over his head and started to yell 'Kamerad.' All he got out was 'Kam.' I think he died of fright before I hit him."

Lane Thanks Alaskan Railway Men

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Secretary Lane today sent a telegram to Chairman Edes of the Alaskan Engineering Commission and the men of the Alaskan railroad thanking them for their devotion in the work of completing the line from Matanuska to Seward. About 60 per cent. of the Government's railway is now ready for operation and it is expected before the end of the present season it will be laid from Nenana.

FAST FLIGHT WITH AIR MAIL.

Newton Comes from Washington in 2 Hours 18 Minutes.

One of the best flights made since civilian aviators took over the carrying of the mail was made yesterday by Maurice Newton, who came through from Washington with 135 pounds of mail, arriving at Belmont Park at 2:05 P. M. The mail reached many New York business houses soon afterward.

Newton left Washington at 11:42 A. M. and arrived in Philadelphia at 1:10 P. M., stopping there only five minutes. His elapsed time for the through trip was two hours and 18 minutes.

Robert Shank took the mail south yesterday. It is expected that the next flight to Chicago will not take place for two weeks, but preparations are being made for extension of the facilities of the terminal at Belmont Park, with complete equipment to insure the success of the new air line when a regular schedule is undertaken.

WANTS ARMY IN ITALY.

Tillman Urges President to Send 300,000 Men There.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. — President Wilson was urged today by Representative Tillman of Arkansas to send 200,000 or 300,000 American troops to Italy. He predicted that such a force assisting the Italian armies would put Austria out of the war.

Mr. Tillman, who recently returned from the war zone, said General Diaz, the Italian Commander in Chief, told him that if such a force had been available at the close of the nine-day drive of the Italians along the Piave River he could have invaded Austria.

During a visit to the American front, Mr. Tillman said, General Pershing told him that if the United States sends the men and supplies the war can be ended in 1919.

there safely all this time within 2,000 yards of the front line.

The Americans are now advancing victoriously over ground which has not been trodden by allied troops since the failure of Joffre's offensive into Lorraine at the very beginning of the war, and we may see some of them before long on German soil, as their comrades in the Vosges already are.

It is now certain that Pershing will be able to establish a front across the base of the salient and we have now to wait and see whether that is his final objective or whether he means to advance into the Woevre. We must assume that the enemy has defensive lines prepared behind the salient, and it would not take any very large reinforcement, added to the troops who may be thrown back or may escape to a much shorter front, to enable the enemy to re-establish effective resistance in such lines. Much depends upon whether German divisions which have been fighting at the head of the salient have been cut off or not.

Though the enemy is being kept busy opposite Douai, Cambrai and St. Quentin by Sir Douglas Haig and General Debeney, and he cannot afford to take any risks on this vital front, yet he will probably make a great effort to get together reinforcements in order to check General Pershing's advance, for he will not willingly allow his communication with Metz to be endangered.

If they mean to go further, Foch and Pershing will have made their plans for meeting such a manoeuvre and for the present we must leave it at that.

Railway Line Cleared.

So far the most important result achieved, next to the loss inflicted upon the enemy which, in the present state of the enemy's manpower, comes first, is the clearing of the main line of the railway which runs along the valley of the Meuse and connects Verdun, Toul, and Nancy. When the line is again in working order, as it shortly will be, our facilities for manoeuvre on the front south of Verdun will be very greatly improved.

Hitherto the enemy's railway communications on the western front have been better than our own, and when by his March offensive he put the main lines running through Amiens out of action, they were immeasurably superior. One of the most satisfactory features of the allied offensive is that it is gradually restoring their position in this most important respect.

enemy were in the salient, including those standing guard at its flanks. Probably not more than four divisions have at any time been in the depth of the pocket, and of these more than one-fourth have been captured. Officers say that a retreat effected at such a cost hardly can be considered as a successful evacuation, and they are inclined to accept the German statement as promulgated for home consumption. It was said that for the high command to acknowledge that the first American blow had blotted out in less than two days a salient that had been held for four years and also cost the Germans more than 12,000 prisoners in addition to their dead might further agitate the German civil population.

At the same time it is not doubted that the German leaders expected the stroke and made such preparation as they could toward getting their main forces out of the salient. The swiftness of the American advance on the flanks, however, seems to have upset their plans, and it is believed here that the figures of war material captured will bear out this theory.

EXPECT DRAFT HERE WILL REACH 800,000

Registration by Mail Adds 20,000 to Early Totals, with More Enrollments Expected.

WILL CLASSIFY RETURNS

More Than 50,000 Enemy Aliens on the Lists—Questionnaires Soon to be Sent Out.

The draft officials of New York are confident that when complete mail registrations have been received—about 20,000 had been received up to 6 o'clock last night—the total registration for New York City will approximate 800,000. Revised returns from all boards filed with Draft Director Conboy yesterday gave a total registration of 754,029, exclusive of mail registrations. There are discrepancies in certain districts, however, and there is every reason to believe that the 754,000 total will be increased to a considerable extent. The number of registration cards received by mail on Thursday was about 12,000, and the number delivered yesterday was about 8,000, with hundreds of others coming in by every mail.

The total figures filed by the 189 district boards yesterday show the following results in the five boroughs:

Manhattan	343,498
Brooklyn	254,032
Bronx	95,703
Queens	46,357
Richmond	14,439
Total	754,029
Mail registrations	20,000
Grand total	774,029

Director Conboy called upon all district boards yesterday to furnish at the earliest possible moment a table showing how many citizens had registered on Tuesday, the number of friendly aliens and declarants, and the number of enemy aliens. Fairly complete reports giving these statistics indicate that the number of enemy aliens who registered will be between 50,000 and 60,000.

Analysis of the Enrollment.

The reports for the Borough of Manhattan, with all boards except the 96th and 166th, sending in fairly complete statistics, gave a total of 161,488 white citizens and 14,024 negro citizens. Friendly alien declarants totalled about 38,500, friendly alien nondeclarants totaled approximately 75,200, while the number of enemy aliens, with the reports from a few boards missing, is 30,706.

In Brooklyn the number of white declarants will approximate 155,000, negro citizens 3,500, friendly alien declarants and nondeclarants from 25,000 to 30,000, and enemy aliens from 6,000 to 7,000.

The Bronx registered about 64,000 white and 600 negro citizens. The number of friendly alien declarants in that borough will approximate 13,000, and the nondeclarants will total about 12,500. The alien enemy registration in that borough will be about 6,300, according to the reports received by the Draft Director.

In Queens, the white citizens will total about 30,000, and the negroes from 500 to 600. The friendly alien declarants will approximate 2,900 and the friendly nondeclarants about 3,500, while the enemy registration is estimated at about 2,300.

Richmond Borough registered about 7,500 white and 200 negro citizens. The friendly alien declarants in that borough will total about 1,100, and the nondeclarants about 2,000, while the enemy registration will be from 700 to 800.

For the entire city the tables to be made public this afternoon are expected to show that the citizen registration totals about 440,000, of whom 420,000 will be white and 20,000 negro citizens. The friendly declarants' total will be in the neighborhood of 84,000, and the total of friendly nondeclarants will approximate 135,000. The total enemy alien registration will be in excess of 50 000.

The numbering of the registration cards has already begun and is expected to be completed by Monday. By the end of the week it is expected that the supply of questionnaires which will be needed in the classification of the registrants of the 19 to 21 years and 32 to 36 years classes will be in New York, and the first batch probably will be mailed within the next ten days or two weeks.

Three Held for a Hearing.

One of the most pleasing features of Thursday's registration was the almost perfect order that prevailed everywhere in the city. The only trouble leading to legal action was reported by Board 110, with headquarters at Thirty-fourth Street and Eighth Avenue. Four men, all of whom gave their home address as 320 West Thirty-fourth Street, were taken before United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock yesterday afternoon charged with having refused to register. They gave their names as Shean Ohehir, which in English is James O'Hara; Laurence O'Neill, Patrick Joseph Fitzgerald, and Paul Francis Hays, who said he was an actor.

Registrar Robert D. Murray of Board 110 was the complainant. Mr. Murray told the Commissioner that on Thursday the four men appeared before him and expressed their wish to register. But he said they desired to be enrolled as citizens of the "Irish Republic," according to the Easter declaration of 1916. They were informed that this was impossible. Mr. Murray said he offered to enroll them as Irishmen or citizens of Great Britain, or citizens of no country, but they insisted on being enrolled as citizens of the Irish Republic.

Mr. Murray said that when directed to register without this specific designation, all refused. They were held in $1,000 bail each for a hearing on Monday.

WANTS RAILROAD MEN PUT IN DEFERRED CLASS

Administration Orders Regional Directors to File Claims When Considered Necessary.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Regional Directors of the Railroad Administration were instructed today to claim deferred draft classification for railroad general officers, shopmen, trainmen, skilled yardmen, road and maintenance of way foremen, and skilled workers, telephone and telegraph operators, and other essential employes. Railroad Administration officials estimated that more than two-thirds of the 2,000,000 railway employes were included in the groups for which deferred classification is to be asked. Following are those on the list:

General officers, master mechanics, roundhouse and shop foremen, machinists, blacksmiths, boilermakers, tin and copper smiths, pipe fitters, electricians, freight car and passenger car repair men and inspectors, helpers and apprentices of the foregoing, chemists, locomotive inspectors, gang leaders, superintendents and assistant superintendents, trainmasters and assistant trainmasters, train dispatchers and directors, yardmasters and assistants, road foremen of engines and assistants, traveling engineers, firemen, inspectors, locomotive engineers and motormen, locomotive firemen and helpers, conductors and brakemen and flagmen, train baggagemen and express messengers, yard foremen and helpers, hostlers, engine house men, telegraphers and telephone block operators, telegraph clerks, maintenance of way engineers, division engineers, roadmasters, field engineers, supervisors, construction foremen, section foremen, bridge building and water service foremen, bridge building and ship and wharf carpenters, signal maintenance men, and telegraph and telephone maintainers.

"As to employes not in the foregoing list," the Administration's instructions said, "the Federal managers should exercise the greatest care and discretion to aid in obtaining deferred classification for those clearly necessary, while refraining from taking this step in other cases. Where a given position can be reasonably filled by promotion or by the employment of an outsider, male or female, no effort to secure deferred classification should be made. The mere question of inconvenience or increased expense is not sufficient for regarding an employe as necessary. But where, on account of the character of the work or the complete lack of availability of another to do the work, the existing incumbent is really necessary, the Federal managers should take all practical steps to secure deferred classification.

"The railroad under Government control is an essential industrial agency. Its necessary employes should be given deferred classification. It is desired that the Federal managers give this matter their active personal attention to make sure that deferred classification is properly claimed for employes that are necessary and also that no such claim is made where it can be reasonably avoided, since the making of unnecessary claims is both unfair to the Government in its work of creating the necessary military and naval forces and injurious to the railroad administration in its effort to secure deferred classification for employes who are really necessary."

All telephone and telegraph companies were authorized today to file claims with local Draft Boards for exemption from military service of "absolutely indispensable" employes. The companies also were notified that to stop embarrassments to the service reported from various sections, where employes have quit their places without notice, often to engage in non-essential work, all employes leaving the service should be required to give two weeks' notice.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Complete returns which were made available today showed that 157,963 youths who had become 21 years of age since June 5, 1917, registered on Aug. 24. The estimate had put the number at 158,011, or only forty-eight more than actually registered. The estimate for New York State was 14,932 and the registration 14,934. Some of the other figures follow:

Want New Moving Day Rules.

The Van Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' Union sent Mayor Hylan yesterday a copy of a resolution adopted by that body asking that the Mayor issue a proclamation requesting "as a war measure to conserve human labor and to aid and protect the public in this crisis, that leases for apartments be extended for a period of three months to those who desire such extension, and also that household goods be delivered into apartment houses without going through the basement, as is the rule now." The Mayor did not say what action he would take.

the nation's vital wartime institutions. The district boards have been directed to consider the requests of the railroads and other industries in this spirit.

The United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation today defined its position by a general order issued by Vice President Howard Coonley. It makes this statement:

1. Every man within the draft ages, whom it is possible to dispense with, should be spared for military service.

2. The vital importanceof the work of the Emergency Fleet Corporation to the successful prosecution of the war requires the attention of an adequate force to maintain the highest operating efficiency.

The Emergency Fleet Corporation will not ask for exemption or deferred classification by reason of necessary Government employment for any employe who would otherwise be placed in Class 1, except those who are essential to the corporation in furthering the production of ships or equipment.

The Emergency Fleet Corporation will ask for exemption or deferred classification by reason of necessary Government employment for some employes likely to be placed in Class 2 or Class 4 if in its opinion these men are necessary to it in furthering the production of ships or equipment.

Status of Shipyard Employes.

This announcement affects only the employes of the Fleet Corporation and officially does not reach to the shipyards which are doing work for the Fleet Corporation. These yards, whether privately owned or under the direct control of the Government, will make application for deferred classification for such men as are felt to be essential. The Fleet Corporation, however, will not give its sanction to asking preferential treatment for any workers who are not actually vital to the nation's requirements and will extend no protection to men who have sought employment in the yards only for the purpose of escaping military service.

The Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense, of which Dr. Anna Howard Shaw is Chairman, came out today with a direct appeal to the women of the nation to equip themselves to do the work of men wherever possible, and to take some definite action, without further delay, actually to get to work. A statement issued by Dr. Shaw and signed by the full committee, says in part:

"If the machinery of everyday life is to be run smoothly for the remainder of the war, women must come forward at this time, much more generally than they have done, to take the place of men.

"England has at least a million women in her banks, factories, munition plants, railway and ship yards, who have never worked for wages before. What English women have done, American women can do. Victory 'Over There' means work 'Over Here.' Women who have never earned a dollar and will never need to should heed the call of our country for workers at this time.

"Employers, we ask you to give women a fair and complete trial. Women, we appeal to you to supply the workers to meet the widespread, wholesale demand. It is patriotic to serve in the trenches of France and Belgium, it may be equally so to drive a butcher's cart or keep the baggage records in a great station. Do not be content to do your bit. Do your all. 'Keep the Home Wheels Turning.'"

CAPTAIN EBBERT KILLED AFTER HIS PROMOTION

Young Officer Was a Student at Stevens Institute—Death of Lieutenant Preyer.

Captain Peter W. Ebbert, who was a student at Stevens Institute in Hoboken when this country entered the war and who went overseas with an artillery unit, has been killed in action. He was a native of Glen Rock, N. J., and entered the service as a Lieutenant of the New Jersey National Guard. He was promoted after his arrival in France. Captain Ebbert was in a tower observing the enemy artillery fire when a shell struck the observation post, mortally wounding him. The news was communicated to his relatives in Glen Rock by Major Baird, who was with the young officer when he died. Captain Ebbert was 23 years old. He was trained at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Lieutenant Arthur Preyer, Jr., who was a native of Holland, his father being a prominent citizen of The Hague, was killed in Italy Aug. 19. Lieutenant Preyer was a junior at Princeton when he resigned to enter the American service. He graduated at the Fort Myer Officers' Training Camp and was assigned to the aviation section. He was a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hawkins of 205 Roseville Avenue, Newark. He was 23 years old.

John Wright, a private in Company A, 165th Infantry, Rainbow Division, was killed in action three weeks ago. Private Wright was 20 years old and a son of Mrs. Martha Wright of Manhasset, L. I. He volunteered in the first week after Congress declared war.

Samuel Price, killed in battle, was a brother of Mrs. R. Wiener of 50 East 107th Street. He was one of three brothers in the army and was a son of Isaac Price of Trenton, N. J. Private Price was in business in this city when he enlisted in the regular army.

Lieutenant Harold E. Street, severely wounded, is a son of Quincy B. Street of 30 Chestnut Street, Flushing, L. I. He is in Company A, 127th Infantry. Several weeks ago his right hand was shattered by shell fragments and he was also wounded in the head. He wrote to his father that the surgeons hoped to save his arm. Lieutenant Street served with the 7th Regiment on the Mexican border. He is 28 years old.

Corporal Jefferson Stonewall Jackson, severely wounded, is a son of Mrs. Mary Jackson of 918 Nineth Avenue. In a letter to his mother he wrote that he had been in action four times. He added:

"Our motto over here is a scar received in battle is a lasting honor, and believe me I am proud of the one I've got. I would not sell it for a million dollars."

Corporal Jackson is in Company D, 16th Infantry. He is 18 years old and six feet two inches tall.

Corporal John J. Little, Jr., who was reported killed, is now convalescent in a hospital at Tottenham, England. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Little of 336 West Nineteenth Street, received a letter from him two days ago in which he said he was suffering from a fractured leg. The letter was dated nine days subsequent to the date given in the War Department notification as that on which he was killed. Little is a 7th Regiment man and went to France in Company C, 107th Infantry, New York Division.

Sergeant William Kline of Company C, 305th Infantry, Upton Division, on Aug. 14 suffered two wounds in the thigh and two in the leg. He is a son of Samuel Kline of 2,037 Sixty-fourth Street, Brooklyn.

Jeremiah Hurley, also reported wounded, is a patient in the Rockefeller Institute, this city. He is suffering from shell shock and a fractured leg. He was wounded in the battle of the Marne. He went to France in Company G, 13th Infantry.

Joseph Mendicino, the name given in the casualty list, should read Joseph Mante. Mrs. Mante, who lives at 104 Walworth Street, Brooklyn, was notified yesterday that her husband was wounded.

FALL OF PETROGRAD AGAIN REPORTED

Prince Koropotkin Seized by Reds—Admiral Razvozoff Said to Have Been Murdered.

ALLIES RUN VLADIVOSTOK

Name Committee to Administer City's Affairs—Russian and Japanese Troops Fraternize.

PARIS, Sept. 13, (Havas.)—Dispatches received by English newspapers through Helsingfors announce that Petrograd has been taken by the anti-revolutionists.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Prince Peter A. Kropotkin has been arrested at Petrograd, charged with participating in an English conspiracy against the Bolshevist Government, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

A dispatch from Helsingfors, received in Stockholm, says that Rear Admiral A. V. Razvozoff, former Commander in Chief of the Russian naval forces in the Baltic, was murdered in Petrograd yesterday.

Prince Peter Alexeievitch Kropotkin, famous as a scientist and geographer, was arrested in 1874 for his revolutionary activities and confined in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, from which he made his escape in 1876. After living in many countries, mostly in England, Prince Kropotkin was enabled to return to Russia in 1915 by an amnesty ukase of the then Emperor Nicholas.

The Prince since has been outspoken in his antagonism to the Bolsheviki, and early in January of this year a report was received in New York that he had been arrested, but this report lacked confirmation.

VLADIVOSTOK, Sept. 5, (Associated Press.)—The Entente allied authorities here have refused to recognize the Siberian Government headed by General Horvath, according to a semi-official announcement made today, and have appointed a committee of seven to administer municipal affairs.

All misunderstandings between the Japanese and Russian authorities have been completely removed. The Japanese and Russian troops are fraternizing.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The State Department has not been advised officially of the taking over of the municipal affairs of Vladivostok by representatives of the Entente nations, as reported today by cable. It would not be surprising, however, to observers here in close touch with affairs in Siberia if the International Commission had found it necessary to establish an adequate city government to curb ambitious politicians.

This action, it was explained, might be necessary in other places so as to give the Entente nations a stable organization with which to work. It does not mean necessarily that the representatives of the Allies will attempt to dictate the internal policy of Russia, but it is regarded as imperative that the Government of the country, as well as the smaller subdivisions of States, including some of the larger cities, shall be established in such a stable manner that they can co-operate in the restoration of the country.

The fact that the allied representatives had refused to recognize the Government which General Horvath attempted to establish has been known here for some time. Since that action, however, General Horvath has conferred with the Czechoslovaks, and it is believed here has shown an intention to work in harmony with them and with the Allies.

CROWDS JAM VLADIVOSTOK.

Hospital Facilities Being Provided for Entente Troops.

VLADIVOSTOK, Aug. 23, (via Tokio)—(Associated Press.)—The influx of foreigners incident to the landing of allied troops has filled Vladivostok, already overcrowded by the native population, almost to the point of standing room only. Y. M. C. A. workers, American and Japanese Red Cross, and the American corps of railroad operatives have been put to it to find places to sleep. A stranger entering Vladivostok faces the prospect of walking the streets and sleeping in the open unless he is fortunate enough to find friends among some of the foreign charitable organizations, and considers himself extremely lucky to be provided with a mattress and blanket on the floor of some vacant building.

Every vacant house or apartment has been secured either outright or under option by representatives of the allied powers to house the staffs of incoming forces. Two floors of a girls' school building have been taken over for the lodging of eighty-four of Stevens's railroaders and directors of the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. work. The men are provided with mattresses, blankets, sheets, and pillows. Later it is proposed to secure cots, but for the time being they sleep on the floors. Fortunately Vladivostok has always been a heavily garrisoned town and there is plenty of barracks room, and the Red Cross doctors and nurses are well provided for on Russian Island, a beautiful wooded tract several square miles in extent lying across the bay. There a comparatively new hospital building, with a capacity of 150 beds, has been turned over to the American Red Cross and has been refitted throughout with beds and apparatus brought from Japan.

A half dozen Japanese doctors and a corps of Japanese nurses are in attendance upon seventy occupants, Czechs and Slovaks, who have hitherto been charges of the officers and men of a United States naval vessel in an improvised hospital housed in a dock warehouse.

When organization of the Russian Island hospital is completed there will be efficient surgical and medical wards with facilities for treatment of eye, ear, nose, and throat diseases. Contagious cases will be treated in the Russian Marine hospital under Czechoslovak control. Serviceable ambulances are being constructed by naval mechanics out of motor lorries, and two complete hospital trains will soon be put in commission.

The Red Cross is expected to care for the sick and wounded from the British contingent of troops who arrived with no hospital facilities. The Japanese, on the contrary, have secured and remodeled a Russian hospital with adequate facilities in the outskirts of the town, for the care of their own men. The French contingent has an army medical service of its own, but will be dependent more or less upon the American and Japanese hospital facilities.

The branch of service which has proved most helpful to date is the army Y. M. C. A. Supply and club cars have accompanied each contingent of troops, distributing bread, tea, coffee, chocolate, cigarettes, tobacco, and matches, at cost price to the fighting men of the allied columns and to the Czechs and Slovaks all along the line, even to the foremost positions.

RUSSIANS RESIST EXPORTS TO GERMANY

Laborers and Railroad Men Check Large Movements of Goods Which Russia Needs.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 12, (Associated Press.)—German dispatches received in Sweden speak of the commercial agreement between Germany and Soviet Russia in the same general terms as those employed by the Bolshevist press. These dispatches maintain the same degree of secrecy concerning the details as that which M. Joffe, the Bolshevist Ambassador, preserved when he made his flying trip from Berlin to Moscow to complete the agreement.

The masses in Russia were displeased by the arrangement, because they knew it contemplated the sale of goods so badly needed by the Russians, and especially the transfer to Germany of the fabrics which the Soviet Government had confiscated in great quantities in Moscow and Petrograd.

The Germans also are apparently dissatisfied with the agreement because their efforts to ship goods have been so fiercely resisted, and they believe Germany will have the same trouble in this case that she encountered in the Ukraine. In other words, they seem to feel that the Bolsheviki do not expect to abide by their treaty.

Even before Maria Spiridonova made her exposures concerning the German plans to deprive Russia of the cloth, leather, and food it needs so badly, the Russian laborers and railway men were effectively checking large movements of goods to Germany. In Petrograd the dock laborers refused to load ships with goods that were billed for Sweden but clearly intended for the Germans. Trainmen sidetracked suspected cars and refused to haul them to Pskov.

Less than a month ago Bolshevist troops at Orsha rioted because a trainload of cloth was about to pass across the German lines, asserting that they would advertise the fact throughout Russia if the Germans persisted in taking away Russian fabrics. The situation became so grave that the Germans abandoned their plan to ship the fabrics.

Small shipments may slip through, but the large consignments escape the laborers with difficulty and the circumstances are so widely discussed at meetings that even the close press censorship does not prevent wide publicity.

For some time the Bolshevist officials defended shipments to Germany on the ground that the foodstuffs and cloths were for Russian prisoners, but the returned prisoners told such terrible stories of their privations that the masses refused to accept the explanation, which was denounced as a pretext of corrupt officials charged with passing goods for a consideration.

Millions of yards of cloth are locked in the Moscow and Petrograd storehouses, closely watched by agitators, and the Soviet Government risks its existence if it allows the Germans to ship wholesale lots at a time when the masses are clothed in rags and are facing the approach of Winter thus and without bread and fuel.

The Russian public is in the dark as to the gold payments the Soviets agreed to make to Germany. The rumored amount varies from 3,000,000,000 to 5,000,000,000 rubles. The whereabouts of the Russian gold reserve is a mystery and many bankers doubt whether any considerable amount remains to meet the German claims. The State Bank has not made a complete report since the Bolsheviki seized the Government and the statements of the Minister of Finance made so far are described by Russian bankers as "a list of liabilities on one side of the sheet and printing presses on the other."

No authoritative statement is available as to the actual amount of paper money in circulation, but the sum is probably not less than 50,000,000,000 rubles.

When the Bolsheviki evacuated Petrograd last February a train was sent to Nizhni-Novgorod carrying various securities of the State Bank and money, the whole being said to amount to 72,000,000,000 rubles. The Bolsheviki boasted that this was the richest train on record. These securities undoubtedly have been scattered widely because of the repeated political uprisings in Nizhni-Novgorod, and the value of many of the securities is probably doubtful because of the absolute industrial paralysis of the country.

Gorky Joins Reds, Gets a Job.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 12.—Reports from Petrograd state that Maxim Gorky, the Russian author and revolutionary, has accepted the post of Director of Bolshevist propaganda. The reports add that Gorky declared that the attempt on the life of Premier Lenine caused him to decide to co-operate with the Bolshevist Government.

INDICT 28 IN DRAFT CASE.

Federal Grand Jury Makes Returns in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—A special Federal Grand Jury which for some time has been investigating violations of the selective draft law in this city returned thirty-three indictments against twenty-eight persons tonight. Among those indicted was District Appeal Board No. 2, which was recently abolished and its work combined with District No. 1, Local Board No. 4, in the Fifth Ward, the scene of the political riot last September; Local Board No. 10, Mrs. Emma A. Bergdoll, a wealthy widow, and A. B. Gordon Davis, a lawyer.

The members of Local Board No. 4 have also been removed from office after a Federal investigation. The three boards were charged with irregularities in administering the law. Mrs. Bergdoll was charged with ordering her son, R. C. Bergdoll, well known in automobile racing circles, to evade the draft.

HONOR SWISS JOURNALISTS

Entertained in Paris—Sneers by German Newspaper.

PARIS, Thursday, Sept. 12.—A party of Swiss journalists en route to America were entertained here at luncheon today by James Kerney, Director of the Franco-American Committee on Public Information. Ambassador Sharp was the principal speaker, and assured the Swiss editors of the warm reception which they would receive in the United States. William Martin of the Journal de Geneve and Dr. Feuter of the Neue Zuricher Zeitung responded, expressing the gratitude of the Swiss for the relief brought to Switzerland to relieve the food shortage.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 13.—The Vossische Zeitung points out that, according to the latest reports, the American Government invited a number of Swiss journalists to visit America for a propaganda tour of the United States in order to see for themselves what America has accomplished during the war.

The newspaper adds sarcastically that the journalists will not only see the skyscrapers and industrial towns, but perhaps "how niggers are lynched; how niggers are burned; how German-Americans are bound to posts and martyred, and how German-Americans who are unwilling to fight are tarred; how neutrals are forced to fight and not allowed to speak their own language, and their schools and churches are closed; how American teachers are dismissed because they do not approve President Wilson's policy."

All these instances of high culture will be interesting to the neutral press, the newspaper adds.

Charged with the Murder of Miss Florence W. Gay.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Sept. 13. — The Essex County Grand Jury reported today an indictment for murder against Mrs. Bessie May Skeels of Andover and Bayonne, N. J., charging her with the murder of Miss Florence W. Gay of Andover.

Mrs. Skeels was also indicted for larceny from the Gay estate. She is critically ill with peritonitis at a local hospital, where she has been under treatment since she collapsed immediately after her arrest on Aug. 26 on the larceny complaint.

ALL UNIFORMS AT COST

—Made by the Kirschbaum Shops

ABOUT one year ago, we announced that for the duration of the war, we would distribute uniforms for army officers at actual cost—foregoing any thought of profit.

Within these months, it has been our privilege to serve men by the hundreds and by the thousands who, usually at great personal sacrifice, have enlisted in our country's cause.

While uniform materials and tailoring costs have increased, on an average by 40 percent, large advance provisions still enable us to quote in 1918, practically without change, the prices prevailing in 1917.

Until present stocks are exhausted these prices will continue.

CABINET CRISIS AGITATES GERMANS

This and Prussian Franchise Question Rival War as Topics of Discussion.

REAL LEADER CALLED FOR

Epidemic of Speechmaking—Socialists Demand That Negotiations for Peace Be Opened Immediately.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 13.—The question of the Prussian Francise bill and possible dissolving of the Prussian Diet have assumed an importance which vies with events on the western front for interest at the moment. This and the impending Ministerial crisis, which is closely connected with reforms, are the all-absorbing topics of the press.

Speechmaking appears to be the order of the day. After the Kaiser's speech to the Krupp workmen, Legien's reply to Gompers, and Burian's speech to journalists, two National Liberal leaders, von Richthoven and Streseman, have made striking addresses on the Hertling crisis (the word crisis is now openly used) and the Prussian Reform bill.

Friedrich Nauman has also made an extraordinary statement. He points out that in military matters Hindenburg and Ludendorf lead, but wants to know who leads politically.

"Have we a leader?" he asks. "According to constitutional comprehension we are consoled with the fact that the Kaiser is represented by the Chancellor, who is responsible, but what is the good of this in questions of the German Empire's existence? When we ask the Chancellor in committee he does not know where we are being led to or will not say. That is the situation of today.

"We have nothing against the person of the present Chancellor, and his representative von Payer, is a party friend. The Government has the confidence of the majority, but can do nothing * * * The majority cannot prevent constant contradictory utterances as public manifestations. All peace utterances since December, 1916 have been crossed by opposing parties or speeches. No one knows which is the opinion of the leaders."

Streseman, in his speech at a big National Liberal meeting at Saarbrücken, takes up a remarkable attitude, reproving big industrialists.

The Tageblatt says that at today's meeting of interfactional leaders of the Diet no changes were made in the attitude of parties.

The Independent Socialists have addressed a petition demanding that peace negotiations be commenced immediately.

Much stress is being laid on Hertling's age and health, as during the former ministerial crisis, when it was rumored that Hertling would go and when Kühlmann fell. The Lokal-Anzeiger and Germania deny reports that Hertling is to be replaced by Dr. Solf, both papers calling them "mischievous rumors."

Lokal-Anzeiger says it is impossible to foresee whether from now to Oct. 5, when the Main Committee of the Reichstag meets, everything will remain as before in ruling Government circles. The paper refuses to indulge in speculation as to impending Ministerial changes, declaring that Germany can at present stand anything better than fresh unrest in party politics.

The Berliner Tageblatt agrees with Germania that these reports emanate from big industrial circles. The Frankfurter Zeitung remarks that the rumors regarding Solf, Erzberger, and Scheidemann and of the change in Austria merely condense the ideas and discussions which have been occupying politicians, parliamentarians, and statesmen for some time owing to the course of events.

The paper says that at the interfactional discussions the majority party will make certain whether the Imperial Government is now firmly decided and strong enough to push forward openly and honorably a policy of peace, of reconciliation on the principles laid down in the famous majority resolution, as well as equal suffrage in Prussia. If the Government proves too weak or is otherwise unsettled a change inside the Government would be very near.

The Tageblatt adds that the difficulties with which Hertling has to contend do not lie in the empire but in Prussia and with the Prussian conservatives, who are now doing all in their power to hinder Prussian franchise reform.

CINCINNATI POLICEMEN STRIKE FOR MORE PAY

Home Guards Called Out to Patrol the City—No Disorder Reported.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 13.—Between 3 and 7 P. M. this city was guarded by only forty-eight policemen, a strike of the guardians of the law here having been declared and carried out when the second shift, which reports at 3 P. M., failed to put in an appearance. At 7 P. M., however, 600 members of the Home Guard, under the command of Colonel Charles F. Hake, took command.

For several months the policemen have been complaining that they were underpaid, considering the high cost of living, and numerous requests for increases had been made. No intimation that a strike was impending was given until this morning, when it was learned by Chief of Police Copelan that the policemen were holding a secret meeting. He sent three detectives to the scene of the meeting, but these were denied admission.

Half an hour later a demand was presented to Safety Director Holmes for an increase from $1,260 a year to $1,500. A note accompanying the demand stated that unless it was met by 3 P. M. a strike would be declared. The Safety Director did not answer, and accordingly the second shift men failed to appear.

During the early hours of the strike there was no disorder reported.

Masaryk to Speak Tomorrow.

Professor T. G. Masaryk, President of the Czechoslovak Provisional Government, will tell of the aims and ideals of the new Government at a meeting in Carnegie Hall at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Representatives of the Polish, Rumanian, and the Jugoslav national councils also will tell of their plans. The meeting is to be held under the auspices of the War Savings Stamp Committee, the Y. M. C. A., and the Y. W. C. A.

War Mothers Form a Unit.

WHITE PLAINS, Sept. 13.—The first war mothers' unit in New York State was organized here today with Mrs. Oliver Harriman President. The organization is open to mothers of all men in the service. It is the aim of the unit to extend aid when needed to families of men serving in France. The other officers elected were Mrs. Jeremiah C. Lockwood, Mrs. Frank B. Perley, Mrs. E. E. Seymore, Mrs. Frederick Gross, and Mrs. Irving Kemp.

unanimous choice of the members of the board.

The arbitrator thus chosen has made an award which more than 90 per cent. of the workers affected accept. You, who constitute less than 10 per cent. refuse to abide the award, although you are the best paid of the whole body of workers affected and are, therefore, least entitled to press a further increase of wages because of the high cost of living. But whatever the merits or the issue it is closed by the award. Your strike against it is a breach of faith, calculated to reflect on the sincerity of national organized labor in proclaiming its acceptance of the principles and machinery of the National War Labor Board.

Mere Scraps of Paper.

If such disregard of the solemn adjudication of a tribunal to which both parties submitted their claims be temporized with, agreements become mere scraps of paper. If errors creep into awards, the proper remedy is submission to the award with an application for re-hearing to the tribunal. But to strike against the award is disloyalty and dishonor.

The Smith & Wesson Company of Springfield, Mass., engaged in Government work, has refused to accept tho mediation of the National War Labor Board and has flaunted its rules of decision approved by Presidential proclamation. With my consent the War Department has taken over the plant and business of the company to secure continuity in production and to prevent industrial disturbance.

It is of the highest importance to secure compliance with reasonable rules and procedure for the settlement of industrial disputes. Having exercised a drastic remedy with recalcitrant employers, it is my duty to use means equally well adapted to the end with lawless and faithless employes.

Therefore, I desire that you return to work and abide by the award. If you refuse, each one of you will be barred from employment in any war industry in the community in which the strike occurs for a period of one year. During that time the United States Employment Service will decline to obtain employment for you in any war industry elsewhere in the United States, as well as under the War and Navy Departments, the Shipping Board, the Railway Administration, and all Government agencies, and the Draft Boards will be instructed to reject any claim of exemption, based on your alleged usefulness on war production.

Sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

Smith & Wesson Plant Taken.

Simultaneously with the announcement by the President that he had approved the taking over of the plant and business of Smith & Wesson of Springfield, Mass., the following statement was authorized by the War Department:

"The plant of the Smith & Wesson Company at Springfield, Mass., manufacturing pistols for the War Department, has been commandeered, under Section 120 of the National Defense act, for the duration of the war, and an officer of the Ordnance Department has been placed in charge of further operation of this industry.

"This action was made necessary by the refusal of the Smith & Wesson Company to abide by the award of the National War Labor Board, rendered Aug. 22, 1918. This is the only instance of a manufacturer under contract with the War Department arbitrarily rejecting an award by the agency set up by the President for the maintenance of industrial peace during the war.

"The War Labor Board's finding in the Smith & Wesson case was made upon a recommendation of Joint Chairman Frank P. Walsh and Frederick N. Judson, Acting Joint Chairman in the absence of Mr. Taft. The Walsh-Judson report recommended that the company discontinue, for the period of the war, its practice of compelling employes to sign individual contracts, one clause of which bound the employe not to join a trade union; that the right to join trade unions be extended to the workers, and that a system of collective bargaining be established in the Smith & Wesson plant.

"Under the operation of such a system the workers elect shop committees to represent them in negotiations with the employer on all questions of industrial relations. The demand of the workers for a 25 per cent. increase in pay was not conceded in the recommendation, it being stated that the question of wages could best be worked out through the operation of the collective bargaining system.

Workers Accepted Decision.

"These recommendations were duly approved by the War Labor Board, and it became the duty of the Smith & Wesson Company, as well as its employes, to comply. The workers have indicated their willingness to do so, but the company demurred, on the ground that it had not agreed to submit any of its legal rights to the War Labor Board for determination and that to comply with the award would be to abandon methods upon which it had built its business to a high state of efficiency. Further, in its letter rejecting the War Labor Board's findings it said:

"'The Smith & Wesson Company sees no reason why it should abandon its lawful and legitimate method of doing business, known and proved by it to be conducive to industrial peace and high efficiency, for the fantastic method outlined by the War Labor Board in its recommendations for dealing with its employes.'

"A strike at the Smith & Wesson plant involving demands for collective bargaining, the right to join trade unions, and the elimination of the individual contract, were the direct cause of Government intervention in the controversy between the company and its employes.

"The language employed by the company in the foregoing paragraph was held to be calculated to induce other employers to avoid the jurisdiction of the War Labor Board and to defeat the object of the President in its creation, and the company's general attitude toward the reasonable findings of the board was deemed such as might be expected to disturb industry and to interfere with production.

"The recommendations contained in the War Labor Board's finding are in thorough accord with the principles and policies to govern industrial relations for the period of the war promulgated by the President and made the constitution of the War Labor Board. These principles and policies were adopted by duly selected representatives of organized employers and workers of the United States. It is the policy of the War Department to give effect to the decisions of the War Labor Board in all cases coming under the jurisdiction of the department."

Puddlers Postpone Strike.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Postponement of the threatened strike of puddlers employed in steel mills in Eastern Pennsylvania and New York was announced today after the National War Labor Board had agreed with officials of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Tin, and Steel Workers to hold a hearing on the men's grievances next Thursday at Philadelphia.

The strike had been called for Monday. The men ask for an increase of $2.60 a ton on all iron puddled, so as to bring their pay up to that allowed in the Western district, where the haul to the mills is shorter.

The case to be heard at Philadelphia is that of the employes of the Reading Iron Company. Seven other similar cases have been docketed by the Board and embrace the entire district in which the complaints originated.

D. J. Davis, Assistant President of the Association, who was here conferring with members of the Labor Board, has wired the men to call off the strike, and telegrams also were sent by the Board urging the men to remain on the job pending a decision in the cases.

Frank P. Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement tonight said the action of the machinists at Bridgeport "is to be deeply regretted," and added that this was the first instance where members of organized labor had failed to comply with an award by the National War Labor Board.

Deplored by Morrison.

"The refusal," said Mr. Morrison, "of the machinists of Bridgeport to abide by the award made through the machinery of the National War Labor Board, and their further refusal to heed the advice and instructions of President Johnston of their international organization to return to work, is to be deeply regretted.

"The officers of the international organizations have, without exception, insisted upon all agreements entered into—whether with the Government or private concerns—being complied with.

"While there have been a number of employers who have absolutely refused to submit their grievances to the War Labor Board, the Bethlehem Steel Company and others refusing to comply with the award of the War Labor Board, this is the first instance that has been brought to my attention where the members of organized labor have failed to comply with an award of the War Labor Board, even though the award or decision did not reach their expectations.

"Failure of local unions of internationals to follow the advice and instructions of their duly elected international representatives cannot but bring about a condition that is in opposition to the desires of the organized bodies of workers of the United States.

"The machinists, after returning to work upon the request of President Wilson, can follow the advice of the President and make application for a rehearing of their case to the War Labor Board."

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 13.—Events leading up to the action of the War Department in taking over the Smith & Wesson Company had their beginning in a strike of the employes of the pistol factory July 12 for readjustment of wages and working conditions. Ten days later the employes voted to return to work pending an adjustment by Major B. H. Gitchell, representing the War Labor Board. Announcement of the company's refusal to accept the findings of the Board followed. On Sept. 5 the company granted a basic eight-hour day. The concern is busy exclusively on Government contracts.

MANY STRIKERS RETURNING.

Lose Heart, but Await Official Text of President's Letter.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 13.—As no communication had been received by any officer of the local lodge of the International Association of Machinists from President Wilson up to the time of the mass meeting this afternoon, and as none of the officers knew anything officially about the text of the President's demand that the striking machinists go back to work, no action was taken to discontinue the strike at their meeting today.

Few of the strikers knew anything of the President's message till after the meeting when they saw the communication under big headlines in the afternoon papers. They were not surprised, however, as they were told by Chairman Samuel Lavitt that they might see something in the papers, but they must not mind it and must take nothing from the newspapers as true.

At the opening of the meeting Lavitt stated that he had received no information from Washington. He explained that he had told newspaper men all over the country that the local union had received no communication from President Wilson, nor had any Government official in the city received any information up to the time of the meeting.

Just as the mass meeting was about to adjourn a telephonic communication was received from Captain Fitzpatrick of the Bridgeport District of the Ordnance Department, that a copy of the message had been received by him and that the President's message was printed in all the newspapers. The strikers refused to accept the newspaper message, and adjourned till Monday afternoon.

Lavitt stated that if the men went back to work they would go in a body. In the meantime many strikers are going back to work. According to the temper of the men they are sick of the strike anyway. Lavitt's intimation that they might go back in a body was taken to indicate that the fight was taken out of the strikers.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 13.—Bridgeport Machinists' Lodge, No. 30, has authorized the payment of $1,000 to the Strike Committee, with instructions that the money be used "to send as many machinists as possible away from Bridgeport."

In a statement tonight, Business Agent Lavit said that so much machinery in local plants had been crippled by the absence of the machinists that more than 30,000 workers would be idle next week. Officials of the plants admit there has been some breakdown of machinery. Lavit also said that it would be impossible for the union men to abide by the decision of President Wilson, as the companies were refusing to take machinists back as old workers. Jarvis Williams, Vice President of the Remington Arms U. M. C. Corporation, declared that, as far as he knew, there was no discrimination against the striking machinists.

The Bridgeport strike agitation started last June and, after several hearings, an award was made by the Ordnance Department. This was not satisfactory to either side, and the manufacturers refused to make payments on the new basis. The machinists appealed to the National War Labor Board, and the manufacturers and the workers agreed to abide by the decision of that body.

After a long delay an award was made. The plants agreed to conform to it, but the machinists were not satisfied, and a strike vote was taken. About 5,000 machinists and toolmakers quit work on Aug. 30, but other trades were not affected to any extent, although 60,000 workers here were included in the Labor Board's award. Since the strike started more than a score of agents and representatives of the board have come here from Washington to enforce the award.

UNION MEN CONDEMN BRIDGEPORT STRIKERS

Declare Machinists Have Violated Every Rule of Decency and Loyalty.

A motion condemning the action of the striking Bridgeport machinists as a stain and a smirch upon every self-respecting American laborer, and commending the letter of President Wilson to the Bridgeport District Lodge of the International Association of Machinists and the attitude of W. H. Johnston, President of the International Machinists, in ordering the strikers to abide by the decision of the War Labor Board and go back to work, several days ago, was adopted with only one dissenting vote at a well attended meeting last night of the Ceneral Federated Union at the Labor Temple, 243 East Eighty-fourth Street.

The motion was presented by V. T. Rybicki, representing the machinists of Local Union 429 of the Central Federation.

"The situation in Bridgeport among the machinists is a calamity," said Mr. Rybicki. "The men on strike have violated every rule of decency and loyalty. I am ashamed of the machinists of Bridgeport, for I am a machinist myself. They have raised a cry of grievances not adjusted and then, being a party for such adjustment, have refused the award made by the War Labor Bureau and then refused to stand by the referee in his final settlement of the disputed points. Too much credit cannot be given to President Johnson in ordering the men back to work and telling them to stand by their contract, and the letter of President Wilson as published in the evening papers should be seconded by every loyal worker."

Discussion on the motion was aroused when a delegate sought to excuse the Bridgeport strikers by suggesting that the vote be deferred for one week until a committee could inquire into the merits of the case. He offered his views as an amendment and they were seconded. He only met with one supporter, a delegate who said he saw nothing to condemn and that the Central Federated Union would disgrace itself by not showing a more friendly feeling for the striking machinists.

"Those men have the right to get as much out of the manufacturing profiteers as they can," he said. "I know what Connecticut is. You cannot get one extra mill there unless you sweat for it and the workers have been dragged about in the mud so long by half patriotic employers that many of them would rather go to war and fight than remain at their jobs."

At this point the speaker was interrupted by several voices calling out, "Why don't they do it, then?"

James P. Holland carried the delegates with him in a ringing speech in which he left nothing unsaid to show the loyalty of American union laborers in standing by their pledges and in support of the country.

"There is nothing ridiculous in this contemplated action," he said. "The labor movement is being made ridiculous by the men out on strike at Bridgeport. They ignored their President's mandate and that of their organization. I condemn no man for trying to get as high a wage as possible, but this is not a question of wages. It is one of politics, or even worse, for there are men in some of our unions, as well as other workers, who, I believe, would rather see Kaiser Bill President of the United States tomorrow than President Wilson. That big skunk, Bill Hayward, is one of them. After the war is over I am going to work to deport from the country every worker who is not an American citizen. It is our place as members of American labor unions to be loyal to the country in which we are earning our living. The union man takes a wrong attitude who tries to camouflage this motion to condemn disgraceful strikers by questions about wages when the strikers had agreed to stand by wage awards."

Mr. Holland was frequently interrupted by applause. Mr. Rybicki called attention to the fact that the Government was dealing just as firmly with employers who disregarded the War Labor Board's findings as against the workers. He cited the case of the Smith & Wesson Company of Springfield, Mass., taken over by the Government for doing practically the same thing that the striking machinists in Bridgeport are doing.

"The machists in the Brooklyn Navy Yard have been working for over a year under protest on the adjustment of the time schedule," he added. "They refused the offer of time and a half wages a year ago, demanding double time. Word came from Washington to stay at work under protest until the difficulty could be adjusted and they have been working under protest ever since. A decision will probably be made in a few days."

After two or three other delegates had voiced their indignation at the act of the Bridgeport strikers, William T. Holder, President of the Executive Committee of the Union, called for a vote on the amendment. Less than half a dozen votes were in favor of postponing action, and the original motion condemning the strikers and supporting President Wilson was carried by a loud shout of approval.

Delegates from Newspaper Mailers' Union No. 6 were at the meeting to ask the union men to help in the big war saving stamp drive which will be held at the Liberty Bell in City Hall Park next Thursday. Business Manager John McCirdle and Ernest Bohn, Secretary of the Central Federated Union, said that labor would make a record in stamp buying on that day.

NEW AID BY PORTUGAL.

America Will Recruit Thousands There for Work Behind the Lines.

LISBON, Sept. 13.—The Portuguese Government has promptly answered General Pershing's call and thousands of workmen are being recruited in Portugal for the American forces in France. General Pershing, through Thomas H. Birch, American Minister at Lisbon, requested permission of the Portuguese Government to recruit in Portugal skilled and unskilled workmen in order to release American soldiers now doing that work in France. The Portuguese Government promptly consented and as a result thousands of laborers, who are anxious to enlist, are being recruited throughout the country under the supervision of Captain W. W. Dyer and his staff.

Portugal entered the war March 9, 1916, and since then has trained and equipped an army of more than 125,000 men for service in France and Africa. At the present time the Government is actively engaged in training and organizing additional forces.

GERMANS TOLD AGAIN U-BOATS WILL WIN

But Admiral Scheer Refuses to Fix Definite Period for This Result.

PEOPLE ARE SKEPTICAL

Staff Chief's Speech May Be Prelude to New Phase of Naval Warfare.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 13.—Once again the German authorities are endeavoring to mislead the people on the final results of the submarine war. This time the Chief of the Naval Staff, Admiral Scheer, is somewhat more cautiously optimistic, but the same old promises are given, although Scheer adds: "I must refuse to fix any definite period for this result."

From all reliable information emanating from Germany, however, it is doubtful whether the German people will again believe in similar prophecies, which already have proved false. It is certain, however, that the arrival of the Americans on the west front achieved the final shattering of the fondly cherished belief in the submarine war and that the people were furious at having been misled for so long. Moreover, a majority of the German press has recently gradually admitted that the submarine has not achieved its original aim.

Doubtless Admiral Scheer's statement is a prelude to a new phase of naval warfare and the establishment of a special department of the Admiralty Staff at headquarters. Admiral Scheer and his staff have already removed to headquarters for an indefinite period, and the Kaiser will probably lend a hand in the naval plans.

The Kölnische Zeitung comments on Scheer's statement, saying that, coming from such an authoritative quarter, it must be convincing proof to those anxious people who believed the enemy's assertions about the ineffectiveness of the submarines.

"The fact that Admiral Scheer does not bind himself to a definite date," it says, "gives the statement all the more weight. But the main thing is, and remains, the certainty that the U-boats will achieve their aim, and this certainty finds support in Admiral Scheer's utterance."

Of quite different tone was a long article which appeared recently in the semi-official paper explaining that in spite of the great success of the U-boats it might be assumed that the submarine war would not accomplish its aim of actually cutting off England's supplies within any definite period. The Weser-Zeitung objected to this article a week ago, declaring that these were facts which were better left unsaid, as they only encouraged the enemy and certainly did not stimulate the people.

The people no longer know what to believe, and the truth may begin to dawn on them that they are being cheered up, which is more than evident from the Kaiser's speech to the Krupp workers. The speech is said to have been made largely to prevent the dissatisfaction and unrest in the army from spreading throughout the country.

Meantime the Social Democrats have addressed an open letter to the Chancellor on the food question, complaining especially of the bad distribution of potatoes, and demanding ten pounds as a weekly ration.

The Vorwärts says that, although people receive only seven pounds weekly, small quantities are brought in privately by train and sold at exorbitant prices.

WASHINGTON NEEDS TYPISTS

Special Examination for Stenographers to be Held Here Monday.

According to Harry C. Coles, Secretary of the United States Civil Service Commission in the Second District, many families of soldiers have not received their pay allotments because of the lack of office help. For this reason the War Risk Insurance Bureau has called for 500 stenographers and typewriters for work in Washington.

On Monday, Sept. 16, there will be a special examination consisting of a very simple practical test. Both stenographers and typewriters are urged to go to Room 111 in the Custom House at any convenient hour between 9 A. M. and 9 P. M. A photograph of the applicant will serve as an admission card. In addition to the examiners, there will be present a special representative of the War Risk Insurance Bureau to explain conditions and to arrange for appointments within twenty-four hours. Salaries from $1,100 to $1,200 will be paid, with good opportunity for promotion.

He has been giving similar exhibitions here. He was a resident of Fulton, N. Y., when he applied to be drafted ahead of his class.

FINE RUFUS GAYNOR $50.

Son of Late Mayor Arrested for Running Car While Intoxicated.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Sept. 13.—Rufus M. Gaynor, son of ex-Mayor Gaynor, was fined $50 and costs by Judge Hubbard this morning for operating a car while under the influence of liquor. Gaynor was arrested last night after his car had zigzagged across the road and then collided with another machine. The policemen testified that Gaynor was staggering when brought into Police Headquarters.

"Are you the son of Judge Gaynor?" inquired Judge Hubbard, addressing the young man.

"Yes, Sir," was Gaynor's reply, "my father knew something about the law."

Gaynor, who is living in Garden City, L. I., came here to visit his mother, who lives on Bush Avenue, Belle Haven, a fashionable section of the town. He admitted having one or two drinks in the Pickwick Inn, near where the accident occurred. He told the court that he was an ambulance driver in France just before America entered the war and was shellshocked. Since that time he had not been engaged in any business.

SEES DANGER IN ZIONISM.

Rabbi Philpson Explains Opposition to Jacob H. Schiff's Views.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio., Sept. 13.—Commenting on the letter of Jacob H. Schiff concerning his attitude toward Zionism, Dr. David Philpson, rabbi of Rockdale Avenue Temple in this city, said today:

"Mr. Schiff's intense sympathy with our suffering co-religionists in lands of oppression causes him to overlook the dangers of Zionism as they appear to many of us. We sympathize no less keenly with the sufferers than does this great hearted co-religionist of ours, but we feel that the solution for this intolerable condition lies not in securing only one national home for Jews as a place of refuge, namely Palestine, but in having every land become such a national home as are now the United States, England and France. We believe this will be the outcome of the great war, should the Allies win, as they undoubtedly will.

"Our opposition to Zionism is due to our conviction that this movement in its political aspects is a distinct menace to the best interests of the Jews in this and other lands. Zionism sets the Jews apart as a national group. We American Jews, who, in contradistinction to the Zionists, teach and believe that the Jews constitute a religious community and not a nation, are Americans in nationality and Jews in religion.

"The Zionists' national hymn, 'Hatikvah,' declares their hope to be the return to 'our land,' namely, Palestine. To this we, whose national home is America, do not and can not assent. The United States is our land, not Palestine. It goes without saying that we are as much interested in reconstruction work in Palestine after the war as are the Zionists, and will do all we can to help it along. It is only Zionistic political activity and nationalistic doctrine which are repugnant to us. To what lengths that political activity goes appears from the letter addressed by the Federation of American Zionists to the Senators and Congressmen of the United States requesting their views on the Balfour declaration and Zionism in general for campaign purposes.

"This injecting of a purely Jewish matter into American politics is proof positive of the danger of political Zionism. Even Mr. Schiff, in the postscript to his letter to me, which did not appear in THE TIMES of Thursday, calls this a grave error.

"Admiring as I do Mr. Schiff's wonderful services in all good causes, both Jewish and other, which have caused him to be well termed the 'Grand Old Man' of American Jewry, I regret extremely that I cannot see eye to eye with him in the matter at issue. Owing, however, to certain unlooked for contingencies which have recently arisen, the conference as we had planned it may not be called at this time. I still feel, as I always felt, that political Zionism is fraught with danger to the welfare of Jews here and in other lands. Judaism's mission is religious, not political. The Jews constitute not a nation, but an international religious community."

AGAINST SOCIALISTS HERE.

Captain de Man Tells Why Those in Allied Countries Support War.

Captain Henri de Man, who served four years in the Belgian Army and is now here on a mission for his Government, explained last night at the Rand School of Social Science, 7 East Fifteenth Street, why the Socialists of the allied countries in Europe support the war and why they have little sympathy for American Socialists who oppose fighting Germany.

Before the war Captain de Man was for five years editor of the Volkszeitung, the Socialist newspaper of Berlin, and was a friend of Karl Liebknecht. He was also President of the Young People's Socialist Union of Belgium.

A gulf exists, he admitted, between the feeling of European Socialists and the Socialists of America, and it cannot be bridged as long as the Socialists of this country are bound by the St. Louis platform, which declares against the war. Even temporary militarism on the part of the Allies, Captain de Man said, was a thousand times better than the professional militarism of Germany. The Socialists of Belgium, he said, who are fighting, have not lost any of their hate for militarism nor any of their internationalism.

While a victory for the Allies would not bring about Socialism, Captain de Man said it would do more than anything else to lay the foundation for Socialism.

MAY SENTENCE DEBS TODAY.

Counsel Prepares to Carry Case to Highest Court of Land.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 13.—Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, convicted of obstructing recruiting and inciting resistance to the Government, probably will be sentenced tomorrow morning if his motion for a new trial is refused.

While Debs left Cleveland to spend a quiet day with friends immediately after the verdict had been returned yesterday, Seymour Stedman and W. A. Cunnea, his Chicago attorneys, had a busy day today preparing the motion for a new trial and getting ready to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court in the event they are overruled tomorrow by United States District Judge D. C. Westenhaven. Rose Pastor Stokes and other prominent members of the Socialist Party are remaining in Cleveland until after tomorrow's disposition of the case.

"Debs will be in court when the case is called at 9:30 tomorrow morning," Mr. Cunnea said tonight.

In order that Debs might not be disturbed his whereabouts were not disclosed. Millions of copies of the speech which he delivered to the jury in his own defense Wednesday afternoon are to be circulated, it was intimated today. The speech already is in the hands of the printers for distribution in the United States and other English-speaking countries. For Socialists in other countries the address will be translated into French, German, Russian, and many other languages, Socialist leaders said today.

DRAG FOR JONES'S BODY.

Young Man's Father Offers $1,000 Reward—Fishermen Join in Quest.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 13.—To hasten the recovery of the body of his son, Philip Hone Leroy Jones, who was drowned yesterday, Herman Leroy Jones of East Hampton, L. I., today offered a $1,000 reward. As a result of the posters which were distributed scores of fishermen in motor boats dragged the waters of the Sound. Young Jones lived in West End Avenue, New York City, and spent the Summer with his wife and baby at Kathmere Inn, Sound Beach, Conn.

Accompanied by Edward Tobey, he attempted to cross the Sound in a canoe. A gale overtook them and the canoe overturned. Jones was drowned after Tobey struggled with him for half an hour. Tobey was rescued, but is now threatened with pneumonia. Tobey lives at 105 West Fifty-fifth Street, New York, and is in his third year at Cornell. Recently he enlisted in the Navy Aviation Corps.

REPUBLICANS CHEER FOR VICTORY PEACE

Organization of County Committee Turned Into a Win-the-War Mass Meeting.

KOENIG AGAIN CHAIRMAN

Nicholas Murray Butler Warns Against German Peace Drive—Praise for Gov. Whitman.

Two thousand men and women who crowded Lyric Hall at the meeting last night of the newly elected Republican County Committee were brought to their feet cheering by a plea from Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, against an inconclusive or negotiated peace.

"Already we are beginning to hear voices raised in Germany in favor of a peace by negotiation," said Dr. Butler. "One day it is the Kaiser speaking before the Imperial Council. Another day it is the Chancellor. We must turn a deaf ear on all these voices which undoubtedly will multiply within a few weeks, when the frost and snows of Winter make fighting on the fields of France and Flanders almost impossible, and compel our men to return to the trenches for months of weary waiting.

"The voices that will be heard then will all be saying the same thing. 'We would be willing to withdraw from Belgium and France and we might even discuss Alsace-Lorraine with you, provided you let us retain our grip on the throat of the Russian people for generations to come.' What a bargain that would be!

"Get out of Belgium? Of course, they will get out of Belgium. We propose to kick them out. Get out of France? Of course, they will get out of France. They are getting out already. There is one thing the American Expeditionary Force has done since its arrival in France. It has made the word Hun rhyme with the word run."

At this point the men and women rose as one and cheered.

"We are going to win a conclusive victory and then we are going to tell our enemy on what terms he will make peace," Dr. Butler said in conclusion.

Last night's meeting was called under the primary law, to organize the county committee. Ex-State Chairman Frederick C. Tanner, who made a speech nominating Samuel S. Koenig for Chairman, made loyalty and victory his keynote. This note, strongly sustained, ran through the utterances of a long line of speakers of whom Dr. Butler was the last.

Dr. Butler spoke to a resolution introduced by John A. Bolles, one of the Republican candidates for Congress "constituting the Executive Committee," composed of the Republican district leaders in Manhattan, as a Liberty Loan Committee for the duration of the coming Liberty Loan drive, and calling upon the district organizations to refrain from holding any mass meetings while the drive is in progress to the end that the candidates be in a position to give their time to promotion of the loan.

Samuel S. Koenig, when he assumed the gavel upon his re-election as Chairman, also reverted to the patriotic theme.

"The duty of the hour," he said, "is winning this war as speedily as possible, and the effort of this organization during the coming campaign and after will be directed toward the support of the United States Government in all it does with his end in view. We are proud of our Republican Representatives in Congress who came to the rescue of the President of the United States when the men in Congress of his own party failed him in their vote on war measures."

The new County Committee adopted unanimously a resolution indorsing Governor Whitman for re-election and in connection with this his record as "war Governor" was again emphasized. Ex-Chairman Tanner had dwelt on this in his opening speech and Chairman Koenig returned to it.

"You may dwell as strongly as you please on the personal attractiveness of Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee for Governor," said Mr. Tanner. "But you cannot conceal the fact that for twelve years he was the spokesman for Tammany Hall at Albany and that now it is Tammany that is trying to put him in the Governor's chair. In these twelve years there have been three Democratic Governors at Albany, and we have reason to be sorry that any of them were there, and most recently we have inaugurated a Democratic Mayor in this city, and though only a few months have passed since he took office we have already lived to regret it."

The other officers elected besides Koenig were: Charles E. Heydt, leader of the Ninth, First Vice President; Miss Helen Varrick Boswell, Second Vice President; Clarence H. Fay, ex-Deputy Fire Commissioner, Secretary, to succeed Benjamin Bulmer, who retired; Mrs. J. L. Higgins of the Seventh, Assistant Secretary; Major Ogden L. Mills, Treasurer, and Edward Montgomery, Sergeant at Arms.

$1,290 A SECOND FOR WAR.

Of Which Cost Allies Pay $970, Says German Statistician.

From the time the world war began until the completion of its fourth year on July 31 its cost to the nations involved has averaged $1,290 a second, of which the Central Powers and their allies have spent $320 and their opponents $970, according to a table compiled for the Hamburger Fremdenblatt and printed in that leading German newspaper on Aug. 1. The statistician, who is said to have consulted all the reliable data available, put the total cost of the war at 683,679,000,000 marks ($162,715,602,000 at normal exchange), divided as follows:

	Marks.
Germany	115,211,000,000
Austria Hungary	49,424,000,000
Turkey	600,000,000
Bulgaria	900,000,000
Total for Central Powers	166,135,000,000
Russia	172,368,000,000
England	153,404,000,000
France	84,759,000,000
United States	69,360,000,000
Italy	35,800,000,000
Portugal	844,000,000
Rumania	640,000,000
Serbia	185,600,000
Belgium	160,000,000
Japan	21,000,000
Montenegro	2,400,000
Total for Allies	517,544,000,000

ENTENTE LOSSES PUT AT 25,000,000 MEN

German News Agency Asserts Allies Lost 7,000,000 in Fourth War Year.

In connection with the beginning of the fifth year of the world war, the German semi-official Wolff Telegraph Bureau sent out the following estimate of Entente casualties which appeared in the German newspapers of Aug. 1:

"Already on Aug. 2, 1917, the losses of the Entente amounted to more than 18,000,000, according to careful estimates. The bloody defeats of the year of war that has elapsed since then, that have cost the Entente everywhere new and unheard-of sacrifices, have raised this number to 25,000,000.

"Of this total Russia has had to pay for aiding the plans for power of the western powers with 4,500,000 dead, 6,000,000 wounded and crippled, and 3,000,000 prisoners, according to a statement made on July 5, 1918, by Kusmin, the Petrograd Press Commissary. The French and English lost far more than 500,000 soldiers in the bloody swamps of Flanders in 1917 alone, and in the first three months of the German offensive of 1918 they lost another million. Counting the heavy losses of the French on the Chemin des Dames in October, those of the English at Cambrai in November, 1917, and those of the present counter-offensive by Foch, which exceed everything that has gone before. France has lost up to today more than 5,000,000 black and white killed, wounded, and prisoners and England more than 2,800,000.

"And Italy has suffered no less in the fourth year of the war. It had lost 1,600,000 men by Aug. 2, 1917, and today, after the eleventh Isonzo battle and the breakdown of the twelfth in 1917, which alone swallowed up more than half a million of its soldiers, and the battles in the mountains and on the Piave front in 1918, it has sacrificed 800,000 more of its men.

"The war has wrought the greatest destruction upon the man power of the Entente's little auxiliary States. Serbia has paid for its participation in the war with nearly its entire adult male population. Rumania has lost half of its army. Counting in the Belgians, Montenegrins, and Americans, the total losses of the Entente amount to the population of Spain and Portugal together—25,000,000 human beings."

The German news bureau apparently made no attempt to inform the public regarding the total losses sustained by he Central Powers during the four years of war.

How Much Longer Can Germany Fight?

We must beware of being too happy over the trouncing Germany is getting on the Western Front. Victory is coming, but the earlier we expect it the later it will arrive.

While "we are on the last lap and close to the winning post," to quote a French leader, at the same time we are reminded that it is in the last part of the race that a runner must make his supreme effort. "Should the German military command decide to have the war carried into Germany and seek to delude the people into a frantic last resistance at or beyond the Rhine, upon the plea that they are actually fighting for the Fatherland and to drive the invaders from the sacred soil," remarks the Boston American, "the Huns might prosecute the war still for a long time to come."

The leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week—September 14th—carefully weighs the result of the Allies' victorious push during the past several weeks and balances against their successes a computation of the further fighting strength of the German armies, drawn from various sources. This article throws much light upon the present relative strength of both forces.

"The Digest" Serves At Home and At the Front

A recent dispatch from American headquarters in France described our boys in the trenches as eager for news of the war, so much so that a dozen or more crowded together to read a single paper narrating the progress of the battles. We at home are no less anxious to learn how the fight is going as a whole and how our soldiers are distinguishing themselves and incidentally lending a poignant interest to the reports from the front. To know the whole truth about the great struggle in France and Flanders there is nothing so helpful as to read the weekly accounts in THE LITERARY DIGEST, carefully gleaned from the most authoritative sources. You can first satisfy yourself of the actual facts in this way and then mail the magazine to one of these news-hungry American boys overseas.

TEXTS COMPARED IN WAR BOOK DISPUTE

What Security League Quoted and What Review of Reviews Publication Really Said.

VAN TYNE ASSAILS CREEL

Declares the Committee Chairman Has Resorted to the Cuttlefish Method to Escape Dilemma.

Charles D. Lanier, Treasurer of the Review of Reviews Company, asserted on Thursday that the National Security League had "garbled and misquoted" passages from the book "Two Thousand Questions and Answers About the War," published by the George H. Doran Company by arrangement with the Review of Reviews Company. The league asserted that the book contained insidious German propaganda, and quoted passages to prove the assertion. A comparison of some of the quotations, with comment in parentheses, sent out by the National Security League with the text of the book from which they were taken is published herewith.

Van Tyne Criticises Creel.

The passages taken from the book for comparison are those where the Security League text and the book text differ materially. Dr. C. H. Van Tyne, Professor of History of the University of Michigan, assisting in the editorial work of the National Security League, said last night that when he saw the first proof of the league's extracts from the book no asterisks appeared to show that anything had been left out, and he insisted that asterisks should be inserted to indicate the omissions. Continuing, Dr. Van Tyne said in reference to Chairman George Creel of the Committee on Public Information: "Mr. Creel has resorted to the cuttlefish method to escape from his dilemma. He must accept one horn or the other. Either he did a very unscholarly and dishonest thing—writing a commendatory introduction to the book he had not read—or he had a mind so pro-German that he could not detect the Prussian bias of hundreds of the questions and answers, which show a deliberate effort to disparage our allies and to excuse the Germans.

"The fact—plainly stated in the Security League report—that the publication of the book had been discontinued makes no difference in Mr. Creel's responsibility for writing that introduction. I am simply endeavoring to see that the public knows what kind of a man has been placed in charge of one of the national functions of the greatest importance."

Colonel Charles E. Lydecker, President of the National Security League, sent a letter yesterday to Chairman Creel in reply to his letter to the league, published in the newspapers of yesterday morning under a Washington date. Colonel Lydecker said that he had not received Mr. Creel's letter, but he accepted the newspaper version as accurate. Colonel Lydecker denied that anybody representing the National Security League had ever said that that organization had suppressed "Two Thousand Questions and Answers About the War." All that anybody connected with the league had said on this subject, he asserted, was that the George H. Doran Company had itself withdrawn the book from sale.

Colonel Lydecker asserts that from Mr. Creel's letter, as published in the newspapers, over his own signature, the Chairman of the Committee on Public Information confessed that he had written an introduction to the book without knowing what it contained and, furthermore, that Mr. Creel had "never seen fit to make any public protest about this dangerous publication, which had gone out to the world to the extent of the entire edition, and the committee of the National Security League did not consider that such propaganda, indorsed and unrepudiated by the Director of Public Information of the United States Government, should remain to do its work, without some effort to check it."

In closing his letter Colonel Lydecker asserts that Mr. Creel was "mistaken in believing that Professor Van Tyne has acted for the purpose of notoriety. An educator and author of his attainments and reputation should be so well known to a man in your position that you would not descend to such a defense of what is, by your own admission, shown to be putting the best construction upon gross carelessness."

Comparison of the Texts.

LEAGUE QUOTATION.	BOOK TEXT.
P. 1. Q.—Do the best informed students of world politics feel that the war could have been avoided? A.—The war at first appeared to be the result of Germany's determination to grasp and make secure her "place in the sun," along lines quite similar to those upon which in the past had been built the British Empire, the French Colonial Empire, and the tremendous Russian expansion.	Q.—Do the best informed students of world politics feel that the war could have been avoided? A.—Hardly. While Great Britain might not have been drawn in if Germany had not violated Belgium neutrality the feeling from subsequent developments is that the vast conflict would have been merely postponed. For the war at first appeared to be the result of Germany's determination to grasp and make secure her "place in the sun" along lines quite similar to those upon which in the past had been built the British Empire, the French Colonial Empire, and the tremendous Russian expansion. But during that fateful year of 1917, which brought in the United States, it became clear that it had developed into a war of principals.
P. 2. Q.—Why did this natural desire become dangerous to world peace? A.—Because "places in the sun" were pretty well occupied. "Places in the sun" were mostly colonial, of course, and other nations already had the best colonies.	Q.—Why did this natural desire become dangerous to world peace? A.—Because "places in the sun" were pretty well occupied. "Places in the sun" were mostly colonial, of course, and other nations already had the best colonies. This led the imperialists and expansionists in Germany to preach that (1) other nations had possessed themselves greedily of all the possible colonial areas of the earth; (2) that they had right thus to monopolize the world to the lasting detriment of Germany; (3) that, therefore, if Germany could not obtain her desired "place in the sun" peaceably, it was necessary to fight for it.
P. 2. Q.—What were the great specific pre-war rivalries? * * * * A.—(3) British control of the world-sea, which bound a huge part of the world together as "The British Empire." (The All-red Belt around the Earth, as shown on British postage stamps,) and the consequent control of nearly the whole colonial area of earth. (With whom are the sympathies of an uninformed reader likely to be after reading these last two items?)	Q.—What were the great specific pre-war rivalries? A.—The great specific causes for the great war were: 1. Germany's immense commercial growth, which produced the imperialistic striving typified by the Pan Germanism movement and by the two great cries: "A Place in the Sun" and "Der Drang Nach Osten." (The Impulse Eastward.) 2. The growing passion of the Slavic races and nationalities for political power as Slavs (Pan Slavism.) 3. British control of the world-sea, which bound a huge part of the world together as "The British Empire" (The All-red Belt around the Earth, as shown on British postage stamps,) and the consequent control of nearly the whole colonial area of earth. 4. French expansion into North Africa, with the Franco-British "understanding," which tended to make the Mediterranean more and more a private sea. 5. Italian expansion, as expressed by the Italia Irredenta movement and Italian conquest of North African territory.
P. 23. Q.—Has Germany treated the provinces as conquered territory? * * * * A.—Apparently the purely militaristic part of German government to Alsace and Lorraine is what has caused most of the mischief. * * * As against this, it seems fair to say that the actual political laws for Alsace-Lorraine were reasonably liberal. (Read Professor Hazen on Alsace-Lorraine as an answer to this assertion.)	Q.—Has Germany treated the provinces as conquered territory? A.—This is a question which cannot be answered justly in a brief statement. The nearest approximation we can make to an absolutely impartial statement is that apparently the purely militaristic part of the German government in Alsace and Lorraine is what has caused most of the mischief. The materialistic aspect was largely Prussian, and was fiercely assailed not only by the Alsatians, but also by many factions throughout Germany. As against this, it seems fair to say that the actual political laws for Alsace-Lorraine was reasonably liberal.
P. 13. Q.—Do the people (of Alsace-Lorraine) now speak French or German? A.—About 85 per cent. speak German. The rest speak French, or a French patois. * * * All these people, however, with the exception of the small percentage of illiterates, can speak, read, and write their national language. (Nothing said about the way they have been forced to speak German.)	Q.—Do the people of Alsace-Lorraine now speak French or German? A.—About 85 per cent speak German. The rest speak French or a French patois. Most of the common people habitually use a dialect known as Alsatian, which can be more or less understood by Germans, but is distinctly their own. This condition, by the way, prevails through all of Germany and France, the people of various districts using dialects that their compatriots in other districts can understand with difficulty or not at all. All these people, however, with the exception of the small, percentage of illiterates, can speak, read, and write their national language.
P. 36. Q.—Did Germany offer indemnity for Americans lost on the Lusitania? A.—Yes. While negotiations over the Lusitania case were still pending she stated her willingness to pay indemnity for the deaths of Americans. (Nothing but these two items about this matter! No comment on the moral aspects of the affair.)	Q.—Did Germany offer indemnity for Americans lost on the Lusitania? A.—Yes. While negotiations over the Lusitania case were still pending she stated her willingness to pay indemnity for the deaths of Americans—whose deaths Germany "greatly regretted," but she refused to disavow the act of the submarine commander in sinking the Lusitania or to admit that such act was illegal.
P. 216. Q.—How do the upper Houses compare? A.—The sixty-one members of the Bundesrath are appointive, the Governments of the various German States appointing the members for each session. (Here again Governments is confused with Sovereigns.)	Q.—How do the upper Houses compare? A.—The sixty-one members of the Bundesrath are appointive, the Governments of the various German States appointing the members for each session. Our ninety-six Senators are elected by popular suffrage for six years. The 660 Peers in the House of Lords hold their seats by hereditary right, by creation of new Peers by the King and by virtue of office as English Archbishops and Bishops.
P. 216. Q.—Can the King of England control the House of Lords? A.—He can create a majority for himself in the House of Lords at any time by exercising his constitutional prerogative of creating new Peers. * * * * * This power, like other powers latent under English political practice, had fallen into such oblivion that probably most Englishmen considered it practically dead; but it suddenly came to life when the House of Commons made its great fight in 1910-11 to wrest the power of veto from the House of Lords. (This deceit is one of the most shameful of all, implying as it does that the King and not the Prime Minister really made the threat.)	Q.—Can the King of England control the House of Lords? A.—He can create a majority for himself in the House of Lords at any time by exercising his constitutional prerogative of creating new Peers. He could create so many that they could overcome a vote against the Crown. This power, like other powers latent under English political practice, had fallen into such oblivion that probably most Englishmen considered it practically dead; but it suddenly came to life when the House of Commons made its great fight in 1910-1911 to wrest the power of veto from the House of Lords. To force the House of Lords to relinquish its power, the Cabinet then in office threatened that the King would appoint enough Peers to vote for the measure. The threat was enough. It was not necessary to proceed to its execution. The incident showed what great powers still rest in the Crown—if the Crown should ever venture to use them.
P. 225. Q.—Were German soldiers worse than others in the march on Pekin? A.—According to revelations, made by correspondents who managed to get through to Pekin, and by officers after the trouble was over, there seems to have been very little to choose between the conduct of the various troops. Of all, the Japanese emerged with the cleanest record, and the Tonkinese troops of the French with the worst. The Kaiser's message to Count Waldersee, who commanded the expedition, has, however, been everywhere reproduced, and consequently it has been assumed that the atrocities attributed to the international troops were all committed by the Germans. (This is the worst out-and-out lie in the book, but many half-truths do as much harm.)	Q.—Were German soldiers worse than others in the march on Pekin? P. 295. Q.—Has war ever produced so much hatred as this one? A.—Always much the same kind of attacks as now on the Germans. (Never in human history has a nation so aroused the moral indignation of the world as Germany has done.)	Q.—Has war ever produced so much hatred as this one? A.—Much of the same sort of comment about enemies has been made by publicists in time past as it is appearing today. The following quotation from Thackeray's work, "The Four Georges," gives some idea how belligerent nations wrote and spoke during the Napoleonic wars: "We prided ourselves on our prejudices; we blundered and bragged with absurd vain glory; we dealt to our enemy a monstrous injustice of contempt and scorn; we fought him with all weapons, mean as well as heroic. There was no lie we would not believe; no charge of crime which our furious prejudice would not credit. I thought at one time of making a collection of the lies which the French had written against us and we had published against them during the war. It would be a strange memorial and popular falsehood."

FOCH SEES OUR FLAG AFLOAT OVER METZ

Accepting Baton from K. of C., He Predicts American Advance Into German Territory.

Marshal Foch, in supreme command of the allied armies now smashing the German lines, has accepted the Marshal's baton offered to him by the Knights of Columbus of America. In accepting the baton, the French commander sent the following cable message to James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus:

> I am deeply touched by the congratulations and the delicate attention of the Knights of Columbus. Kindly convey to them my best thanks. The souvenir of Metz evoked by you holds a large place in my thoughts, in the same way that it calls forth your effort. It was from Metz that Lafayette went to help your ancestors, and we shall one day see your victorious banner floating in Metz. FOCH.

This message prophesying ultimate victory for the American forces was written just before the great offensive was launched. It was in response to the following message sent to the French commander by Supreme Knight Flaherty:

> On behalf of 425,000 Knights of Columbus we have enthusiastically cheered your glorious name when we heard of the supreme honor conferred upon the victor of the second battle of the Marne.
> America will not stop before Marshal Foch, student of Metz, shall triumphantly have entered the martyred town of Bishop du Pont des Loges and of Marshal Ney and shall save humanity and Christianity with the help of the allied armies.
> The Knights of Columbus have voted a resolution to present respectfully to you, Monsieur le Marechal, a baton carrying the inscription: "Nancy, Saint Gond, Ypres, Somme, La Seconde Marne."
> JAMES A. FLAHERTY,
> Supreme Knight.

The baton, inscribed with the victories of the French Commander in Chief, will be presented formally to Marshal Foch in Paris by members of the Order who are now directing the war work there. The presentation will be made on the battlefront, if possible, and if not, at the Place De la Pyramides in Paris where so many patriotic demonstrations have been held.

The Knights of Columbus recently forwarded 10,000 francs to Madame Foch to be used in aiding the widows and orphans of French officers who fell on the field of honor.

THRONG HEARS "GIOCONDA."

Italians Applaud San Carlo Singers in Ponchielli's Opera.

"La Gioconda," a favorite opera for Caruso, who last sang in it three years ago, again owed its revival on Broadway last night to the enterprising San Carlo Company, which gave Ponchielli's melodious and ear-filling ensembles at the Shubert Theatre to a packed audience of Italian compatriots. It was a first time for some of this year's cast, the leading roles being sung by Mmes. Amsden, DeMette and Melis, Messrs. Salazar, Royer, and De Biasi. The music was sung with precision, and the gay choruses of Adriatic sailors enlivened the Venetian scenes within limits of a small theatre stage. Today the company is repeating "Faust," and "Aida" tonight.

IDEN PAYNE OPERATED ON.

Theatrical Producer Stricken with Appendicitis at Belmont Theatre.

Iden Payne, the theatrical producer, was removed to the Flushing Hospital late Thursday night, and was operated upon there for appendicitis. He collapsed at the Belmont Theatre, immediately following the first performance of "Crops and Croppers," which he had produced.

At the hospital last night it was said that his condition is not serious.

Polacco Engaged for Chicago Opera.

Cleofonte Campanini, General Director of the Chicago Opera Association, has announced the engagement for the coming season of Maestro Georgio Polacco, after negotiations that are said to have been prolonged by the former Metropolitan conductor's previous contracts. Mr. Polacco succeeded Arturo Toscanini in charge of Italian operas in New York, and on his retirement in turn, he last year conducted companies in Mexico City and Havana.

Caruso to Sing for Tank Corps.

Enrico Caruso, George M. Cohan, and Al Jolson will be the headliners of a program to be given at the Century Theatre tomorrow night in aid of the Tank Corps Welfare League. A chorus of 1,000 tank men from Camp Colt, at Gettysburg, and Tobyhanna, Penn., will sing, and the program will also include Anna Fitziu, Frank Fay, Johnny Dooley, the Police Band, and the Kilties Band.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The new Selwyn Theatre, now being completed in West Forty-second Street, will be opened on Wednesday night, Oct. 2. The initial attraction, as previously announced, will be Jane Cowl in "Information, Please!"

William A. Brady has acquired for early production a romantic comedy, entitled "Peter's Mother," the work of Mrs. Henri de la Pasteur, (Lady Clifford.) The piece has been produced in London.

"The Big Chance," a war play by Grant Morris, was produced in New Haven last night by A. H. Woods. The cast is headed by Clara Joel, Cyril Keightley, William E. Meehan, and Katherine Harris Barrymore. The play will be brought to New York next month.

Tyrone Power will be in the cast of "The Little Brother," in which Walker Whiteside is to be starred.

The first Sunday night vaudeville program at the new Central Theatre will be given tomorrow night. Al Jolson will head the bill.

The first performance of the Shubert musical production, "Miss I Don't Know," will take place in Stamford tonight.

Sixty officers of the United States Tank Corps, headed by Colonel I. C. Welborn, Colonel W. H. Clopton, and Major D. D. Eisenhower, attended last night's performance of the "Follies" and the "Midnight Frolic."

Eleanor Painter made her first appearance in "Glorianna" last night at the Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City. Catherine Chisholm Cushing wrote the book and lyrics, and Rudolf Friml the music. The piece will be seen in Philadelphia before coming to New York.

Just Between Us City Fellers

WHAT we are going to say isn't according to the books and plays. In them the boy who is brought up in the city is always a pathetic figure, pale and undernourished and over-sophisticated. We know lots of boys that are being brought up not so many miles from Times Square and we don't believe it. Especially when we see what their pale, wan, older brothers are doing to the festive Hun.

We may be a bit prejudiced, for we are essentially a city product (began doing business in Union Square forty-five years ago) and we are just unsophisticated enough to believe in the city boy and the city man. We believe that he's standing up under the shock of war about as manfully as his country cousin.

We see him go about his business without much fuss. We see him buying Liberty Bonds and Thrift Stamps, and cutting down his chow and taking the bitter with the sweet generally, and our hats are off to him.

METZ.

It is intimated in dispatches from the now reduced St. Mihiel salient that General PERSHING'S objectives in the offensive he has undertaken are limited. No doubt the warning was "inspired." Metz is a hard nut to crack. The Germans have profited by studying the disaster that befell Marshal BAZAINE. When they acquired Metz they set about extending its works many miles out in a circle from the citadel, and what modern engineering science could do for the fortress district has been in no particular neglected. Before the war Antwerp was supposed by the uninitiated to be impregnable. The Germans knew better. It may be assumed that they improved upon Antwerp when they prepared Metz to withstand bombardment and assault. Colonel PAUL L. J. AZAN, one of the members of the French mission to this country, cautions the American people against expecting the reduction of the German fortress by rapid-fire methods. "It would not surprise me," on the other hand, says Representative JOHN POPE CALDWELL, one of our most robust optimists, "to see our boys in Metz by Saturday week." But listen to Colonel AZAN, a soldier and a Frenchman:

> Think not now of Metz. Do not think that soon we shall sweep there. To think that is to bring disappointment. You say it is but a short distance. Soon the Allies will be there. They will ultimately reach their objective, but when, in three, four, or five weeks, they are still fighting, not in Metz, but toward there, don't become discouraged. Metz is a long, hard road.

Colonel AZAN points out, what should be known to a tyro, that the perimeter of fortifications must be reduced, a gradual and toilsome process, before the Allies can get at Metz itself. He speaks of this circle of works as "the bastion, the round fort," and this bastion is filled in with woods that defy observation from the air. BAZAINE essayed to counterattack the investing Germans, but he showed little skill in his tactics and his army soon lost confidence in him.

To despise the enemy is folly. The Germans have made their dispositions, with that inventiveness and thoroughness to be expected of them, to defend Metz, also all the country between Metz and Strassburg, which are connected by admirable military railways. There can be no doubt that the Americans and French have the use of powerful long-range artillery, which can be brought into play when their advanced positions are secured; but it must be considered that the object of constructing the outer fortifications of Metz was to keep guns of heavy calibre at a comparatively safe distance. In these works are guns also of long range for defense.

Probably not until the perimeter is breached and taken at various points would the Allies be able to dismantle Metz, the town, by continuous bombardment. As to pinching the Germans out of it, that could not fail to be a long-protracted operation. Progress could be made south of the fortress by stiff fighting involving losses not lightly to be contemplated: Pont-à-Mousson is not far from the frontier. But from the Verdun works to the German boundary in the north the distance is thirty miles: that way the road is harder to travel. For the present it will be better to accept the intimation that the objectives of the offensive are limited. Nevertheless, it has been a success reflecting great lustre upon PERSHING'S generalship and the workmanlike valor of his army. Be sure that the pressure on the enemy will be kept up, and that he is now more bewildered than ever by the widely separated blows of the Allies from Arras to St. Mihiel.

THE KAISER'S HELPING HAND.

While German soldiers were driving enslaved Ukrainian farmers to work for their kind protectors, seizing the grain not already stolen, and at the point of the bayonet compelling peasants to give up their little savings, the Kaiser last week was entertaining at luncheon General SKOROPADSKI, the Dictator chosen to direct this campaign of robbery and oppression. Being two of a kind, in addresses and toasts each expressed admiration for the other and congratulated the slaves upon their good fortune. The Kaiser, saying that he had given them "a helping hand," with a basis for existence as a separate State, went on as follows:

> Henceforth a citizen there can follow his vocation undisturbed, and a peasant can cultivate the soil in safety and enjoy the fruits of his labor.

This gracious reception, the Dictator or Hetman assured him in reply, would be regarded by the Ukrainian people as a sign of his good-will and would "lend strength to carry "through the heavy tasks which are "still awaiting."

What are these tasks? Reports from Kiev published the same day showed that one of them was exaction of all the people's money by force. Troops have been coming to villages in the night, calling residents to the central public square by bombs and machine gun volleys, and then compelling surrender of savings by threats and violence. Whips and bayonets stimulate contributions. This is the Kaiser's "helping hand." But such reports only add to a great volume of evidence about Germany's foul conduct in the Ukraine, where the pitiless "protectors" have stolen all the foodstuffs that could be found, silencing protest and suppressing revolt by fire and sword. It has all been done by the Kaiser's order or with his approval. And yet he asserts that the "peasant can cultivate the soil in "safety and enjoy the fruits of his "labor"! How does he reconcile his falsehoods, cruelty, and crimes with his professed belief, so frequently expressed, that his course is directed and approved by GOD?

AN INVITATION.

To some of the conspicuous figures, statesmen and soldiers, of our allies the United States has had the pleasure of giving a welcome that not only stimulated our own patriotism but afforded encouragement and hope to our friends in Europe. JOFFRE and VIVIANI and BALFOUR were honored not only for their own achievements but as the personal messengers and representatives of nations whose valor and steady courage and deeds in the war, before and since we began our part in it, have earned and keep earning our respect and admiration.

In the personal presence of such men we catch a concrete vision of the heroism and ardor that inspire their countries and our own. The eye reinforces the impressions of the memory. Illustrious names take flesh. What we have read becomes an actuality. High personages of the mighty drama walk before us on the stage; and if in a merely physical sense to only a few thousands or hundreds of thousands they are visible, their coming here stirs a great wave of interest, sympathy, and emotion.

There is a statesman whose brilliant and constructive work for democracy in Greece, for faithfulness to international agreements, for the Allies and democracy everywhere, insures him an eager friendliness here, should he visit us, and the effect of whose visit could but strengthen the hands of our friends in Greece. That is ELEUTHERIOS VENIZELOS, who made a name nearly a generation ago in the Cretan Revolution, added Crete to Greece, went to Athens to lead the movement for constitutional reform; ELEUTHERIOS VENIZELOS, who as Premier was the leading spirit in the seemingly impossible task of making the Balkan League, as in the second Balkan war, of making the league against Bulgaria; ELEUTHERIOS VENIZELOS, who from the outbreak of the war was the friend of the Allies, and through all the opposition of German propaganda and German influence and intrigue on the throne was steadily true to democracy, to constitutional government in Greece; who insisted that Greece fulfill her treaty engagements with Serbia and support her by armed force after the Bulgarian declaration of war; ELEUTHERIOS VENIZELOS, who fought long and through many vicissitudes for constitutional government in Greece, set up a provisional government of his own, and, when the Allies had ceased to be the gulls of King TINO and the Germans, came back at last to his old place as Premier, the idol of the Greek democracy, the old foe of Turkey and Bulgaria; to whose labors, triumphant after a long struggle, Greece owes her political and moral restoration, and we owe her alignment on our side, her military effort for our success.

A great network of German intrigue directed against democratic Greece still exists. From time to time exile punishes some of the conspicuous workers for an anti-revolution. King ALEXANDER was no friend of the Allies in his princely days. In spite of apparent self-interest, he may yet require watching. There has been much republican talk in Greece, and to a King of his bringing up even a constitutional monarch, such as his crafty father couldn't condescend to be, may look humiliating. VENIZELOS, however, seems to have the situation well in hand. At least two members of his Cabinet, Mr. POLITIS, Minister of Finance, and Mr. REPOULIS, Minister of Interior, are men of high ability and absolutely trustworthy in all events. If Mr. VENIZELOS should have the fortunate thought of coming to see his American admirers, he would not have to be uneasy about disturbances or dangers at home in his absence.

To millions of Greeks or men of Greek descent in this country Mr. VENIZELOS would bring a new enthusiasm. Among Americans in general he would quicken, if not the old phil-Hellenism of a hundred years ago, the broader feeling of phil-democracy. They would salute a hero and champion of the common cause, one of the ablest, steadiest, most far-sighted and most accomplished statesmen of this time or any.

Finally, a statesman whose presence and whose career must remind the amiable American dupes of Turkey and Bulgaria of what Turkey and Bulgaria are.

AN ANGRY MOON.

Mr. MOON of Tennessee, Chairman of the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, doesn't help Postmaster General BURLESON by his high-bred remark in the House that the attack made on that official by Mr. MILLER of Minnesota "is the in-"evitable result of low breeding and "the commonest kind of mind." Doubtless Mr. MILLER is severe and partisan, but there are some facts about the Postal Service that can't be dodged by calling people who see, know, and comment on them persons of low breeding and the commonest kind of mind, "political cowards," and other names culled from the bright lexicon of the stump.

Mr. MOON assured Mr. FOCHT of Pennsylvania that the postal service to American soldiers abroad was bad, "notoriously bad," Mr. FOCHT called it, because "the Post Office Depart-"ment cannot follow the mails to "their final destination when they get "to the other side."

Will Mr. MOON explain why the postal service is bad, notoriously bad, at home? Or is anybody who grumbles if a letter takes, say, a week to go from Canarsie to Hohokus a low-bred political coward?

MR. TUMULTY'S EXCITEMENT.

President WILSON evidently had no hand in the composition of Mr. TUMULTY'S egregious letter to Chairman HAYS. It is all Tumultian; and the state of mind it reveals must give some concern to Mr. TUMULTY'S friends. For it gives the clearest possible proof that he has got himself into a mental state wherein any one who opposes the Democratic Party is guilty of a species of moral turpitude. He quotes the speeches of Republican statesmen, wherein they express their natural hankering for Republican victory, and quotes them with a triumphant air, as if he were convicting them of treason.

He had inquired of Mr. HAYS whether that individual had charged the President with being willing to make a compromise peace if that would keep the Democratic Party in power. Mr. HAYS replies that he did not, and implores Mr. TUMULTY, rather turgidly, "Let not political parties spend their "time accusing each other of disloy-"alty when both are loyal." Mr. TUMULTY confounds him by producing a statement of his in which he said that "more attention to politics" was needed. This statement, Mr. TUMULTY says, with a bewildering air of completely confuting him, is "obviously partisan."

Still with that bewildering air of triumph upon him, Mr. TUMULTY proceeds to arraign Senator PENROSE, who is a Republican, for making a Republican speech to other Republicans. He quotes an incriminating passage beginning, "I want to say to "the Republican Party, keep it vig-"orous and virile all through the "United States, successful whenever "it can be successful," &c. He quotes passages from other Republican speeches, all of which convey to the ordinary mind the impression that these Republicans would like to see the Republican Party win. No doubt they convey the same impression to Mr. TUMULTY'S mind; but that mind is in such a fervid state that the expression of this desire on their part seems to him to verge on Copperheadism.

What does Mr. TUMULTY want? The tone of his letter almost suggests that he believes it is near treason to invite any one to vote the Republican ticket. The President is very busy with more important things, but it does seem as if he could spare a moment to put a little ice on his secretary's fevered brow, or tame down his anguish in some way. As for Mr. HAYS, who was speaking in what he supposed to be confidence and whose remarks were not stenographically reported, there is a version of his speech which represents him as saying nothing whatever about the President or the Democratic leaders in connection with ending the war, but as saying that "a certain socialistic coterie in Washington" would like to end the war without hurting Germany too much. If he said that, he understated the truth; the coterie is not only in that frame of mind, but seems to be doing all it can to bring its wishes about. It is only socialistic in the parlor-socialist way, but it looks with a kindly eye on pacifism and the Non-Partisan League. It is not so long since it actually projected the notorious LINDBERGH of Minnesota into the White House and got him an interview with the President.

THE NEW TRAFFIC RULES.

We have become familiar with "one-way" streets, and now we are to have "one-traffic" streets, beginning on Monday next. Police Commissioner ENRIGHT has classified our avenues as to their fitness for their respective uses, and the traffic must divide itself accordingly. It is another of those reasonable interferences with the freedom of the individual which democracy establishes as peremptorily as autocracy. For a time there may be "unrest" over the order that commercial, or slow and heavy, traffic must confine itself to First, Second, and Third Avenues on the east side and Sixth, Eighth, Ninth, and Tenth Avenues on the west side. Passenger vehicles, that is, private, light and fast moving conveyances on wheels, must use Lexington, Fourth or Park, and Madison Avenues on the east side, Fifth Avenue, and, on the west side, Seventh Avenue. It is to the advantage of both to separate them. The slow as well as the fast conveyances will be able to expedite their movements when they get out of each other's way. Due consideration must be given to the representation of merchants that Fourth Avenue and Lafayette Street should be open to heavy traffic.

The weak spot in the plan is rather the weak spot in the design of the city plan than in the traffic rules. There is but one diagonal street in New York, Broadway. All traffic which is not strictly north and south, or east and west, must take two sides of a triangle to "get there." There are no short cuts, such as abound in cities laid out by engineers or strategists. Washington was laid out in wartimes, and has many focuses from which artillery can command moving columns of men or wagon trains, whatever their direction or destination. This lack of "vistas" in New York has often been lamented from an architectural and decorative point of view, but our skyscrapers have so overloaded our streets that the aesthetic and artistic shortcomings of the island borough have become less important than the humdrum inability to travel in our checkerboard streets without getting in each other's way. Perhaps some day it will be necessary to rule the horse traffic out of the city limits, but for the present there is no distinction made as to motor power.

Horse wagons and automobiles look alike to the traffic rules, and no doubt they will act alike under the rules in turning out of the streets into the avenues and out of the avenues into the streets. At such points there must be a mingling of the two sorts of traffic, and it is to be feared that there will be a tendency to select the smoothest pavement rather than the street or avenue which the rules call for. Where the going is easiest the traffic will cling like wagons to the car tracks. For a time the police will be lenient, no doubt, but eventually all sorts of traffic must bow to the rules which are designed for the good of all. Neither the fast nor the slow traffic will be allowed to make itself a nuisance to the other. The exceptions will not be those of privilege to the few, but those of service to all.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

At Least He's Not a Coward.

Even the rather numerous people who are not admirers of EUGENE DEBS are obliged to admit that he stands alone among his kind, and in his isolation deserves whatever of respect is due to the man who sticks to what he says and endures the consequences of his words without protest.

Every other representative of his school of thought, so far as can be remembered, has no sooner been haled to court than he—or she—has made violent efforts to prove innocence of the charge brought. Always the struggle has been to twist vicious words into harmless meanings, to convict opposing witnesses of mendacity, exaggeration, or distortion, to escape punishment in any of the many ways that the law provides or ingenious lawyers can invent.

DEBS is made of better stuff than these side-stepping preachers of sedition. He admits that he said what he said and also that he meant what he said instead of something quite different and—unpunishable. This may be an evil eminence, but it is real eminence, and while it makes DEBS the most dangerous of his group, it saves him from the contempt the others earn by their cowardly quibbles, their lying denials, and their hasty flights the moment they are threatened with a chance to wear the martyr's crown.

A General Neglect of Duties.

Nobody, as things look now, seems likely to get much either of glory or credit out of what for some time will be remembered as "the Two Thousand Questions episode." As a matter of fact, about everybody involved in it would appear in a considerably better light had his conduct been in one or more respects decidedly different from what it was.

The spokesman for the National Security League, Professor VAN TYNE, had a rather good case to begin with, but his presentation of it was not complete, and therefore not fair, in that he did not let the public know that, without any prodding from him, Mr. CREEL had taken, three months ago, proper measures to prevent any further sale of the book until after its pacifism and pro-Germanism had been edited out of it. As a result of that mistake, Mr. CREEL now enters a plea in mitigation and avoidance, as the lawyers say, and is able to prove that he had an excuse at least colorable for having put the seal of governmental approval on a book that deserved even harsher criticism than he gave it later. But he will have to admit—indeed, he does admit—that he performed carelessly a duty which it was his business to perform carefully, and that as a result of this carelessness he assisted in the publication and sale of a thoroughly bad and somewhat dangerous book.

The situation of The Review of Reviews and its editor is, even to the most charitable judgment, no better than that of Mr. CREEL. The best that can be said for either is that on inadequate grounds they assumed that the book was all right because it came from Australia, where there is a censorship, and was the product of a man whom the editor of The Review of Reviews thought to be honest. That man, a son of the erratic STEAD, has yet to tell his end of the sorry story, but doubtless he, too, will manage, more or less successfully, to demonstrate that the original carelessness was somebody else's, not his.

No matter how far this shifting of responsibility goes, the fact will remain that a vicious and seditious book was sold to and bought by the American public under several guarantees, official, literary, and commercial, that it was a trustworthy guide to an understanding of the war and of the nations that are fighting in it. That fact none of these personal exculpations affects in the slightest degree.

They Hated to Hear of Hatred.

Emperor WILLIAM, man of delicate sensibilities that he is, could not restrain his emotions while he horrified the gentle exponents of Teutonic virtues who work in the Krupp factories by telling them that the minds of Germany's enemies were filled with hatred. His voice trembled as he said it, and his hearers shrank, as well they might, from the picture he painted of whole nations harboring this most vicious of human sentiments.

A few of them may have a haunting memory of a certain "Hassgesang" that had a wide vogue some time ago—almost at the very beginning of the war, in fact—but, of course, that song was written by a wicked Englishman, if it wasn't by a hardly less wicked Frenchman or American or Italian, and even then the good Germans suffered cruelly from the knowledge that there were people in the world of instincts so base and of culture so low as to take pleasure in singing a song inspired by such a feeling.

Germans, if hard pressed, might have confessed at that time to a slight dislike for the British. The German professors and pastors, in their mild way, called attention to what they couldn't help considering imperfections in the British character. But hate the English? hate anybody? Never! It was a general, all-embracing love that was expressed when Germans drank to "the Day," as had been their pleasant custom for many a year, and when "the Day" did come at last, with what suavity did they notify all and sundry, and especially the dear Belgians, that it had arrived!

It is no wonder that the Kaiser can hardly endure the thought that there are people in the world who hate—no wonder that the Essen folk turn pale under their honest grime when they hear from the Infallible One that such folk are opposing his beneficent plans and are showing a strong inclination to carry the war out of France, where it belongs, into Germany, where it ought never to be. The Germans don't want to be hated—they know of no reason why anybody should hate them. Hatred is hateful. Directed against Germans it is nothing less than fiendish, and it must have been from their sincere appreciation of these truths that, waiting only till the Kaiser was out of sight, a large number of those whose applause he had so well earned by his condemnation of hate went on a strike for more pay and a little something to eat.

The Study of German.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I not reply in a few lines to your article, "Fourteen States Bar German," on Page 10 of this morning's TIMES?

We need more education than ever before after this terrible war. Our enemies who were learning two language before the war are now learning four or five languages. In former years a business man of our enemies needed French and English to obtain a good position in his home country; now he has to learn French, English, Spanish, Russian, and Turkish to make him fit for the commercial world.

We can only lick our enemies by knowing more than they do, but we do just the opposite. I have before me a book, which I have brought recently from England, printed by E. Marlborough & Co., 51 Old Bailey, London, E. C., 1918. This book is full of advertisements for the German languages, viz.: The Soldiers' Language Manual, second edition, German; German Letter Writer, Marlborough's Personal; Interlinear German Reading Book, 1918; The Child's German Book, eighth edition, 1918; German Grammar, 23d edition; German-English Commercial Correspondence, and several selected German classics and self-taught German books.

As most of the books are only edited in 1918, it seems to me that our English friends are more up to date than are we. The day will come when we will learn more.

Mr. du Pont on After-War Trade.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Owing to a short vacation in Maine my attention has only been called today to an article which appeared in your paper on Aug. 25, headed "Hurd Replies to du Pont."

In looking up the basis for Mr. Hurd's exception I find it was probably incited by a statement which appeared in The New York Tribune of Aug. 23 as follows:

> We are going ahead on the assumption, too, that the United States will not enter into any commercial boycott of Germany, but that at the end of the war we will do business with her as before.

The remark that I made, which I assume was the basis of this distortion, was that it was my opinion that the United States would not sanction any international boycott against Germany as one of the terms of peace. There was no statement to the effect that we would be doing business with Germany, nor anything to that effect.

All intelligent people are well aware of the fact that Germany in the college of nations is an outlaw and that generations must pass before her crimes against humanity can be forgotten. It will not be the "Made in Germany" brand which will interest purchasers in the future, but one they will call for and insist on receiving, "Not made in Germany."

Hopes for German Freedom.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Even eighty years ago the intelligent German had an idea of what is wrong with his countrymen. Heinrich Heine writes in his "Gedanken und Einfaelle" as follows:

> The German is like a slave who obeys his master without being whipped; one word, yes one look, is sufficient.
> Slavery is in himself, in his soul. Worse than material slavery is the spiritual slavery. In order to free the German such freedom can only come from within, as the outside world can be of no lasting help in such an undertaking.

Recent riots lead me to believe that the day of freedom for the German race is quickly approaching; a few more weeks, or possibly months, and the German people will see what the clique has been and is doing to them.

BULGARIA'S PART.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your very vigorous editorial, "Coddling Germany's Allies," offers many suggestions of "evil to come" in our toleration of Germany's southeastern war-wing, and particularly from our flabbiness of attitude toward treacherous Bulgaria, whom, long ago, England must have repented dallying with in the hope that she would enter the war on the Entente side.

Your putting of the question as to whether we shall find ourselves able to "stand by Serbia and Rumania" in the day of Bulgaria's exactions is particularly ad rem, and forcibly presented. There is the whole Macedonian question, too. How is "Greece to be made secure," (reference is here made to President Wilson's specification,) if Bulgaria is to get what she wants—ever the coveter of Naboth's vineyard! Apropos, it was not many months ago that a distinguished Hellenic diplomat warned this Government of the danger from Bulgaria, not only to his own country, but of her hoodwinking ours!

But how is Bulgaria a prototype of Schrecklichkeit, as the present writer maintains? It is only necessary to refer to the record of her army's conduct in the so-called "Last Balkan War," in which record appears, "writ large," all the proved atrocities of the Teutonic advance through Belgium, &c.: violation of the living and mutilation of the dead; the torch applied with complete license; the "peeling and scattering" of all terrain passed through, along with the miserable people thereof. Let the Greeks tell the world—they, chiefly, know from the scarcely smoldered traditions, of the barbarities practiced by this progeny of ancient semi-savage race, of anomalous mixtures, whom it would be discreditable to Slavs, should we call that race Slavic!

It is timely and meet to consider deeply Bulgaria and her little move in this vast war game.

Russia's Salvation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"A good beginning—half of the work done," runs a Russian saying. The safe arrival of American troops at Archangel means that our Government has started the salvation of Russia in the happiest possible way. Once firmly established at Archangel, the allied expeditionary forces are free to move either to Moscow through Vologda or to Petrograd by the way of the White Sea and the Kola-Petrozavodsk Railroad. But whatever way they select they will bring to the terror-stricken Russian people security and order, which are needed by them far more than bread and clothing. We hear that much-abused Russian peasantry have revolted at last against the Bolshevist murderers and robbers. Having formed the White Guards, they have overpowered the Bolshevist Red Guards at Nijni-Novgorod and Vologda. Now, these White Guards—in fact, all loyal Russians—will gladly join our expeditionary forces and will force the German soldiers and agents to return home and to take along their Russian allies, the Bolshevist leaders.

Meanwhile, good news is daily coming from Vladivostok, where now are operating the united forces of the Allies, the Czechoslovaks, and the loyal Russians, led by Generals Horvath and Semenoff.

Though Russia is immense, yet, acted upon simultaneously from the three extreme points —Archangel, Vladivostok, and Baku—the Russian people will feel and realize at last that they are not left utterly helpless before German intrigue and Bolshevist treason.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When war was declared in 1914 seven-eighths of the employes in a Paris house (the other one-eighth were too old) joined the army. A few days later a young Hollander, who was one of the employes, went to the head of the firm and said that as all his fellow workers had gone to the front he did not care to stay behind. Not being able to join the French Army he had joined the Foreign Legion, and therefore desired to resign his position, which resignation was accepted.

After four years of steady, active service the young Hollander wrote the following letter to the head of his Paris firm:

"The Americans have a style of fighting which astonishes everybody. We can see they have not come over here to attend a picnic, and they are brave men. There is no doubt about the ultimate success of the Allies winning the war, and the German prisoners all say: 'We can't do anything against such soldiers.' No French, English or German soldiers can attack like the Americans. We others are too old in warfare. Experience has taught us to be more prudent."

The above is the opinion of a soldier who knows what bravery is, and having seen the Americans at work does not hesitate to praise their qualities.

Not Vanderbilt's Phrase.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Colonel Ashley W. Cole's "public-be-damned" letter in THE TIMES reminds me that our friend—everybody's friend—the late George H. Daniels, General Passenger Agent of the New York Central lines, told me that the phrase was first used by a Chicago Tribune railway news editor, not Dresser. Mr. Vanderbilt had arrived one morning in Chicago to take up with officials of other lines important matters, and while awaiting their arrival at his car, The Tribune man insisted on an interview. Mr. Vanderbilt explained that his engagements wouldn't permit, but that later in the day he would be entirely willing, and, without seeing him, The Tribune man went to his office and wrote an interview in which the historic phrase, which Mr. Vanderbilt never used, appeared. Mr. Daniels declined at the time to allow this statement to be published.

THE SHIPS.

They have donned their gaudy war paint in fantastic shape and queer,
They are camouflaged to look as they are not;
Like strange zebras badly drawn by some artist crazed with beer,
They are cut with chunk and stripe and frenzied dot.
But they sail out of the river to the peril-haunted deep,
And their flags fling out a challenge to the Hun—
To the vile and slinking sea-beasts that beneath the waters creep,
Hiding ever till their fiendish task be done.

If the ships that sail have souls, (as some grizzled seamen say,) Brave and dauntless must they be to risk their loss;
With big cargoes overburdened, daring
all to win their way
Till their precious human freight is safe across.
What a thrill must quiver through them when they reach the other side, Steaming bravely into port "somewhere in France"!
Theirs the honor and the glory; theirs
a worthy, well-earned pride,
For their share in life's most wonderful romance.

Raging storms shall never hold them to their ports like shackled slaves;
Angry winds may blow and lightnings round them play;
They shall plow the maddened waters though beneath the foam-capped waves
Death himself—the submarine—awaits his prey.
Steel and stone or stanchest timber;
steam or sail—it makes no odds;
Day and night they do whatever must be done.
For the noble cause of Freedom—for a purpose that is God's,
All are pledged to fight until the fight is won.

RULING ON ADVERTISING.

War Industries Board Explains Circulation Guarantee Order.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Chairman Baruch of the War Industries Board tonight announced that Thomas E. Donnelley, Chief of its Pulp and Paper Section, had issued an explanatory statement addressed to advertising agencies and agents regarding the board's regulation calling for discontinuance of the practice of selling advertisements in newspapers and periodicals with a guarantee of circulation and of a rebate should the circulation fall short of the guarantee.

The statement was issued, Mr. Baruch explained, "because advertising agents and agencies profess confusion through lack of understanding of the regulation." Mr. Donnelley's statement follows:

"There has been considerable misunderstanding concerning the following ruling to all newspapers and periodicals:

"'Discontinue selling advertising with a guarantee of circulation requiring a rebate if circulation falls below guaranteed amount.'

"The purpose of this ruling is to prevent the printing of copies of newspapers and periodicals which are not called for by the legitimate circulation, but are printed by the publisher and circulated by forced means in order to make good the guarantee and save such rebate. Such circulation is, of course, a waste of paper and during the war must be stopped.

"There is nothing in our regulations which prevents the publisher from making a sworn statement of past circulation, but hereafter publishers cannot guarantee future circulation. Advertisers must buy their advertisement upon the reputation of the newspaper or periodical and their belief that the circulation is a bona fide one and will be maintained. This is a positive order and must not be evaded."

STEVENS A WAR COLLEGE.

Enrollment Under Army Supervision Will Start on Oct. 1.

Dr. Alexander T. Humphreys, President of Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, announced yesterday that a unit of the Students' Army Training Corps had been established at the institute under direction of the War Department. It will be organized Oct. 1, and between 550 and 600 students are expected to enroll. They will be quartered at Stevens. Requirements for the enrollment are the same as announced for other colleges in which the training corps has been established.

All youths between 18 and 21, in Class 1A, high school graduates or their equivalent, may enroll. The courses will be from three to nine months. College subjects will be taught and the students will be subject to military drill and discipline. They will be in uniform and receive the pay of a private, $30 a month. They will be removed from the jurisdiction of their local draft board and may be sent to officers' schools and noncommission officers' schools, or if they cannot measure up to standard, may specialize in science, such as chemical warfare and the like.

A circular giving full information regarding the status of enrolled students under the draft law was issued at Trenton yesterday by the New Jersey State Council of Defense, acting for the New Jersey Committee of the American Council of Education, to the Principals of all high schools and private secondary schools. The committee is composed of Professor Edwin S. Corwin of Princeton, Chairman; President Alexander Humphreys of Stevens Institute, and Professor William Demarest of Rutgers.

"Each young man should go to the college of his choice," the statement reads, "matriculate and enter as a regular student. He will, of course, also register with his local draft board. As soon as possible, probably on or about Oct. 1, opportunity will be given for all the regularly enrolled students to be inducted into the Students' Army Training Corps at the schools where they are in attendance. Thus the corps will be organized by voluntary induction under the Selective Service act, instead of by enlistment, as previously contemplated."

The student-soldiers will be given military instruction and will be kept under observation to determine their qualifications as officer-candidates, with possibility of assignment to any of the following posts: Officers' training camp, noncommissioned officers' training school, school for further intensive work in a specified line for a limited specified time, vocational training section of the corps for technician training of military value, cantonment for duty with troops as a private.

TIGHTEN ANTI-LIGHT RULES.

Fuel Administrator Sends a Warning to the Public.

The first of the weekly meetings that are to keep the Fuel Administrators in touch with the situation here was held yesterday afternoon with the Executive Committee of the State Fuel Administration. J. D. A. Morrow, Director of State Distribution of the National Administration, was present. The meeting discussed matters of organization and features of the situation here. Reeve Schley, Assistant State Administrator, gave out this statement:

"Attention of the public is again called to restrictions in regard to the use of artificial illumination.

"The use of outside lights and window lights is to be discontinued absolutely during the daylight hours each and every day.

"Signs and window lights are not to be used at all on the 'lightless nights' —Monday to Thursday, inclusive, and all other outside lights reduced to a minimum necessary for public safety. Outside lights are lights in entrance ways of stores or other buildings. In no case must the amount of light used in this connection exceed a maximum of 10 watts per lineal foot of door or entrance way.

"On other nights care must be taken not to illuminate prior to one-half hour after sunset.

"The use of lights inside of stores for the purpose of lighting windows is not permitted.

"No exemptions will be granted hereafter for street illumination for block celebrations. Such celebrations must be fixed upon nights when the restrictions are not in force; that is, Friday, Saturday, or Sunday nights.

"Violation of these orders will result in the disconnection of the entire supply of electricity or gas to the premises."

BAR ISSUE OF THE NATION.

Postal Authorities Hold Up an Edition of Weekly Magazine.

The Post Office authorities have held up the Sept. 14 issue of The Nation, a weekly magazine published by The Nation Press, Inc., of which Oswald Garrison Villard is President. No explanation was given out by the Post Office authorities here, Postmaster Thomas G. Patten saying that all information must come from Washington.

A statement given out at the office of The Nation yesterday was to the effect that a letter from the New York Post Office, signed by Postmaster Patten, informed the publishers that the Sept. 14 issue of the magazine had been held up and the case submitted to the solicitor of the Post Office Department at Washington, but did not define the article to which objection had been made. It was asserted that the publishers did not know of any article that could be considered objectionable and that all efforts to obtain information from the local Post Office authorities had proved futile.

Postmaster Patten said last night that it was possible that a facsimile of his signature appeared on the letter received by The Nation, but that so far as he knew the case had not actually passed through his hands.

FINDS INDEPENDENTS FRIENDLY TO SMITH

EXPECTS AID FROM WOMEN

Steering Committee to Operate from Up-State Headquarters—Tammany Cry Not Feared.

Returning from a visit to Western New York, Edwin S. Harris, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, said yesterday that he had found a marked sentiment for Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee for Governor, among voters of all classes, and considerable disaffection in the Republican ranks.

"If similar conditions obtain everywhere in the State, or in many places, it should be enough to elect Mr. Smith," said Mr. Harris.

A better understanding of President Wilson's war aims, Mr. Harris said, had resulted in a wider sympathy and more general sentiment for the President than existed two years ago when Mr. Harris made a tour of the State shortly before election. That sentiment, Mr. Harris thought, would weigh very heavily in favor of the Democratic nominee for Governor.

"Mr. Smith will depend to a large extent on the support of independent voters for victory," said Mr. Harris, "and a special appeal will be made to these up State. What is likely to have more weight than anything else with this group of voters—and it has been greatly increased in numbers by the advent of the enfranchised women—is the widespread feeling that Governor Whitman is insincere and a political self-seeker whose actions and attitude on public questions are dictated not by principle but by political expediency solely. No move in this campaign will be efficacious in dispelling that feeling among the independent voters, in my opinion.

"Here is an illustration," he went on. "In a small town up State, which for strategic reasons I will not name, there was a meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union recently. A number of prohibition agitators were present who proclaimed what a glorious champion of the cause Governor Whitman had turned out to be and urged that he be indorsed by the meeting. One woman got up and asked if the Governor was sincere in his advocacy of prohibition or whether it was merely a political play and if in the end he might not do something that would belittle the cause. A pitched battle followed. The Governor was indorsed by a majority vote. But after the meeting six of the women—and they were not Democratic women—took the W. C. T. U. badges from their dresses and declared that they were done with the organization as a result of the indorsement of the Governor."

Mr. Harris said that the Tammany cry raised against Mr. Smith would not find the ready response up State that it had in other years.

"We had a practical demonstration of that in the primaries," said Mr. Harris. "William Church Osborn, admittedly a high-minded, capable, up-standing Democrat, made an aggressive campaign up State on the anti-Tammany issue. Mr. Smith never did a thing to combat it. Mr. Osborn, who should have gotten votes on that issue up State if anybody could, was snowed under. That's the answer."

To capture the independent voters, a special committee will be appointed to campaign for the Democratic nominee up State. The committee will work from the new headquarters of the Democratic State Committee in Syracuse. The work within the Democratic State organization and the financial end of the campaign, however, in all probability will be attended to by a steering committee which will operate from this city. George Sherman, a paper manufacturer of Watertown; Oliver Cabana, Jr., a banker and manufacturer of Buffalo; Edward E. Perkins, President of the First National Bank of Poughkeepsie; D-Cady Herrick of Albany, and ex-Congressman E. S. Underhill of Corning are being considered for members of the committee. Mrs. John W. Cameron, President of the Allied Women's Club of Buffalo, it was said yesterday, would probably be actively identified with the campaign up State to win women votes for Smith and the other candidates.

Mr. Harris said that in Erie County the Conners faction and the radicals, mostly former single taxers, neither of which had pulled with the organization this year, were in line for Smith.

At a meeting of the Cleveland Democracy last night a resolution was unanimously adopted indorsing the entire State Democratic ticket. In seconding the resolution County Clerk Schneider, leader of the organization, said that the election of a Democrat as Governor of the State would be an indorsement of President Wilson, and that the war could be more speedily pushed to a successful conclusion by Democrats. Judge Richard H. Smith presided.

HYLAN PRAISES THE POLICE.

Says They and the Firemen Were Entitled to Advance.

Mayor Hylan sent a letter yesterday to Joseph P. Moran, President of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, in reply to one from the association thanking him for the increase in the salaries of the patrolmen.

"The members of the Police and Fire Departments," wrote the Mayor, "know that their services were appreciated long before the small increase was granted, and I do not believe that this increase of $150 had any effect upon their gratitude, as the question of granting the increase depended entirely upon where the money was to come from. Their work entitled them to this additional compensation.

"I again want to express my deep appreciation for the splendid work that both the Police and Fire Departments have accomplished since I have taken office. They do not need any agitator or trouble maker to secure recognition and consideration during my term of office."

COURT DISMISSES CHILDS INDICTMENT

Justice Finch's Decision Also Affects Three Other Defendants in Election Cases.

HAD APPLIED FOR A WRIT

Court Holds That Even If Facts Were True Grand Jury Was Without Jurisdiction.

A decision yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Finch, if not reversed by the higher courts, disposes of the criminal proceedings against William Hamlin Childs, Josiah T. Newcomb, William Sulzer, and Timothy Healy, who were indicted for violation of the provision of the Corrupt Practices act relating to the filing of campaign expenditures. The case came before Justice Finch on an application in behalf of Mr. Childs in a habeas corpus proceeding, in which he alleged that he was illegally detained and that there was no ground for his indictment.

Justice Finch ruled that under the requirements of the election law the court could require the defendant to file a correct statement of expenditures, and then if he failed to do so he could be punished by a fine of $1,000 or one year in prison. No such proceeding was taken, but the defendant was first indicted on the ground that he had not filed such a statement, although no court had directed him to do so. For this reason the court said:

"He has done nothing for which he is indictable, even assuming that the facts are true, and the Grand Jury was without jurisdiction."

Although the habeas corpus proceeding was brought only in the name of Mr. Childs, the decision will also affect the cases of the other defendants.

WOMEN FOR TRADE SCHOOLS

Secretary Lane Urges Their Acceptance to Replace Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Secretary Lane of the Department of the Interior today wrote to the school authorities of New York City as to the question of whether women should be admitted to trades schools heretofore maintained for men.

"As the war continues," said Mr. Lane's letter, "and as men are called in larger numbers for active military service and for service in the industries connected directly with the war, the demand for women to take the places of men in skilled trades and to do work requiring special preparation will continue to increase.

"Most women have not had the preparation necessary to enable them to fill those positions and do this work, and most of them must get it in the night schools or in other schools especially organized for this kind of instruction. To organize, equip, and maintain separate schools for women would entail much unnecessary expense.

"It would, therefore, seem wise for the City of New York and all other cities in which there is considerable demand for women for such work to admit women to the classes which have been maintained for men in the several trades and occupations. This is only an extension of the plan of co-education which has generally been adopted throughout the country, and which has usually been satisfactory."

ABANDON POLICE STATION.

Greenwich Street Precinct Closed for Lack of Business.

At 12:01 this morning the Greenwich Street Police Station was abandoned by the Police Department, as the officials explain, for "lack of business." It was announced that the building, which is less than ten years old, and is equipped with every modern improvement, would be used as a storage house by the Police Department.

The force of the precinct, which consisted of a Captain, four Lieutenants, eight Sergeants and forty-nine patrolmen, have been assigned to other precincts adjoining, excepting Captain John B. Leary, who was transferred to a Brooklyn precinct a few days ago.

It was explained by Inspector Daly that abandoning the Greenwich Street Station would save the city $50,000 a year in salaries and upkeep of property.

FOUND 'OBJECTORS' CHAINED

Roger N. Baldwin Complains of Treatment of Military Prisoners.

Roger N. Baldwin of the National Civil Liberties Bureau, with offices at 70 Fifth Avenue, issued a statement yesterday saying that he, L. Hollingsworth Wood, Norman M. Thomas, Dr. Judah L. Magnes, and John S. Godman of Boston had visited Fort Jay, on Governors Island, and had found objectionable conditions in the prison where conscientious objectors were kept in solitary confinement. Mr. Baldwin's statement charged:

"That the punishment cells are unsanitary, totally dark, and located in a vaulted chamber which has only one small opening for light and ventilation; that these cells are approximately 5 feet wide, 6 feet long, and 8 feet high, with two ten-inch grated openings for ventilation; that the prisoners are kept continuously in the cells for a maximum period of two weeks on bread and water; that the men are shackled to the iron gratings for eight hours every day."

Mr. Baldwin named some of the prisoners who have been sentenced to long terms.

Investigation disclosed that the prison referred to by Mr. Baldwin is not in Fort Jay at all, but in old Castle Williams. The character of the punishment is prescribed by military regulations, and will not be deviated from, it was said yesterday by Colonel Hunt, Commandant at Castle Williams, until the regulations are changed. In punishing prisoners of the kind referred to by Mr. Baldwin, Colonel Hunt said, the War Department had no intention of locking them up in drawing rooms and feeding them on all the delicacies of the season. He added:

"These self-styled conscientious objectors have been passed on to Fort Leavenworth, where there are better facilities for handling this class of offenders. While here they were not only unwilling to perform any military labor but were unwilling and refused to perform labor of any character or description. In addition, they showed such disrespect and insult to the flag and national anthem as to refuse to remain uncovered and stand at attention. It was necessary to restrain the other prisoners from assaulting them for this intolerable show of disrespect. The punishment inflicted was not inhumane, and was administered on account of the refusal to do any kind of work.

"It must be clearly understood that these men are not recognized as being conscientious objectors. They have been found guilty by the highest military tribunal of being pretenders. It is my duty to see that the sentence is carried into execution and that the prisoners perform hard labor. The Assistant Secretary of War has just completed an inspection of this institution, so that its whole workings are well known at the War Department."

HOPE TO BE ARRESTED.

Suffragists Plan New White House Demonstration.

At a meeting of women last night at the People's House, 7 East Fifteenth Street, Lucy Burns, Vice President of the National Woman's Suffrage Party, who had served seven jail sentences in Washington for engaging in demonstrations before the White House, told of her experiences and urged the members of her audience who could afford to serve a jail sentence at the capital to join a band which will leave on a special train from the Pennsylvania station next Sunday night for Washington. The demonstration will take place Monday at the foot of the Lafayette statue, opposite the White House.

Although the suffragists have obtained a permit from the Washington police to hold the meeting, Miss Burns held out the hope that all the participants would be arrested.

Rose Winslow, who has also served a term in a Washington jail, recommended hunger striking as an excellent means for women who eat and drink too much to correct their figures. "Every person," she said, "owes it to herself to go to jail at least once, just to get the experience."

HIGH MASS FOR ANNA HELD.

Actress's Attorney Explains in Cathedral That She Died a Catholic.

A high mass of requiem for Anna Held, the actress, whose death occurred a few weeks ago, was said in St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. There were about 500 persons present, the majority of whom were nonprofessionals, and the coffin rested before the altar during the services. Charles F. Hanlon of San Francisco, Miss Held's attorney and executor of her will, explained that the requiem mass was arranged because through inadvertence the friends who had charge of the funeral services were not informed that Miss Held had died in the Catholic faith.

The celebrant was the Rev. William B. Martin, assistant rector of the cathedral; the deacon was the Rev. Patrick Daly, and the sub-deacon was the Rev. Bernard Corcoran, while the Rev. Henry F. Hammer was master of ceremonies. The music was furnished by the full choir under the leadership of Professor J. C. Ungerer.

The mourners occupied pews on either side of the coffin. In the party were Miss Liane Carrera, Miss Held's daughter; Mrs. Wescott Allan, sister of Miss Lillian Russell, whom she represented, and Beatrice Brioschi, for thirteen years Miss Held's maid.

The body was taken to Holy Angels' Cemetery at Mount Pleasant, Westchester County, for interment.

The glad hand!

In normal times it greets the normal demand for good clothes among the vast majority, men of modest incomes who want the most for their money as well as the best.

But in war times it also grips the minority who used to wink at the luxury of the tailor's label.

We give below what we consider one of the finest letters on this subject that has ever come to hand.

Rogers Peet Company,
New York City.

Gentlemen:—

Although I have been a customer of your firm for several years, I have never bought a suit at your stores. Last Saturday I bought one suit at your Fifth Avenue store and two at your 34th Street store, although I only intended to buy one suit. Your Fifth Avenue store couldn't fit me in the material I wanted, a heavy Scotch tweed, so I bought one of a different material from the gentlemanly salesman, because it appeared to be such good value, and I went to your 34th Street store where I found the sort of suit I started out to buy and the values appeared so exceptional that I bought two of the suits, completing my requirements for the winter.

In these days of profiteering, I want to compliment you on the values you appear to be giving in the clothing you are selling.

Yours sincerely,

A size for every build!

TRUESDELL RETAINS SENIORS' GOLF TITLE

HASSE ONE STROKE BEHIND

Philadelphia Player Comes Within Inch of Tying Card of 172 Made by Leader.

Not wishing to be outdone by their predecessors of Tuesday and Wednesday, those who stuck it out to the end in the second half of the Seniors' Golf Association tournament at Apawamis yesterday made a good try for chief honors. When it was all over, however, W. E. Truesdell of Garden City continued to head the list with a thirty-six-hole total of 172. Truesdell, therefore, becomes the tournament winner for the second year in succession.

Edward Hasse of the Philadelphia Cricket Club only missed duplicating Truesdell's score by the narrow margin of a stroke. He had taken 88 on Thursday, and yesterday an 85 gave a total of 173. An approach shot to the home hole that stopped within an inch of the cup but failed to drop shows how closely Hasse came to tying for the Seniors' title.

As Hasse takes the gross award of the last two days, Frank A. Wright of Baltusrol, with a score of 85, won yesterday's gross prize. The net leaders in the various divisions yesterday were as follows:

Class A, Frank M. Clute and W. H. Batterson, 164; Class B, J. William Smith, 154; Class C, Henry B. Sargent, 169; Class D, Morton Alden, 174.

Long driving honors of the meeting went to George S. O'Flyn of the Crescent Athletic Club, who on his last try from the first tee propelled the rubbercore 232 yards. Prior to that George Statzell's 224 yards stood for the longest ball in the second half of the tournament.

It will take hours of work on the part of the committee to dig out all the prize winners, and when the list is completed the total of awards will run up close to forty.

CLASS A.

Frank M. Clute, Garden City, 200—36—164; W. H. Batterson, Overbrook, 188, 24—164; Eberhard Faber, Lakewood, 202, 36—166; George Van Keuren, Englewood, 192, 24—168; A. C. Fetterolf, Upper Montclair, 197, 28—169; Archer C. Puddington, Forest Hill, 197, 28—169; Francis S. Phraner, Canoe Brook, 205, 36—169; S. S. Gaylord, Forest Hill, 211, 40—171; F. W. T. CHAMPION IN GOLF MATCH.

Evans and Jones to Play Two Contests on Local Links.

Chick Evans, national amateur and open golf champion, will be in New York today to give metropolitan golfers a display of his talents on the links. Paired with the youthful but efficient Bobby Jones of Atlanta, the champion will play in two four ball matches, one at Baltusrol this afternoon and the other at Scarsdale tomorrow afternoon. In the contest at Baltusrol Evans and Jones will be paired against Max R. Marston of Baltusrol and Oswald Kirkby of Englewood, two of the best amateurs of the local district. Kirkby holds the metropolitan amateur championship, having won that distinction two years ago. The match at Baltusrol will start at 3:30 P. M. and will be at 18 holes.

In the Scarsdale affair Evans and Jones will meet two professionals, Jack Dowling, instructor at Scarsdale, and Tommy McNamara, of Taplow. Dowling and McNamara, although two of the smallest professionals in stature, rank near the top of the field. The Scarsdale match will be at eighteen holes and will start at 2 P. M. All the receipts from the two matches will go to the Red Cross.

NEW GREENS AT HAWORTH.

Jersey Golf Club to Display Changes for First Time Today.

Four of the new greens of the Haworth Country Club links will be open for the first time today, when the qualifying round for the annual club championship will be played. During the season, without interfering with the regular play, material changes have been made.

Rolling greens are among the new features. There is one new hole that has attracted much attention, the tee being set back of the line of trees, so that the play is out of the neck of a bottle. The green lies some 200 yards away. The main plan of the lay-out is to secure a course that will be difficult for good players and yet enjoyable for those less gifted.

The members who have taken an active interest in promoting the improvements include President C. C. Nobles, Roy W. Porter, H. F. Hosley, Chris Bambach, J. T. Monahan, L. P. Streeter and W. D. Ramsburgh.

MRS. RYAN LEADS GOLFERS.

Has Best Score in Women's One-Day Tourney at Westfield.

Twenty-five players took part in the one-day tournament under the auspices of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association at the Westfield Golf Club yesterday. Mrs. F. B. Ryan of Union County won the event, with a card of 99—5—94. In the approaching and putting contest Miss Violet Miller of Baltusrol led, taking nine strokes for three tries.

TO ENCOURAGE FOOTBALL.

War Department Officially Denies Sport Will Be Curtailed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Football programs for this Fall at colleges and universities with army training corps units will not be interrupted by the War Department except where they actually would interfere with military training.

Protests which began to reach members of Congress yesterday against the action of an officer of the training corps service in advising that football schedules be abandoned, drew an official statement from the War Department today that no such step had been authorized. On the contrary, it was stated that the educational students would be advised formally to continue their athletic schedules without permitting them to curtail the military course.

COLUMBIA TEAM IN DOUBT.

Football Candidates Await Orders from Commandant.

Columbia University's football plans which appeared to be settled last week are to be held in abeyance until the commandant of the university, Colonel John Finley, decides whether it will be possible to put an intercollegiate football team on the field in view of the heavy schedule of military and academic studies which will be carried by each student, all of whom will be registered in the Students' Army Training Corps. Pending Colonel Finley's decision Columbia's football plans are not as far along as they were a week ago, when a date had been set for calling out candidates and arrangements for the season had virtually been made.

As the situation was yesterday the university officials were determined to have athletic teams in intercollegiate competition if it was at all possible to do so, but they were ready to accede to every request or suggestion that might be made by the War Department directly or by the military commandant. In the meantime candidates for the 'Varsity football team will not be called out and no move will be made to resume athletics until the commandant gives the word.

DESCH LOSES HIS TITLE.

Declared Ineligible to Wear Paulist Insignia at Time of Meet.

A. Desch of Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, formerly of the Paulist A. C., was deprived of his junior Metropolitan Association A. A. U. 220-yard low hurdle championship title and ordered to return the titular emblem last night by the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association. The committee met at the Morningside A. C. for the last time before the annual Metropolitan Association meeting, which will be held Monday night at the Glencoe A. C.

The charge against Desch was that he was ineligible to represent the Paulist A. C. at the time he won his title, July 21. The rules state that an athlete must be a member of a club for a least three months prior to the date of a championship meet to be eligible to represent that club in the title games.

A letter was read at the meeting in which Edward L. Emes, former standing high jump champion, asked the committee to reconsider his case and reinstate him as an amateur. Emes is a former Bronx Church House athlete. In 1915 he was disqualified as an amateur, with Platt Adams, because of his identification with a sporting goods business. The athletes were not branded professionals, because under the A. A. U. rules they were eligible to compete as amateurs again if they ended their connection with the sporting goods houses. Emes has dissociated himself from the sporting goods business and is now in the navy. The local committee was powerless to act in the matter, but referred the case to the national A. A. U. Registration Committee, and it is expected that Emes will shortly be reinstated.

Thomas McNamara, formerly of the St. John's Club, now competing unattached, drew a disqualification for violation of the rules.

Vancouver Gunner Wins Continental Trophy at Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 13.—F. M. Troeh, the Western amateur clay bird champion of Vancouver, Wash., captured the continental trophy in the chief event of the twelfth annual West Hogan trap shooting tourney here today by getting 156 birds and making his total for the three days 469 out of a possible 480.

F. S. Wright of New York City, shooting in Class A in competition with 200 others, made a score of 158 hawks out of a possible 160, while Charles Newcomb, the Pennsylvania champion, tied with E. S. Tremlin of New Jersey with 157 for second place. Third money went to C. D. Coburn of Newark, Ohio, and Troeh was fourth.

The Class B shoot produced keen competition and was won by W. C. Litterman of Ohio, with 156. W. B. Ogden of New York City and C. A. Hardy of Pennsylvania tied for second place, with 155 birds each. Third honors went to F. C. Dial of Pittsburgh, with 152.

F. E. Watkins of New York City took top honors in Class C, with 153. George Gray of Pennsylvania and W. D. Pritchard of New York City tied for second place, with 152 each.

The Eastern team again outshot the Western team in the finals, bringing their total up to 2,399 birds, against 2,243 for the Westerners. On the winning team were Wright, New York City; Fish, New York City; Newcomb, Philadelphia; Tremlin, New Jersey, and Morgan, Washington, D. C.

RIVAL NINES IN BATTLE.

With many of the sidelights of an Army-Navy football game, the baseball teams of the Receiving Ship of the Brooklyn Navy Yard and the Quartermaster's Department of Camp Merritt will clash for the service championship at the Polo Grounds today. The stands will be filled with soldiers and sailors, bands will play and there will be a drill by the Officers' Training School from Pelham Bay.

FUTURITY TO CLOSE RACES AT BELMONT

Popular Juvenile Event to be Decided Today—Shuttinger Sleeps in Saddle.

Racing at Belmont Park yesterday was of the same weird character that has prevailed during most of the meeting that will end today with an excellent card that includes the Futurity, one of the most popular of the juvenile events and for which a representative entry has been received.

The changing of the finish line to judge the fourth race at a mile and a quarter led Jockey Andy Shuttinger into an error that has been made by other riders and the result was that his mount, the Quincy Stable's Starry Banner, was deprived of a victory that he had at his mercy. By energetic riding Shuttinger had kept Starry Banner in front of S. C. Hildreth's Deckmate all through the journey, and when Deckmate challenged in the last sixteenth, Starry Banner had no trouble in shaking him off, so that he led by a good length as he passed the usual finishing line.

In giving riding instructions Trainer Fitzimmons had forgotten to jog Shuttinger's memory of the change which brought the finish opposite the clubhouse, and the boy pulled up Starry Banner to have Deckmate seize the golden opportunity and rush up to head Starry Banner as they passed the judges.

In the last race the officials were responsible for a scene, as after four two-year-olds had reached the line almost abreast, they ordered the hoisting of Senator Crow's No. 2, instead of No. 12, which belonged to Joseph E. Widener's Peter, the colt that the crowd had recognized as the first past the post. There was an outcry which resulted in the judges' discovering their mistake, and the numbers were changed so that first place went to Peter, with Senator Crow put back so that he was out of the money, where he really belonged.

Lyke, who afterward became slightly ill so that he had to forego his other mounts, was responsible for the defeat of S. C. Hildreth's Arrah Go On, the favorite in the first race. He raced Arrah Go On furiously in the early part of the race, and had nothing left for the finish when the Greentree Stable's Peter Piper and G. W. Loft's Buckboard came along. Peter Piper scored handily for the Greentree Stable, which sent a second winner to the post in the fifth race for two-year-olds in which Sailor graduated by half a length over Young Adam.

S. C. Hildreth also scored a double, winning the Cedarhurst Handicap with Regal Lodge and the fourth race with Deckmate.

SYRACUSE RACES AT END.

Murphy Drives Winner in Final Day of Grand Circuit.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 13.—The Grand Circuit meeting in connection with the New York State Fair closed here with three races this afternoon. The races were late in starting, and the time was slow because of a rain-soaked and heavy track, and the last of two amateur events was raced in a rainstorm.

The opening event on the program went the full five heats. Zoller drove Jenne Dean to the wire first in the two first heats, but Lyman, in a whipping finish, sent Mazda in by a nose in the third and came back again in the fourth. Mazda led all the way in the fifth for heat winners and won first money.

BLOODED YEARLINGS SOLD FOR BIG SUMS

Wilson Pays $10,000 for Colt from Hurricana Stud—Madden Gets One for $7,000.

Prominent turfmen crowded Durland's last night to engage in spirited competition for the yearlings bred by John Sanford, many of which were youngsters of the best foreign blood, whose dams had been imported to enrich the Hurricana Stud at Amsterdam, N. Y. The youngsters looked well cared for and almost fit to be set down for a speed trial. Richard T. Wilson, Jr., was one of the big buyers, and he secured the prize of the evening in Donnacona, a brown colt by the great English stallion Prince Palatine, out of Kildonan, for which he paid the handsome sum of $10,000. Mr. Wilson also purchased a colt named Cordelier, by the French sire Rabelais, and another colt, Jean Bullant, also of French lineage. The total received for twenty-six head was $35,575, an average of $1,368.

After the Sanford yearlings had been disposed of some particularly fine home-bred youngsters were offered from the studs of W. B. Miller, Henry A. Porter, and Hal Price Headley. The star of these consignments was a wonderful-looking chestnut colt by Ogden-Round the World, which suggests great speed possibilities on both sire and dam sides. John E. Madden made it clear that he intends to remain in racing by outstaying all competitors for this colt, which was knocked down to him for $7,000. Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords, who paid a record price for a yearling at Saratoga, added another good one to her stable in Hoodwink, a likely looking son of Disguise, for which she paid $4,000.

ABANDON TENNIS TOURNEY.

Lack of Entries Causes Cancellation of Women's Title Play.

Lack of entries caused an abandonment of the women's Long Island tennis championship tournament, which was scheduled to commence yesterday on the courts of the Woodmere Country Club. Leslie Fishel of the Woodmere Club, who had charge of the event, declared he had notified prospective participants by wire that the fixture had been abandoned because only fourteen entries had been received.

TAKES STEPS TO STOP INFLUENZA SPREAD

Surgeon General Blue Says It Can Be Controlled Only by Intelligent Action of Public.

GIVES ADVICE TO DOCTORS

Makes Known Course of Treatment—More Cases at Boston—Disease Appears at Newport.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. — Surgeon General Blue of the Public Health Service has made a telegraphic survey to determine the extent of Spanish influenza in the United States. General Blue found that there was a sharp outbreak at Fort Morgan, near Mobile, Ala., in August, and at about the same time a tramp steamer arrived at Newport News with almost the entire crew prostrated. Philadelphia posted a few cases some four weeks ago, and a few have been reported from New York. The Boston outbreak was reported on Sept. 11. Since then the epidemic has appeared at New London, while New Orleans has not wholly escaped.

The disease is characterized by sudden onset," said Dr. Blue today. "People are stricken on the street, while at work in factories, shipyards, offices, or elsewhere. First there is a chill, then fever with temperature from 101 to 103, headache, backache, reddening and running of the eyes, pains and aches all over the body, and general prostration. Persons so attacked should go to their homes at once, get to bed without delay, and immediately call a physician.

"Treatment under direction of the physician is simple, but important, consisting principally of rest in bed, fresh air, abundant food, with Dover's powder for the relief of pain. Every case with fever should be regarded as serious, and kept in bed at least until temperature becomes normal.

"Convalescence requires careful management to avoid serious complications, such as bronchial pneumonia, which not infrequently may have fatal termination. During the present outbreak in foreign countries the salts of quinine and aspirin have been most generally used during the acute attack, the aspirin apparently with much success in the relief of symptoms."

Because the last pandemic of influenza occurred more than twenty-five years ago, physicians who began to practice medicine since 1892 have not had personal experience in handling a situation now spreading through a considerable part of the foreign world and already appearing to some extent in the United States. For that reason Dr. Blue is issuing a special bulletin for all medical men who send for it. In order to reach physicians of the country without a day's delay, however, Dr. Blue has provided for transmission through The Associated Press the following summary of methods for control of the disease:

"Infectious Agent—The bacillus influenza of Pfeiffer.

"Sources of Infection—The secretions from the nose, throat and respiratory passages of cases or of carriers.

"Incubation Period—One to four days; generally two.

"Mode of Transmission—By direct contact or indirect contact through the use of handkerchiefs, common towels, cups, mess gear, or other objects contaminated with fresh secretions. Droplet infection plays an important part.

"Period of Communicability—As long as the person harbors the causative organism in the respiratory tract.

"Methods of Control—(a) The infected individual and his environment.

"Recognition of the Disease—By clinical manifestations and bacteriological findings.

"Isolation—Bed isolation of infected individuals during the course of the disease. Screens between beds are to be recommended.

"Immunization — Vaccines are used with only partial success.

"Quarantine—None; impracticable.

"Concurrent Disinfection — The discharges from the mouth, throat, nose, and other respiratory passages.

"Terminal Disinfection — Thorough cleansing, airing, and sunning. The causative organism is shortlived outside the host.

"(b) General Measures—The attendant of the case should wear a gauze mask. During epidemics persons should avoid crowded assemblages, street cars, and the like. Education as regards the danger of promiscuous coughing and spitting. Patients, because of the tendency to the development of bronchopneumonia, should be treated in well-ventilated, warm rooms.

"The present outbreak of influenza may be controlled to more or less extent by intelligent action on the part of the public.

"There is no such thing as an effective quarantine in the case of pandemic influenza," Dr. Blue adds, "but precautionary measures may be taken and should be taken. Thus far we have little information as to susceptibility of children, but it is fair to assume that this type of influenza might spread through a school as easily and rapidly as measles, for example."

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 13.—The order issued a few days ago by Rear Admiral Joseph W. Oman, Commandant of the Second Naval District, forbidding enlisted men to visit Boston on account of the prevalence of influenza in that city, was extended today to prohibit the men from going outside of Newport without obtaining special leave. The order affects naval guards and yeomen. There are a few cases of influenza at the Naval Hospital here.

MORE NAVAL MEN STRICKEN.

Influenza Epidemic at Boston Is Still Spreading.

BOSTON, Sept. 13.—The epidemic of influenza among officers and enlisted men in the First Naval District, which began nearly three weeks ago, continued to spread today, reports of 210 new cases reaching headquarters. A total of 1,693 cases had been discovered since the disease became prevalent, resulting in 34 deaths.

The Federal Quarantine Station on an island in the harbor was taken over by naval officers today and 200 patients will be cared for there.

CAN'T GET RIGHT KIND OF CAT

Only One Brought to Tank Corps Men Too Well Fed.

The Tank Corps gave up yesterday the idea of having the black cat mascot it advertised for on Thursday. One solitary youngster showed up at the tank station in front of the Public Library, Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, in the afternoon with a black cat in a hand bag. It was such a sleek, well-fed cat that the tank boys decided it was too good looking to serve with an organization whose motto is "Treat 'em rough."

The men of the Tank Corps wanted a black cat not only for a mascot but as an attraction at the benefit which will be held in the Century Theatre on Sunday. So the boys advertised that they would give $2 for a black cat, which must have a disreputable appearance and a disposition to match his looks. While waiting for cats to arrive yesterday, Gustav W. Hufal, an artist, made crayon sketches on a big board put up alongside the tank. He drew the kind of cat the boys wanted and then he drew a soldier holding the only cat entered.

While the sketches were being made the mechanical cat on top of the small tank was kept arching its back and waving its tail while the make-believe gun on the tank kept rattling away to the great satisfaction of the crowd.

Persic Carried 1,999 Soldiers.

According to a cable message received in this city from London yesterday, concerning the British transport Persic, which was torpedoed on Sept. 6, the official number of American troops on board at the time of the attack was 36 officers in the first cabin, 6 in the second cabin, and 1,957 enlisted men below decks, making a total of 1,999, with a crew of 200 officers and men.

CANADA'S GAIN FROM LOANS.

$400,000,000 of Money Advanced to Great Britain Spent in the Dominion.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. — About $400,000,000 of the money loaned to Greta Britain was spent in Canada for wheat and munitions during the year ended June 30, and contributed materially to improving the exchange situation, which was so adverse to Canadian business interests. This became known here today in connection with the Treasury reports that exports from the United States to Canada in the year were $78,000,000, and imports from Canada $434,000,000, leaving about $350,000,000 balance against Canada, in addition to interest and maturities on Canadian obligations in this country.

This balance was more than offset, however, by the use of British credits, officials explained. In addition, a two-year loan of $65,000,000 was arranged privately in New York by Canada within the year under approval of the American Government. The War and Navy Departments have placed large orders in Canada, contracts now outstanding being reported at about $125,000,000. A substantial part of exports to Canada represent munitions or materials later re-exported in finished form to the United States or Great Britain, and financed almost entirely by American credits to Great Britain.

SHIPYARDS NEED 200,000.

Schwab Declares Workers Must Be Procured by Jan. 1.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—The shipyards of the country must have 200,000 more men by Jan. 1 if the shipping program was to be carried out, said Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, here tonight. He will confer with Provost Marshal General Crowder next Tuesday on the matter of draft exemptions in order to get more men for the yards. Large expectations are based upon the men in non-essential industries going to the plants. The necessary men in the yards must somehow be retained, he said.

Mr. Schwab, however, does not favor blanket exemptions for ship workers, for he thinks that no group of employers should be enabled to hire men where and when they please and have them exempted as a class.

The Emergency Fleet Corporation today nissued an order that it would not ask exemption or deferred classification by reason of necessary Government employment for any employe who would otherwise beplaced in Class 1, except for those who are essential in furthering the production of ships or equipment. It will, however, ask for exemption or deferred classification by reason of necessary Government employment for some employes likely to be placed in Class 2 or 4, if in its opinion these men are necessary to further the production of ships.

PLAN FOR CHEMICAL SHOW.

Coming Exposition Is Expected to Call 25,000 Chemists Here.

It was estimated yesterday by those in charge of the Fourth National Exposition of Chemical Industries, which is to be held in Grand Central Palace the week of Sept. 23, that 25,000 chemists from all parts of the United States, Canada, South America, and from a number of the allied countries would be in attendance.

More than 350 exhibits will be displayed on the three floors of the Palace, and nearly all of these in one form or another have a bearing on the production of war materials. Papers covering practically every phase of chemistry and a discussion of steps that will need to be taken after the war will be presented.

Not the least important exhibit will be that of the new American coal tar dye industry, which, since the holding of the last exposition, has reached such proportions that Germany's former hold on the American market is regarded as gone for all time. In addition American dyestuffs are now invading former German strongholds in countries all over the world. Although the Government is to take over the Grand Central Palace for hospital purposes within the next few days, the Federal authorities, in view of the importance of the exposition, have agreed not to disturb the exposition. The chemical show, however, will be the last exhibition to be held in the building before it is converted into a hospital for the period of the war.

OUT OF PRISON ON OWN WRIT

Sing Sing Convict Draws Paper That Wins His Release.

John Campbell, a convict in Sing Sing Prison for more than two years, appeared before Supreme Court Justice Tompkins in White Plains yesterday and obtained his discharge from the prison on a writ of habeas corpus which he had drawn himself. Campbell was taken to court by a keeper, who told the court the only papers turned over to him by the prison authorities were the habeas corpus writ and the order of commitment showing when Campbell had been sent to prison. No one appeared for the State.

Campbell said he had been sent to prison from Manhattan for larceny and that his term expired several months ago. "You are discharged from custody," said Justice Tompkins, after he had examined the papers.

A Secret Service operative asked Campbell if he had his draft registration card. He said he didn't and when told he might be picked up he returned to Sing Sing to get his registration card from the Warden, as all the convicts were registered there on Thursday but no cards were issued.

LABOR SHORTAGE HERE.

Barnes Asserts 350,000 Men Are Needed for Government Work.

There is a serious shortage of unskilled labor in industries in New York State engaged in the production of war materials, according to Charles B. Barnes, Federal State Superintendent of the United States Employment Service for New York.

"Informal reports based on a survey made by our Community Labor Boards indicate that approximately 350,000 additional men are required to work on Government war orders in the East," said Mr. Barnes yesterday. "This number is needed immediately, and the need is increasing constantly.

"There must be a general waking up of the people to the emergency. The skilled labor shortage is almost as serious as that of common labor. The help-wanted column of the New York newspapers are jammed with calls for skilled men and women, and the Federal Employment Service Bureaus throughout the city receive daily requests from dozens of plants needing skilled as well as unskilled labor."

HELD IN $40,000 ROBBERY.

Buyer and Stationer Alleged to Have Connived to Pad Bills.

Detectives assigned to investigate the loss of about $40,000 in the office of Wilcox, Peck & Hughes, insurance brokers at 3 South William Street, yesterday arrested James J. Maguire, purchasing agent for the company, and Willis Chamberlain, 74 years old, the proprietor of a stationery store at 110 John Street. They were held in $10,000 bail by Magistrate Marsh in the Tombs Court on a charge of grand larceny in the alleged theft of $1,135.

Deputy Assistant District Attorney Burke told Magistrate Marsh that sums had been taken during two years, and he said that checks had been made out in payment of dummy bills for supplies. Both prisoners denied any part in the thefts.

Suit Dresses In Again.

The suit dress of last year is coming in again this season with added strength, according to reports from a number of local manufacturers. Such fabrics as jersey, serge, and broadcloth are popular for these garments. A khaki-colored suede finished wool material is also well liked. There seems to be the greatest demand for dresses of this sort in medium-priced lines. They are held to be very satisfactory for business wear, and the more simplified styles, smartly tailored and neat, are therefore getting the preference.

Fall Trade in Lingerie.

Fall business in fancy lingerie for women has been fairly active. Authorities in the trade in this city report that there is a tendency away from the extremely high-priced merchandise and that very cheap goods are even more out of the running. Trade, therefore, in the medium grades is increasing very considerably. Fine silks in flesh color, with perhaps a delicate touch of lavender embroidery appropriately placed, are very popular. Ribbons and laces are not quite as lavishly used as they were last year, though ribbons are still in favor for decorative purposes.

Dimity and Poplin Rompers Liked.

In spite of the lateness of the season, there is still quite a considerable demand for rompers for both boys and girls. Dimities and poplins are among the materials generally wanted in these garments, and such colors as khaki, blue and a few mixtures are most in evidence. The one-piece type is reported to be more favored than the other. For little girls some of these are made without sleeves and with collarless necks. Belts are used on some models, while on others shirring is employed to hold the garment in around the waist.

Full Length Panels on Capes.

Full length back panels, so popular on skirts and dresses, are now making their appearance on elaborately draped capes for formal evening wear. Buyers who have seen these later models are said to have been very well impressed and to have included quite a few of the newer creations in their duplicate orders. Where the evening cape is fur trimmed the bottom of the long back panel is edged with a strip of fur, sometimes eight or ten inches deep. On capes in which fur trimming is not used the panel is frequently finished off with fringe.

Tentative Orders Will Stand.

Louis Lowinson, a cotton goods broker of this city, yesterday received a letter from Spencer Turner of the cotton goods section of the War Industries Board, in which the board's attitude toward the selling of gray goods for delivery after Oct. 1 at tentative prices was made clear. In substance, the letter said that while orders of this kind which were taken prior to Sept. 6 would be permitted to stand, the board regards trading of this kind as wholly contrary to the spirit of the ruling made at the time the current prices were fixed. Consequently, there will be no more of it.

Gray Goods Trading Fair.

A fair amount of business was put through in the local gray goods market yesterday, the feature of which was the selling by second hands of September lots of 39-inch 68-72s at 20 cents. The figure is a full 2 cents a yard higher than the maximum price at which mills are allowed to sell the same goods under the ruling of the War Industries Board. Other sales made during the day included some odds and ends from the mills at Government prices. A fair trade was done in fine yarn goods, and some specialties also were let out.

An Attractive Coat Style.

The coat-wrap type of outer garment being shown for the late Fall trade is hailed in a great many quarters as a distinct change from either the coat or cape styles of last season. Because it is different from anything that has gone before in recent years, great things are expected of it. Its distinctive feature is huge kimono sleeves which have been variously worked out by different designers to produce very much the effect of a wrap instead of a coat. Buyers seem to feel that these new creations have a high degree of grace and smartness, and some substantial orders have already been placed for them.

Government to Buy Furs.

Prices of some furs for civilian use are expected to advance still further as a result of Government purchases, according to the market report of Funsten Bros. & Co. of St. Louis. In part, it says: "The Government, we understand, has entered the market lately and no doubt will be a large consumer of furs suitable for military purposes, for delivery within the next few months. This action on the part of the Government should serve to further fortify the present strong position of the trade, and will probably have a most stimulating effect on business in the immediate future." The report also says that skunk and muskrat continue to lead in demand but that lately there has been a strong demand for lynx, wildcat, and good quality wolves.

Coal Deliveries Well Caught Up.

Saward's Weekly will say today that, to all intents and purposes, the anthracite trade is about half way through the Fall season, in spite of the calendar, for the entire absence of a Summer let-up in activity meant that a lot of people who ordinarily buy their coal in the autumn took it in earlier than usual this year. "Time out of mind," it will continue, "it has been the aim of coal men to bring about an equalizing of the seasonal demand such has now been materialized. The sliding scale of Summer discounts was devised with this end in view and, while it has accomplished its purpose up to a certain point, there was always a large element of the population that could never be prevailed upon to be forehanded in the matter of their Winter's coal supply."

Says Ostrich Is Coming Strong.

While the revival of the demand for ostrich trimmings is apparently not progressing as rapidly as some members of the trade would like to see, the opinion prevails that these feathers will be big factors in the millinery business before the current season is over. According to an executive of one prominent house, ostrich trimmings have not been active in a big way for so long that women have practically got to get used to them all over again. He also said that a new crop of milliners has sprung up in the last four years or so, and that these, without any great experience at trimming with ostrich, will doubtless be inclined to "feel their way" for a time. Ostrich, he said, is not a young woman's trimming, but, against this, several million women have reached the "ostrich age" since its last big year.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular, with Active Speculative Issues Once More Under Pressure.

With no changes immediately affecting the stock market having come to light over the holiday, yesterday's session on the Exchange was for the most part dull, with transactions limited in volume outside of a few issues in which liquidation continued. The Money Committee has added nothing to the statement of its position issued more than a week ago, but its attitude is so well understood that there has been no disposition on the part of traders to accept additional responsibilities. The committee is now in possession of data on which it can judge of the extent to which speculative operations have figured in the money market, and it is unquestionably in a position to control activities of the kind which threatened the bankers' peace of mind a few weeks ago.

There was a good deal of selling yesterday in a few issues which have figured largely in the work of pools, but it was handled carefully, and the market was allowed to recover part of the ground lost. Judging by the movement, the position in steel has been straightened out; its lowest price yesterday was made at 107⅛, and it ended the session slightly above its previous close. New Haven, General Motors, Mercantile Marine, Distillers, Wilson & Co., St. Paul, and American Sumatra did not fare so well, losing on an average of more than two points. Naturally such singling out of issues which had been speculative favorities on the rise gave rise to reports that bankers were advising brokers to reduce their holdings of stocks which have figured too prominently in the loan accounts. The decline was not abrupt, and the indications are that the situation which existed when the Money Committee wrote to the Stock Exchange suggesting contraction has been cleared to meet the views of the bankers.

The splendid war news yesterday of the cutting off of the St. Mihiel salient had no appreciable influence upon the market. The Government loans were less buoyant after the spurt they enjoyed earlier in the week on announcement of Secretary McAdoo's plan for broadening the tax exemption privilege, and sold slightly lower. Money rates were unchanged, with no increase in the supply available on the floor.

GOOD UNDERTONE IN LONDON.

American Advance Creates Favorable Impression Among Traders.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—While the excellent war news of the American advance caused a good impression in the stock market and was responsible for the maintenance of a confident undertone, some week-end profit taking made the market look slightly ragged. Consols and the Cunard issues suffered from realizations. Other securities showed little change. Business was generally quiet. The Russian issues were weak.

Trading Quiet on Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 64 francs 20 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 26 francs 8 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 8 francs 5 centimes.

Yorkville Bank in Reserve System.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The Yorkville Bank of New York, with resources of $9,224,000, was admitted today to the Federal Reserve system. This made 736 State banks or trust companies on the membership roll of the system.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Total of Stock Exchange Loans.

Although the so-called Money Committee has not seen fit to make public any figures for the amount of collateral loans held by the New York City banks and trust companies, it was learned yesterday that the aggregate of outstanding call and demand loans made on Stock Exchange collateral is approximately $350,000,000. Bankers familiar with operations of the big institutions say that this total is unusually small compared with the total of such loans in normal times. Since the Money Committee assumed supervision and control of the money market the volume of loans has been reduced considerably. It is believed that as a result of the current movement to curtail credits there will gradually be effected a still greater contraction in loans.

Break and Recovery.

The recovery which occurred late in yesterday's stock market session was hardly vigorous enough to remove the earlier development of considerable weakness. Certain of the so-called "pool" stocks, including American Sumatra, Distillers Securities, and Industrial Alcohol, suffered declines during the morning which could be described as breaks. American Sumatra sold down more than 6 points, Distillers and Industrial Alcohol 2½ points or more. Again, brokerage offices sought for explanations, and centred, as on numerous occasions of the past, on the loan situation.

Selling to Reduce Loans.

In regard to the banking efforts to curtail the supply of funds for speculative purposes, numerous rumors have sprung into life. Some brokers had a theory yesterday that certain large traders, men of substantial means who usually carry long lines of stocks on credit, had sought to transfer their brokerage accounts to their banks, being apprehensive of publicity which might possibly follow in the wake of daily reports by Stock Exchange houses on their loans, and had been refused accommodation. This failure, the theory had it, had caused considerable selling of stocks as the speculators sought to reduce their loans. As far as comment in brokerage offices went, there appeared not to have been any great amount of liquidation in recent days of investment securities.

Iron Ore Conference.

A number of iron ore producers held a conference at the offices of the Steel Corporation yesterday, the meeting being preliminary to the general meeting at Washington next week. The various interests connected with the manufacture of iron and steel are preparing data to lay before the War Industries Board when prices for the last quarter of the year are discussed.

Applications for New Issues.

The District Committee on Capital Issues of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, of which Pierre Jay is Chairman, is busily engaged in passing upon applications for new security issues. Each application has to be investigated and applicants given a hearing before the District Committee can make a recommendation to the general committee in Washington. It was said yesterday that applications were coming in at the rate of about fifty a week.

Government's Need of Office Space.

Several Wall Street firms which for various reasons have recently had to search for additional office space report that their real estate agents have orders to submit every considerable bit of floor space available for office purposes to the Government for refusal before they are allowed to offer it on the open market. In any case, the famine in office space appears to be growing, and to be more serious than the famine in apartment space.

Western Pacific Bond Offer.

Holders of bonds of the defunct Western Pacific Railroad Company who did not agree to the original reorganization scheme are now being offered, by the new company, an opportunity to come in on the same terms, by an adjustment of interest paid on the bonds against dividends on the stock since the reorganization, while the equity represented by the judgment under the guarantee by the Denver & Rio Grande is still in process of determination. The total number of bonds still outstanding is only about 5 per cent. of the original issue.

The Canadian Northern.

What is probably the penultimate step in the winding up of the affairs of the Canadian Northern Railway was taken by the Government of Canada yesterday when Mackenzie & Mann and the Canadian Bank of Commerce received a check for $8,500,000 as payment for 510,000 of the 600,000 shares of the railroad outstanding. This was the value fixed for the shares in the arbitration proceedings.

NEW ROYAL DUTCH ISSUE.

Terms on Which Shares Are Offered to American Stockholders.

The Royal Dutch Company having offered to holders of its ordinary shares the right to subscribe to new shares, at par, to the extent of 50 per cent. of their present holdings, holders of so-called "American shares," issued under an agreement by which the Equitable Trust Company of New York acts as depositary, have been informed that they are entitled to subscribe to one sub-share (par value florins 100) for each six American shares held.

The right to subscribe for the new Royal Dutch Company's ordinary shares may be exercised by registered holders of American shares of record Sept. 13, by surrendering to the Equitable Trust Company on or before Sept. 21 their subscription warrants, accompanied by a payment at the rate of $60 for each ordinary sub-share subscribed for.

The Equitable Trust Company, in a letter sent to holders of American shares, says that it has been informed that action on the proposed stock dividend of 50 per cent. would be taken by the Royal Dutch Company after receipt of royal assent in Holland, which has been applied for. The "American shares" of the company were issued here under an agreement, dated Dec. 22, 1916, between the company, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and the Equitable Trust Company.

METROPOLITAN OIL SUIT.

President Ross Asks for Co-operation from Stockholders.

Howard D. Ross, President of the Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation, has sent a letter to stockholders notifying them of the suit lately brought against the Island Oil and Transport Company, A. B. Leach & Co., Richmond Levering & Co. and others, which seeks the return of certain property alleged to have been transferred to the Island Company, or for an accounting of the value thereof, declared in the complaint to be $20,000,000. Mr. Ross says there is need of funds to continue the action and asks for further co-operation from the share owners.

"The capital stock of your company consists of 480,000 shares with a par value of $12,000,000," says the letter. "We are asking the courts to restore to us an oil well valued at $20,000,000. Assuming that our efforts will be successful, your stock ultimately would be worth around $40 a share. It seems to your Directors to be unwise for any stockholder to sell his stock now at one-fortieth of what may be its ultimate value. I may add that there are also developments pending which, if consummated, should materially restore the value of your stock."

COSDEN CO. EARNS $3,819,171

17 Per Cent. for the Stock After Allowing Bond Interest.

Cosden & Co., the petroleum producing and refining firm, reports net earnings of $3,819,171 in the six months ended June 30, after providing for part of the Federal excess profit and income tax for the period. This was equal to approximately 17 per cent. on the stock after allowing for bond interest.

"The extensive additions and improvements, which were begun more than a year ago," said J. S. Cosden, President, in the semi-annual statement, "are about completed and under present conditions earnings for the next six months should be materially increased. Total sales of the refining company for June, 1918, were $2,521,104, compare with $1,545,807 in June, 1917, and there is no reason why the present rate of earnings should not be maintained. The future of the company was never more promising and by the first of 1919 we have every reason to believe that the company will be practically free of debt except its bonds."

SEEKS MARKET FOR LOW-GRADE COTTON

President Explains Object of Committee Which Will Investigate Situation.

WILL BUY FOR USE OF ALLIES

Board May Recommend Basic Prices If After Inquiry It Is Found Necessary.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—President Wilson announced today that the committee to be named by the War Industries Board to investigate the cotton situation would recommend basic prices for the various standard grades of raw cotton if its inquiry convinced it that price-fixing was necessary. During the investigation a separate committee of three, soon to be named, will buy cotton for the use of the United States Government and the Allies at prices to be approved by the President. Since most of the cotton of the country is required for war uses this Government buying is expected to stabilize prices.

The President said that the purpose of the investigation to be conducted by the committee to be named by the War Industries Board was to devise methods for broadening the channels of distribution and use of the great stock of low grades of cotton now practically unmarketable, for eliminating speculation and hoarding and apportioning foreign orders.

The President's statement follows:

"The demand for high grade cotton, which is out of proportion to the available supply, and the fact that the Government, through early agreements with the Allies, must act as a common buyer for Allied purchases, make it necessary to secure some basis of distribution of all grades of cotton. Based on the standard grades established by the Department of Agriculture, an effort will be made to provide a way by which the low grade cotton will be brought to sale and use along with the high grade cotton at reasonable and just prices.

"It is believed that by the course both the producer and consumer will be better protected than by continuation of the present chaotic conditions of the market.

"The plan is to create, subject to the approval of the President, a Cotton Committee to devise methods for (A) broadening the channels of distribution and use of the great stock of low grades now practically unmarketable; (B) eliminating speculation and hoarding; and (C) apportioning the foreign orders.

"It may be part of this committee's duty to recommend basic prices on cotton. If, after investigation, it is found necessary, a fair price will be fixed. During the investigation and in order to avoid stagnation a separate committee of three is being set up with authority to buy cotton for the use of the United States Government and the Allies at prices to be approved by the President."

The President's statement, it was explained, was issued to "avoid misinterpretation" of statements by the War Industries Board concerning the stabilization of the cotton industry. Price-fixing of cotton has been vigorously opposed by Senators from Southern States, who have had several conferences with Chairman Baruch of the board. They contend that the law of supply and demand should continue to govern the price.

Decision of the President and the War Industries Board to investigate the cotton situation followed closely the recent announcement of the Department of Agriculture that droughts over the belt in July and August had reduced the probable yield from the estimate of about 15,325,000 bales to 11,137,000 bales. After this forecast was published the price of cotton rose $10 a bale on the principal exchanges.

Marlin-Rockwell Gains in Profit.

The Marlin-Rockwell Corporation, which is handling important war orders, reports a large expansion of earnings in the six months ended June 30. The net profit amounted to $3,024,296, partly estimated, as compared with $974,503 in the full year of 1917. Gross sales totaled $13,252,301 in the six months, in contrast with $12,525,296 in the preceding year. The sum of $700,000 was set aside to meet the 1917 income and excess profits taxes. The surplus as of Dec. 31 last was $6,148,041.

TRADING IN COTTON CONTINUES TO BE DULL

Market Closes Steady with a Decline of 27 to 36 Points.

Trading on the local cotton market was still sluggish yesterday. It was significant that not even the jubilation consequent upon the first big American victory had any effect on the market. The cotton trade apparently has at last been cured of its inveterate habit of seeing peace around the corner with every bit of good war news, and has learned to separate its feelings from tendencies of the market. It is possible that the Census Bureau report on consumption for August, the next report due, may liven up trading a bit today, but no one is counting on it.

The market yesterday opened dull and unchanged to 11 points advance, and merely sagged off all day long, closing steady, but if anything duller than at the opening, at declines of 27 to 36 points.

ROPER ADVISES TAXPAYERS.

Commissioner Warns All to Keep Accurate Income Accounts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The Bureau of Internal Revenue has begun its campaign to make clear to all who pay income and excess profits taxes the requirements of the new tax law and simplify the task of making returns.

Commissioner Roper has sent out through boards of trade, chambers of commerce, retail tradesmen's associations, wholesalers and various business organizations a personal letter urging that everybody owes it as a duty to the country to keep accurate business accounts in order to know how to make returns intelligently and justly.

"In many businesses," says Commissioner Roper, "taxes will be one of the largest items of expense. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that every concern, large or small, whether corporation, partnership, or individual, shall maintain an exact record of its receipts and expenses—in other words, keep accurate accounts.

"Taxes should be considered as an expense for the year which they are assessed rather than for the year in which they are actually paid, and the necessary reserves should be provided at once.

"No special system of accounts is prescribed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, but the books should show in detail inventories, purchases, sales, capital investments, depreciation, and similar items required in making up income tax returns.

"Every merchant should study the income tax law and regulations and see to it that his accounts are kept in a manner that will enable him to determine his net income for taxation purposes. Aside from the necessity of keeping systematic accounts in order to comply with the Government's requirements, every progressive merchant should adopt an approved accounting system for the good of his own business. In no other way can he further his financial interests more effectively."

$3,000,000 COMPANY TO FINANCE COTTON

Corporation's Charter Will Include All Phases of Commercial Credit Banking.

MAIN OFFICES TO BE HERE

Its Operation Will Be Modeled Along Lines of Large British Discount Houses.

The prospectus and plan for the formation of an organization committee to incorporate the Union Discount Corporation were made public in this city yesterday. The plan to form the new discount corporation had its inception at a general conference held on May 4 last at the Biltmore, at which were present prominent Northern spinners, Southern shippers, bankers and others interested in the cotton industry.

This conference resulted in the appointment of a Committee of Nine, composed of three Northern spinners, three Southern shippers and three bankers, to report on better and more effective methods of financing cotton. At a further conference held June 8 at the Biltmore, this committee unanimously recommended that, in connection with present methods, bank and trade acceptances be employed, so far as practicable, by shippers and spinners in financing cotton.

As a result of this report, the Union Discount Corporation is to be organized under the banking laws of the State of New York for the purpose of dealing in both trade and bankers' domestic and foreign commercial acceptance paper. According to the statement given out yesterday by Rufus R. Wilson, Secretary of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, the charter of the corporation will be sufficiently broad to cover all phases of commercial credit banking.

Among other powers, it will have power to discount bills of exchange, drafts, notes, acceptances, or other choses in action; to purchase and sell negotiable bonds or notes secured by deeds of trust or mortgages on real property wherever situated; to buy and sell notes and bills of exchange or other choses in action owned, issued, or other choses in action; to accept drafts or bills of exchange drawn upon it, negotiated, or guaranteed by it; to advance money on the security of bonds, notes payable on demand or on time not exceeding one year from date of acceptance, as well as to issue letters of credit authorizing the holder to draw drafts upon the corporation payable on demand or on time not exceeding one year from the sale of letter of credit.

It was set forth in the prospectus that, subject to the approval of the Superintendent of Banks of the State of New York, the corporation may establish and conduct branch offices both within and outside the State of New York. The capital stock proposed will be $3,000,000, all common, divided into 30,000 shares of $100 par value each. This stock will be offered for subscription at 110, and will yield, when fully subscribed, $3,300,000. Of this sum 2 per cent., or so much of it as may be necessary, will be used for preliminary expenses, to be expended under the supervision of the Board of Directors; 8 per cent. will be set aside as a reserve fund, while the balance, or $3,000,000, will be used for the purpose of creating banking credit for the business of the corporation.

Adopt British Model.

It is the purpose to distribute the capital stock as widely as possible among banks, bankers, merchants, manufacturers, and others whose business brings them into the market as sellers or purchasers of acceptance paper.

"The primary object of the corporation," the statement said, "will be to buy, sell, and otherwise trade in acceptance paper arising out of transactions in cotton, cotton goods, and all other textiles. It is the purpose, however, to deal in trade and bankers' acceptances covering transactions in all other commodities as well. In general, the plan of operation of the corporation will be modeled after that so successfully followed for many years by the large British discount houses which have contributed so much to the commercial supremacy of Great Britain and the prestige of the pound sterling. The principal office of the corporation will be in New York City. Agencies will be established, as occasion arises, in the large commercial and financial centres of the country."

The management of the corporation, it was stated, would be placed in the hands of a Board of Directors, composed of not less than fifteen men. No payment against subscriptions will be called until 3,000 shares have been subscribed. There will be no 'promotion stock' issued, and every share of stock issued will represent cash at the rate of $110 per share. The names of those serving on the Organization Committee will be made public shortly by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, which has the forming of the committee in charge.

Among those actively interested in promoting the formation of the new corporation are Theodore E. Burton, President of the Merchants National Bank, Albert Breton, Guaranty Trust Company, and Eugene V. R. Thayer, President The Chase National Bank, New York; Randall N. Durfee, Border City Mfg. Co., Fall River, Mass.; W. Frank Shove, President National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, Fall River; James R. MacColl, Lorraine Manufacturing Co., Pawtucket, R. I.; F. Abbot Goodhue, First National Bank, Boston, Mass., and others.

A report circulated in Wall Street to the effect that Theodore E. Burton, President of the Merchants' National Bank, might be chosen President of the discount corporation, but Mr. Burton deprecated what he termed "personalities" pending the election of officers.

It was believed in well informed financial circles that the plans of the promotors of the Union Discount Corporation would meet with the approval of the Capital Issues Committee, of the War Finance Corporation, especially since the primary object of the new concern will be to make cotton financing more "liquid," while assuring adequate supplies of raw cotton at the mills to meet Government requirements in the shape of cloths for military purposes.

W. P. G. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, who attended one of the early meetings held to consider improved methods for financing cotton, expressed himself as heartily in favor of the use of acceptances between buyers and sellers of the commodity.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The New York Agency of the Philippine National Bank announced yesterday the opening of a branch office in the City of Davao, Province of Mindanao, the Philippines. This gives the bank a total of forty-eight branches and offices.

The Bankers Trust Company, as trustee, will receive up to Sept. 27 proposals for the sale of $226,040 two-year convertible 6 per cent. notes of the Marlin Arms Corporation, dated March 1, 1917, at a price not to exceed 105 and accrued interest.

United States gold coin to the amount of $60,000 was withdrawn yesterday for shipment to South America.

The Nipissing Mines Company, Ltd., has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 5 per cent. and an extra dividend of 5 per cent., both payable Oct. 21 to stockholders of record on Sept. 30.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company has declared an extra dividend of 3 per cent. on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. and the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock. Dividends are payable Oct. 1 to holders of record Sept. 20.

The Utah Consolidated Mining Company declared yesterday a dividend of 25 cents a share, compared with 50 cents a share three months ago. Payments will be made Sept. 30 to stockholders of record Sept. 20. A statement by the company said that high costs and the recent purchase of additional property had made it advisable to conserve cash.

TO SOLVE HOUSING PROBLEM

New York Architect's Plan Impresses the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Robert Tappan, a New York architect, has invented a system of co-ordinated unit planning and construction that he says will solve the industrial housing problem. His ideas so impressed the United States Housing Corporation that its President, Otto Eidlitz, has authorized him to build an experiemental, full-sized working model. It is now being constructed in the yard of a local builder.

Mr. Tappan claims several distinctly novel features for his idea. By his system of unit planning, any number of radically different designs may be prepared by scores of different architects. This unit planning system is based on a custom that has been in vogue for centuries throughout Japan. Mr. Tappan contended that the unit planning would open up opportunities for the standardization of many parts of a house and that there were no limits to its possibilities. He has carried the unit planning idea so far that he asserts that an entire house may be manufactured in parts in many different mills, shipped to the building site and there erected rapidly, with a minimum of skilled labor.

TO REVISE WIRE RATES.

Burleson Names Committees to Investigate Standardization Plan.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Standardization of telephone and telegraph rate schedules throughout the country is about to be undertaken by Postmaster General Burleson. Committees were appointed today to study the services and their rates and make recommendations upon which revisions will be based.

David J. Lewis, member of the Postmaster General's committee directing the Government control of wires, will be in charge of both investigations. On the Telegraph Rate Committee with him will be John C. Willever, Vice President of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and Edward Reynolds, General Manager of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company.

Harry B. Thayer, Vice President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Charles Y. McVey, President of the Ohio Telephone Company, are the committeemen for the telephone inquiry.

Phelps-Dodge Extra Dividend.

The Phelps-Dodge Corporation declared yesterday an extra cash dividend of $3.50 and a dividend of $2 per share in 4¼ per cent. Liberty bonds, the latter representing a distribution from the reserve for depletion of mines. The usual quarterly dividend of $2.50 per share was also ordered by the Directors, all payable Sept. 30 to stockholders of record Sept. 18. A year ago the extra payment was $5.50 and three months ago it amounted to $3.50 per share.

ASTORIA FERRY TO STOP.

Company, Losing Money, Sees No Hope but a City Subsidy.

The New York and East River Ferry Company, which operates boats between East Ninety-second Street and Astoria, has announced that it will discontinue the service on Sept. 28 unless the city gives it financial aid. The ferry company says it has been operating at a loss for a year and has contemplated closing down for several weeks. In an effort to retain the ferry service the Astoria Ferry Committee has been organized, and it is hoped that the city may subsidize the company. Borough President Connolly has been appealed to by the committee and he will bring the matter before the Board of Estimate on Sept. 20.

Bar New Issues During Loan Drive.

Pierre Jay, Chairman of the Capital Issues Committee for the Second Federal Reserve District, made public yesterday the text of a resolution recently adopted by the Capital Issues Committee in Washington to the effect that no new security issues would be approved until after the close of the forthcoming Liberty Loan campaign, and calling upon bond dealers not to push the sale of securities during the campaign, in order that the Government might have the right of way. This request does not apply to sales made over the counter or to transactions made in the ordinary course of business on the Stock Exchanges. The substance of the resolution was published in Wednesday's TIMES.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday closed steady and fairly active. Final prices showed slight net gains for many issues, and the entire list made up the greater portion of the severe losses sustained in the heavy liquidation of the early trading.

BOND EXEMPTION BILL IS PASSED

WILSON CAN FORBID SALES

Effort to Amend the Section Giving Him Full Authority Is Defeated After Debate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The Administration bill to stabilize Liberty bonds and foreign exchange, introduced at the request of Secretary McAdoo, was passed by the House today by a vote of 149 to 0, after an unsuccessful attempt to amend the section granting power to the President to prohibit the sale of Government bonds, if such a course may be necessary.

Representative Carter Glass, Chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, objected to the clause empowering the Secretary of the Treasury to establish foreign depositories to stabilize foreign exchange. He asserted that this power was granted to the Federal Reserve Board but had not been exercised because most of the members of that board thought it unwise. He said that Secretary McAdoo was in the minority and was now seeking to have specific authority conferred on him, which had already been given to the Board.

Representative Kitchin telephoned Chairman Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, and then informed the House that the Board was not opposed to the foreign exchange section.

A motion offered by Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania to strike this section from the bill was lost, although Representative Stafford of Wisconsin succeeded in having it amended so as to limit the operation of foreign exchange arrangements to the period of the war or not more than two years thereafter.

In Committee of the Whole, Representative Hayes, after a brief argument against granting authority to the President to prohibit transactions in bonds or certificates of indebtedness of the United States, had this part of Section 5 eliminated by a vote of 54 to 52.

After the bill was reported to the House, Representative Kitchin appealed to the members to restore the eliminated section.

"This is the most essential provision in this bill," said Mr. Kitchin. "Why should we hesitate, after we have granted the President so many and greater powers? We must give him this authority so that he can protect the small bondholders.

"There are transactions in these bonds that ought to be prohibited. There are syndicates in the country of which the Treasury Department is cognizant working to lower the price of the bonds and persuade persons, after this has been done, to sell them, or exchange them for worthless paper. If you do not give the President this power you will see the rate on future Liberty bonds raised to 6 per cent."

The Hayes amendment was then defeated in the House by a vote of 116 to 31 and the bill was passed.

The bill exempts Liberty bonds from income and war excess profits taxation up to $30,000 of the fourth issue and $45,000 of the previous issues. It also authorizes the increase of the maximum of War Savings Stamps from $2,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000.

CONDITION OF TRADE.

Commenting on the condition of trade and the business of the banks, Dun's Review says:

> While activities have been accelerated by lower temperatures and a movement to encourage early holiday buying, existing regulations and restrictions prevent a full measure of response to seasonal influences in regular channels, and there is little prospect of any lessening of the restraints on ordinary operations. Not only have the supplies available for strictly commercial uses appreciably diminished in many quarters, but a still greater depletion is foreshadowed by the enlarging demands from Government sources, and it is a somewhat conspicuous feature that certain classes of merchandise are no longer appearing on the markets.
> Record payments through the banks for this period continue to be reflected in Clearing House transactions at the principal cities of the United States, total exchanges this week amounting to $5,472,380,152, an increase of 8.4 per cent., as compared with last year, and of 26.3 per cent., as contrasted with the corresponding period in 1916. New York City reports a gain over last year of 5.4 per cent., and over two years ago of 14.9 per cent.

Bradstreet's says:

> Best reports as to trade come, as heretofore, from the Spring wheat Northwest, this year a most favored section agriculturally, the Pacific Coast and the industrial centres of the South and Southwest. Eastern trade centres, being closer to actual workings of Government demand, especially for textiles, reflect more conservatism, not because of lessened confidence in demand, but because of poor prospects for future supplies of merchandise. Mail-order trade is larger than a year ago. Southwestern reports indicate that filling-in orders for Fall goods are coming along in volume, and cooler weather has improved retail trade at most centres.

OPPOSES INSURANCE TAX.

Job E. Hedges Fears Loss of Each Year's Entire Surplus.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Life insurance companies, through Job E. Hedges of New York, general counsel of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, protested to the Senate Finance Committee today against a provision of the War Revenue bill which the committee was told virtually would compel the companies to dissipate each year's entire surplus.

The interests of policyholders, Mr. Hedges said, demand a change in the application of the normal income tax differential to the net income of life insurance companies. As now proposed, the differential would put a premium on distribution of surplus by reducing from 18 to 12 per cent. the tax upon distributed incomes of corporations generally.

"While the legal reserves of life insurance companies are mathematically sufficient to insure the performance of all obligations assumed," Mr. Hedges said, "under ordinary circumstances, the possibility of unusual contingencies, however remote that may be, must be reckoned with. One of the contingencies which the company managers have always had in mind is the possible decrease in the value of securities in which the legal reserves are invested. Another is the occurrence of excess death losses through epidemic or war, which might disturb the calculations upon which the premiums charged for the insurance afforded were based.

"Both of these contingencies immediately confront the companies today. But for their surpluses, against the accumulation of which this differential rate is, we think, unwillingly directed, some of them might not survive the period of this war without serious impairment and corresponding loss and distress to their policyholders."

Amount and Maturity Not Yet Announced by McAdoo.

Although Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has not yet announced the amount and the maturity of the forthcoming Fourth Liberty Loan, the following details have already been decided upon, according to a statement put out by Charles A. Morss, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston:

> Installment payments under the Government plan call for 10 per cent. of subscription with appplication, 20 per cent. on Nov. 21, 1918; 20 per cent. on Dec. 19, 1918; 20 per cent. on Jan. 16, 1919, and 30 per cent. and interest on Jan. 30, 1919.
> Payment in full may be made either with application or so as to reach the Federal Reserve Bank on Oct. 24, 1918.
> Denomination of Bonds—$50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, and $10,000; registered, $50,000 and $100,000.

The selling campaign for the Fourth Liberty Loan will begin in two weeks, namely Sept. 28, and close Oct. 19.

Honor of having made the first subscription in New York City to the Fourth Liberty Loan goes to Long Island City, according to an announcement made last evening by Acosta Nichols, supervisor of the Liberty Loan campaign in the Sixth District. It was a subscription of $250,000 made by the Long Island City Savings Bank. It was said that this was only an initial subscription by this institution.

Liberty Loan films, to be exhibited throughout the country in the coming Fourth Liberty Loan campaign, are to have an official first showing at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Rivoli Theatre.

WON'T RENT GERMAN SHIPS.

Chile Indignant Over Attempt of Crews to Destroy Vessels.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 13.—Press dispatches from Chile indicate that as a result of the recent attempt by interned German crews to destroy their vessels the Chilean Government will drop the negotiations for renting German vessels from the German Government. This change of policy is receiving the vigorous support of leading newspapers which were formerly urging that these vessels be rented.

The attempt by the German crews to destroy their vessels has caused profound indignation throughout Chile as an example of bad faith, as the orders to destroy the ships came while Germany apparently was still willing to negotiate for their lease.

SAYS BOLSHEVIKI GAVE AMERICA TERMS

Would Have Rejected Brest-Litovsk Treaty, Reed Asserts, for Food and Ammunition.

GOT NO REPLY TO CABLE

Washington Officials Point to German Leanings of Bolshevist Leaders as Grounds for Ignoring Any Proposal.

John Reed, who was named by the Bolsheviki as their Consul General in New York, last night told 2,000 members of the Bronx Chapter of the Socialist Party in the Hunt's Point Palace, at 164th Street and Southern Boulevard, that the United States could have prevented the signing of the Brest-Litovsk treaty if it had promised to give the Bolsheviki food and ammunition.

Six days before the treaty was signed Lenine and Trotzky sent a cable dispatch to President Wilson, Reed said, outlining the articles of the agreement that was to be signed and suggesting that the Bolsheviki would not come to an agreement with the Germans if the United States would promise to send over ships with food and ammunition. Reed said that the United States did not reply to this request and the Bolsheviki signed the treaty.

In explaining the purpose of the payment of an indemnity to Germany he said that the Bolsheviki intended in that way to nullify and repudiate the terms of the treaty. He said it was a price paid to make Russia "economically independent."

The Department of Justice had several agents and stenographers at the meeting and Reed began his speech with an address to them. Before he had finished his opening remarks there was a commotion in the back of the hall and policemen posted there ejected several persons. In continuing his speech Reed said that he was prepared to go to court with proof for every assertion he made.

The speaker read several letters and speeches written by President Wilson, saying that he wished to show that the American Government had changed its attitude several times in dealing with the Bolshevist Government. Reed said he opposed the sending of troops to Siberia, charged that the Czechoslovaks had broken faith with the Bolsheviki in fighting them, and criticised the attitude of the British and French in Russia. He said their desire in Russia since last Spring had been to overthrow "existing Governments."

A resolution was adopted pledging "financial and moral support" to keep Eugene V. Debs out of jail. A fund of about $300 was collected at the meeting.

Another assertion made by Reed was that he was sure that the British Embassy in Russia was back of a conspiracy to assassinate Lenine, and, he continued, he knew more about the change in the attitude of the Allies toward Russia than he would tell in court if he were "arrested for insulting the Allies."

In speaking of the Czechoslovaks, Reed said that he knew that Belgian and French diplomats at Moscow had requested Trotzky to send trainloads of the Czechoslovaks to Vladivostok and that the Bolshevist Government had complied, depriving itself of trains to transport food, merely to accede to the request. He asserted that the Bolshevist Government had aided in clothing and equipping 80,000 Czechoslovaks who broke faith with the Bolsheist Government and took up operations against it.

The Administration and the Russian policy were criticised by Benjamin Cutlow, the Chairman, and the other speakers, Louis C. Fraina, who called himself an Internationalist, and Santeri Nuorteva, head of the Finnish Information Bureau. Cutlow announced in opening the meeting that agents of the Department of Justice were present, and then began criticism of the Administration. Gregory Weinstein spoke in Russian and attacked President Wilson for sending troops to Siberia "after he had recognized free Russia."

Speakers said that many of the persons reported dead in Russia were not dead, but were active in the Bolshevist Government. One of the persons who Reed said was still alive was Maxim Gorky. He said that Gorky was taking an active part in the Bolshevist propaganda.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—It was impossible to get a statement from the State Department tonight on John Reed's allegation that the Bolshevist leaders had made an offer to President Wilson, but it was pointed out here that inasmuch as Lenine and Trotzky were supposed to be German agents the Government would be quite justified in ignoring terms put forth by them.

Ambassador Francis had reported too fully to President Wilson regarding the doings and status of Lenine and Trotzky for the American Government to have been caught by any such suggestion as that mentioned by Reed, provided it was in reality made. The American Government has for some months made a very clear distinction between the Russian people and the Lenine-Trotzky Bolshevist Government. It has not looked upon the Bolshevist Government as being in any manner representative of the will or aspirations of the Russian people as a whole, and for that reason has never accorded recognition to that Government.

Lenine and Trotzky have in many devious ways sought to force the hand of this Government and the Allies in the matter of recognition. Each time the Entente Governments have studiously refrained from any action that might be construed into the merest shadow of recognition. To have sent them ships with food and ammunition would have come dangerously close to according the very sort of recognition that they were studiously seeking to obtain from the Entente Governments. It is this same Government of the Bolsheviki that has now, according to dispatches received early this week from Ambassador Francis, signed a new treaty with the Berlin Government, under which Germany has offered to guarantee the Bolshevist Government against attack by or through Finland if the Bolshevist Government should attack the Entente forces in Northern Russia, Southern Archangel, and drive them into the sea.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 8,582 packages. The trade is absorbing the stock very closely, and prices are again higher and firm. Open sales of creamery extras at 53½@54c., and the fancier lots brought ½@1c. more. Undergrades are sharing fully in the improvement because of better average quality. Renovated in sellers' favor. Ladles and packing stock also very firm. EGGS.—11,891 cases. The market is quiet and barely steady. Even the highest qualities, such as have been taken quite promptly heretofore, are not moving so well, and there is some accumulation of stock heretofore selling at top quotations for extra firsts or even higher. These prices are still obtained to a limited extent, but are being shaded on some marks. The medium qualities continue dull and in buyers' favor. Storage eggs continue in fair demand and are held firmly. Nearby whites of strictly fancy quality have some call, but there are few such, and the defective lots drag at a wide range of generally weak prices. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 51@52c; extra firsts, 48@50c; firsts, 44@47c; seconds and poorer, 35@43c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 37@38c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@36c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 33@35c; undergrades, 26@32c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 43@44½c; firsts, charges paid, 42@43½c; seconds, charges paid, 40@42c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 64@68c; ordinary to prime, 45@63c; gathered whites, ordinary, to fine, 45@63c; Pacific Coast whites, firsts to finest, 60@62c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 42@60c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby hennery browns, 54@56c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 40@52c.

HOLD GAS COMPANY FIGURES VALUELESS

Service Board Counsel Contends Referee Hughes Erred in Accepting Them.

In the hearing before the Public Service Commission yesterday on the application of the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company for authority to increase its rate for gas from 95 cents a thousand cubic feet to $1.25, counsel for the commission said that the figures which the company wanted to submit as to the value of its plant were of no value because they had been compiled by the company itself. The figures had been accepted by Charles E. Hughes in his report as referee that the company should be relieved of charging only the maximum rate of 80 cents. The commission's counsel said that Mr. Hughes made a mistake in accepting the figures.

Miss Mary E. Dillon, the company's bookkeeper and office manager, frequently alluded to the figures, but they were excluded from the record. Miss Dillon testified that the company was now paying 75 cents a gallon for gas oil, and that every cent added to the price cost the company an additional $20,000 a year in manufacturing gas. She said that the contract for furnishing oil went to the lowest bidder, and that the company had never taken any steps to learn whether the price charged for oil was reasonable.

"You ought to know," said Commissioner Whitney, "that you can go to the Federal Fuel Administrator and discover whether you are being forced to pay more than a reasonable price for oil."

The hearing will be resumed next Wednesday at 2:30.

B. R. T. President Replies to Louis Marshall About Jewish Employes.

Louis Marshall, who sent a letter to T. S. Williams, President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, on the alleged discharge of 500 Jewish employes, was indignant yesterday upon learning that Colonel Williams's reply had been given to the newspapers before he had received a copy himself, and, under the circumstances, he refused to allow his own letter to be published. At the office of the B. R. T. it was said that Colonel Williams's letter had been mailed on Thursday morning and great surprise was expressed that it was not yet in Mr. Marshall's hands. A copy was immediately forwarded to him.

Mr. Marshall in his letter inquired as to the truth of the report that the employes had been discharged because they had remained home on the Jewish New Year last Saturday and Sunday, contrary to orders. In his reply Colonel Williams wrote:

"The actual facts are that out of 1,400 Jewish employes in our transportation department only twenty-two were discharged or voluntarily left because their request could not be complied with. Some of these had records sufficiently bad to justify dismissal, anyway.

"Every effort was made to allow the men to observe their holidays, but traffic conditions were such that the absence of any considerable number of employes would seriously embarrass the service and would produce great public inconvenience. However, it was gratifying to know that a vast majority of the employes appreciated the conditions and did not ask for leave of absence."

Regarding the holiday next Monday, Colonel Williams said every effort would be made to excuse as many Jewish employes as possible. Similar replies were sent to letters from the Rev. Mr. Feinthal, Chairman of the Jewish Committee, and to Moe Turman, an officer of the Jewish Alliance.

Court Comments on Case of Lieutenant Seeking Retirement.

Justice James C. Cropsey, in the Supreme Court, in Brooklyn, yesterday reserved decision on an application for a writ of mandamus made by Lieut. William A. Jones, the pistol and firearm expert of the Police Department, to compel Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright to retire him on a pension because of physical disability. Lieutenant Jones in an affidavit asserted that he had twice made his application for retirement to the Commissioner and that each time a medical board of three police surgeons reported that he was afflicted with a form of paralysis.

Commissioner Enright opposed the application for the writ of mandamus and submitted an affidavit in which he asserted that he knew from personal observation that Jones did not have the ailment alleged.

"Commissioner Enright is in a peculiar predicament," said Justice Cropsey, who was once Police Commissioner. "He must either retire the petitioner or dismiss the six surgeons who reported that the petitioner had paralysis."

The New York Evening High School for Women, at 40 Irving Place, offers a complete high school education equal in all respects to that to be obtained in the day high schools. All the essential studies leading to Regents' counts may now be pursued at this evening high school, and credit entitling the student to admission to college will be given for successful work. Classes will be in session five evenings a week. As attendance is a vital factor in securing credit, those wishing to take the academic course should register at once. English, French, Italian, Spanish, music, physical training, science, mathematics, history, and drawing classes are being formed. A student in the commercial department has a choice of specializing in any one of the three branches—the stenography, the bookkeeping, or the secretarial. To round out her program, there are classes in stenography, typewriting, bookkeeping, office practice, business English, commercial law, commercial arithmetic, penmanship, modern languages, economics and civics, proofreading, the mechanics of writing, statistics, and the making of graphs. In the industrial department prevocational dressmaking, prevocational millinery, salesmanship and corsetry, trade dressmaking, trade embroidery, and trade millinery are taught. The art-craft course has classes in costume design, drawing, commercial and poster design, and applied design in trade embroidery. Applicants for any of the courses may register today from 7 to 9:30 P. M., and on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings of next week.

The Harlem Evening High School, 31 West 116th Street, Manhattan, is offering a course in machine shorthand, stenotypy, again this year. Because stenotypy can be learned much more quickly than pencil shorthand, this course should appeal to those desirous of preparing for Government or business positions in the shortest possible time. The first class starts on the evening of Sept. 16, and is open to young women as well as young men. Those taking the course now can be ready for positions at the close of the second semester.

City Superintendent Ettinger will speak on "Vocational Education" before the convention of educational officers in Buffalo today.

The commission announces an examination for surveyor and transitman, for men. Vacancies in the General Land Office Service at the salaries indicated below, and in positions requiring similar qualifications at these or higher or lower salaries, will be filled from this examination. The entrance salary for the position of surveyor will range from $125 to $200 a month, and for the position of transitman from $100 to $125 a month, depending upon the qualifications of appointees and the work to which assignment is made. Living expenses, including travel, will be allowed while on duty in the field. The duties will consist of the surveying of public lands. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on physical ability, 20; education, experience, and fitness, 80. For either position, applicants must have at least a complete common school education. For surveyor, applicants must have had four years of field experience in the survey or resurvey of public lands, or in the subdivision of land already surveyed under the public-land system. Of these, at least two years must have been in the position of transitman or its equivalent. For transitman, applicants must have had three years of surveying experience, of which six months must have been in the survey, resurvey, or subdivision of lands as above specified. For either position the successful completion of each year of a civil engineering course in a college or university of recognized standing will be accepted as equivalent to six months of the required experience. On account of the urgent needs of the service, applications will be received until further notice. Papers will be rated promptly and certification made as the needs of the service require. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

SEES BIG TAX LOSS IN BAN ON BREWING

State Will Be Hard Hit, Attorney for Brewers' Association Says.

Depression in Real Estate Values Foreseen with Nearly 10,000 Buildings and Stores Vacated.

A discussion of the situation which will prevail in this State when the State is deprived of its excise receipts, as a result of pending prohibition legislation in Congress and as a result of the order of the Fuel Administration, prohibiting the manufacture of beer after Dec. 1, was undertaken in a statement issued yesterday by William H. Hirst, attorney for the New York State Brewers' Association and counsel for the Society of Restaurateurs of New York.

Mr. Hirst said the total revenue received by the State Department of Excise from Oct. 1, 1917, to Aug. 1, 1918, was $21,902,472.85, of which $13,371,982.72 came from New York City. To these sums, he said, there will be a considerable addition when the tax on the volume of business receivable for the last quarter of the license year is collected. This is estimated to be about $400,000, making the total liquor tax revenue from Oct. 1, 1917, to Sept. 30, 1918, approximately $22,302,472.85. This sum, according to Mr. Hirst, constitutes one-third of the total tax collected by the State to meet the extraordinary budget for this year.

Mr. Hirst believes that in New York alone nearly 10,000 buildings and stores will be vacated in the event of absolute prohibition. "All real estate values," Mr. Hirst's statement says, "would be badly affected. Rents would be reduced not only because of vacant property, but because of the competition for tenants between that and other properties. The value of mortgages on real estate would be greatly impaired. At a hearing in Albany two years ago Mr. Linder, attorney for the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, stated that prohibition for New York City would possibly mean such a reduction of the borrowing capacity of the city that it would not be able to borrow more money for the completion of its public improvements. The same would be true of many other cities in the State."

Mr. Hirst says there is invested in this State in brewing, wine making, malting, and distilling $171,378,000, in liquor stocks $54,706,800, in appurtenances and appliances for brewing, wine making, malting, and distilling $171,378,000, and in bar fixtures in saloons and hotels $86,610,750. He estimates the depreciation of capital invested in manufacturing at $128,533,500, the depreciation in value of fixtures $82,280,213, and in the immediate depreciation of real values $36,985,000 for hotels and $54,100,200 for saloons, provided, of course, absolute prohibition becomes a fact in this State.

SOHLMAN DENIES LIBEL.

Obtains Postponement of Hearing in Suit of American Legation.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 13.—The suit brought by the United States Legation to Sweden against Harold Sohlman on account of an article published in the Aftonbladet regarding America and the war and containing personal reflections on President Wilson, was opened today.

Sohlman declared that the American Legation was "trying to apply principles against the right of free utterance, which possibly are now enforced in the United States but which are contrary to Swedish practice." He asserted the article was not libelous, but merely criticism, contending that America's present war policy was the main obstacle to world peace.

Sohlman's application for a postponement of the hearing was granted.

They're All One Price

My hats are all one price, because I don't like to be flattered, coaxed and jollied along to pay more than I intended when I go into a store.

When I find something that satisfies me at the price I want to pay, I don't like to be shown "Something a Little Better for $5", or have some smart young fellow try to give me the impression that he's taking a hat out of a safe that he only shows "people who appreciate something nice"—with a $10 price on it.

I do not want to feel like a piker, because I didn't pick out the most expensive thing in the store.

If I find something for less than $3 that satisfies me as well as something that costs $30, I do not intend to pay the difference for the label—Not this Year.

Now you can pay less for a hat that isn't as good—and you can pay more for a hat that isn't any better.

But just remember the salesman in my store isn't coached to throw out "bait". He isn't instructed to "trade up". He doesn't get "called down", because he doesn't "work you up"—

Tomorrow Is Fall Hat Day

Midnight, tonight, Trinity chimes will sound a curfew on straw hats. After which it won't be safe for them to be out.

So, a Fall "Stetson" to go with your new Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes is a matter for attention today.

Particularly if you are interested in the economy of long service and lasting satisfaction that is to be found in a good hat.

And "good" is a perfectly safe adjective to apply to Stetson Hats, especially those with our exclusive "Headease" feature that insures right fit and hat comfort.

WHEN it comes to Fit, I don't take off my bowler to London or my chapeau to Paris. Army-and-Navy Officers' Outfits from some of the bigwig tailors over-ocean are not on a parity in Body-Gracing Fit with the Uniforms I turn out.

American Officers, on leave from abroad, wearing my Uniforms, say that "foreign tailors are not in it." I want no higher compliment than that of the fellow on the Firing-Line. Ready-To-Step-Into Uniforms, journeyman tailor-made, if you can't wait.
